J.C. Penney Rates Pluck Over Luck

NEW YORK (AP) — James Cash Penney, interviewed on the eve of his 92nd birthday, says he doesn't believe in luck. 'Put a P in front of it," the founder of the great retail chain of more than 1,600 stores advised.

Penney, one of 12 children of a Hamilton, Mo., farmer and preacher, said he will spend his birthday Saturday "just greeting my friends."

He spoke from his 46th floor office in the J. C. Penny Co., building in Manhattan.

"My eyesight is impaired," he said, "so I don't travel or accept invitations to speak so much any more. But my vision is stronger than ever."

Vision, Penney said, the imaginative kind that enabled him to build his retailing giant, plus "hard work, good judgment, character and a few sacrifices" is the recipe for a successful retailer.

Penney said his father selected his vocation and he became an apprentice clerk in a dry goods store at $2.27 a month after graduating from Hamilton High. But he said it was a lot of money to a young man who had worked at odd jobs since he was 8 to buy his own clothes.

"I thought my father was hard on me when he put me on my own," Penny said. "But I thank God every night for that early, strict, religious training."

Penney started his own general merchandising store in Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1902 after seven years' experience and with $2,000, all but $500 borrowed from a bank back home.

Penney said he thought, as he began to prosper, that he might sometime have 25 stores. "Then, after I had 25 I saw no reason not to have 50, then 100. And finally I saw no limit."

Last year his more than 1,600 stores grossed more than $2.5 billion.

Penney "retired" 50 years ago as president of his company, but he is still a director and goes to his office daily.

"The door to my office is never closed," he said. "One of my great pleasures in life is to meet people, many from our own stores."

Davis President of Chapter

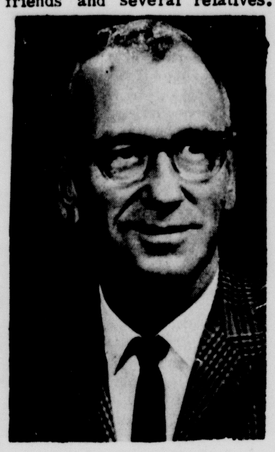
John W. Davis, 604 Taylor, will serve as 1967-68 president of Scott county chapter of the American Cancer Society. He has been reappointed.

He begins his 12th year as a volunteer worker for the organization. He has worked for the past 26 years as a clerk of the post office.

Davis is a member of the Sikeston park board and is president of the Men's Garden club. He is active in the First Baptist church.

"I'm concerned and interested in this disease that strikes all ages," he said. I've seen it claim the lives of many close friends and several relatives.



John W. Davis

Many others in the business, arts and sports are struck down suddenly each year with cancer.

"We are on the threshold of a cure, but much is still needed for research to find that cure."

The society's annual meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the El Capri restaurant. Clarence Lee Shireel, Cape Girardeau, will speak.

Anyone interested in the Cancer program may attend.

Bob Huffard, Ilmo, the new district representative of the Cancer society will be present.

Reports will be given by committee chairmen on last year's drive. A total of $3,149 was collected in the county. Wayne Woodard served as crusade chairman and Dale Beaird was city chairman.

Serving on the chapter's nominating committee for 1968 are, Rev. Jimmie Miller, chairman; Mrs. Charles Green, secretary; Herman Poe, treasurer, W. C. Mulcahy, education chairman, Dr. Max Heeb, medical advisor, Mrs. Joel Montgomery, publicity chairman, Mrs. Berneal Carroll, assistant education chairman.

Board members of the Chapter are, Dr. G. W. Weathers, Dr. Buckthorpe, Dr. Max Heeb, Mrs. Ken Smitten, John Scarbrough, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Wyman, Mrs. J. W. Parks, the Rev. Mr. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Montgomery, Mrs. Violetta McGee, Mrs. Charles Green, Danny Limbaugh, Beaird and Davis, all of Sikeston; Hess Porter, Benton; W. G. Mason, Oran; Mrs. J. R. Lee, Mrs. Berneal Carroll, Morley; Mr. and Mrs. James Howard, Diehlstadt and Mrs. John Schmidt, Scott City.

Drunk Driver Fined, Sentenced

Robert Allen Jones, 614 William, was fined $106 and sentenced to 20 days in jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated Thursday night in city court. He was also fined $10 and costs on a charge of disorderly conduct. A charge of destroying city property was continued.

Judge James Sickal presided.

Lawrence Robinett, Dunn Hotel, was fined $12 on a charge of public intoxication.

James H. Dozier, route two, Sikeston, was fined $15 on a charge of peace disturbance.

James H. Marshall, 322 Luther, was fined $20 on a charge of exceeding the speed limit.

Troy L. Purkey, 519 Coleman, was fined $24 on a charge of exceeding the speed limit.

Rickie Joe Baldwin, Benton, was fined $15 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Fred Lashmet, Box 211, Sikeston, was fined $27 on a charge of exceeding the speed limit.

Carolyn Sue Brown, Jackson, was fined $17 on a charge of careless and imprudent driving.

Peace Signs Explored

WASHINGTON (AP)— A new burst of Vietnamese peace talk, coming at least in part from Hanoi, started U.S. officials searching today for evidence that the North Vietnamese government might be developing an interest in negotiations. But the the initial reaction here was both cautious and skeptical.

Canadian foreign secretary Paul Martin told a news conference at Ottawa yesterday that North Vietnamese authorities have expressed some interest in possible ways to start talks on ending the war.

State Department officials in Washington had been informed that a Canadian diplomat, O.W. Dier, was visiting briefly in Hanoi. But officials said they had not yet been given a report on the reported new display of interest by North Vietnamese authorities.

Parallel with this development, Johnson administration leaders were studying a dispatch distributed yesterday by the French news agency Agence France-Presse. This quoted "reliable sources" in Hanoi as saying that an unconditional halt in U.S. bombing could lead to talks between North Vietnam and the United States in three or four weeks.

Killer of Val Percy Still Free

KENILWORTH, Ill. (AP) — A year ago today, Valerie Percy, 21, stood smiling at her father's side, listening to him campaign for the U.S. Senate and devoting her time and talents to his success.

Two days later the 21-year-old blonde twin daughter of Charles Percy lay on her blood-soaked pillow, battered to death in the $200,000 mansion which sprawls on a bluff above Lake Michigan in Kenilworth, an elite community in Chicago's suburban North Shore area.

The man who crept up the circular stairs to kill Valerie Percy in the cold dawn of Sunday, Sept. 18, carried a glass cutter, a flashlight, a double-edge knife and an arrow-shaped piece of metal.

He plunged the knife into the girl's head and chest 10 times and the piece of metal crushed her skull.

Neither the killer nor his tools have been found.

"He left us very little, other than a body," says a stalemated detective who has lived with the unsolved murder file for a year.

The body and the unknown killer, whose identity was shrouded by darkness, were discovered by the victim's stepmother, Percy's second wife, Lorraine, 37.

She described being awakened by a moaning sound.

"I walked down the hall toward the girls' rooms. I saw a light coming from under Valerie's door. I called out, 'Val!' and then I opened the door."

"Over her bed was a man. I was frozen for a moment. He was shining his flashlight in my face. Then I screamed."

Two days after her death, Valerie Percy was given a simple burial service. The chapel was adorned with pink roses, her favorite flower, and the body was cremated.

Percy took his family to a hideaway in Northern California, interrupting his campaign to unseat Democratic Sen. Paul Douglas. The blond, deep-voiced Republican hopeful returned to the campaign in late October.

"There is a time to be born, a time to die, a time to dance and a time to mourn, a time to keep silent and a time to speak. Now is the time to speak," Percy said at his initial political outing following the murder.

He was an overwhelming victor in November and attracted attention as a potential GOP presidential candidate.

In March, Robert Daley, chief of Kenilworth's 11-man police force in September when the village had the first murder in its history, was named village manager. His replacement was Edward Eggert, 42, who, with Sgt. William Sumner, handled the investigation from the beginning.

Eggert and Sumner discussed the case Tuesday.

"We have checked out 1,153 leads," Eggert said. "In all, we have personally talked to about 8,000 persons in 48 states and five foreign countries— France, India, England, Africa and Canada."

"There are still 53 leads open. The FBI has helped on out-of-state leads and the Chicago police still hold the four latent palm prints and the other physical evidence."

Sumner, Kenilworth's only policeman still assigned full time to the investigation, works with three members of the Illinois state police crime section.

"Each lead we get we try and figure out a motive but that's almost impossible," Sumner said, fingering a massive drawer of lead folders in the tiny office room in the Kenilworth Village Hall that was rented for the investigation and its gathering files.

"As long as there is a lead open, we'll continue the case," Eggert promises.

"We've never even established a motive," Sumner said.

"He didn't leave us a thing, except a body."

Six Injured in Three Road Collisions

Troop E of the Missouri Highway Patrol reported six injuries in three highway collisions Thursday. Injured were three from rural Puxico, one from Sikeston, and two from Detroit.

At 5:25 p.m., two miles east of Puxico, a 1967 Dodge, driven by Juanita Suddeth, 28, and a 1965 Plymouth, driven by Hudson Harmon, 55, both of route two, Puxico, met headon on gravel road hill.

The Suddeth woman received cuts on the chin and left knee, while a passenger in her car, Anita Suddeth, five, suffered a bruised mouth. A passenger in in the Plymouth, Devona Harmon, 42, Puxico, received head and knee bruises. All were taken to the Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

At 11:25 p.m. on highway 114, three miles west of Sikeston, a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Delpha Newton, 47, Sikeston, slowed to turn into drive, and was struck in the rear by another 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Donald Freeman, 20, Sikeston.

Injured was David Holifield, 21, Sikeston, who received cuts on his forehead, was treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

The patrol said that Freeman was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Two persons were injured Thursday at 1:15 p.m., when a 1961 Chevrolet, driven by James Burgher, 58, Detroit, pulled away from a stop sign at the junction of highway 61 and 164, two miles north of Steele, in front of a GMC pickup truck, driven by George House, 34, Hayti.

Burgher received a possible fractured left arm, and a passenger in his car, Carmen Baugher, 58, Detroit, received a fractured right leg.

The injured were taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

COSTUME WINNERS IN THE Matthews Fall Festival kiddies parade Thursday were, from left, Darin Andrews, two, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews, third place; Rene Roberts, eight, and Alyssa Roberts, four, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Roberts III, first place, and Marty Lynnette Perry, four, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Perry, second place.

MATTHEWS FALL FESTIVAL winners in the kiddie parade Thursday included Terry Myers, 10, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Myers, holding cat, best dressed pet, and Tammy Bledsoe, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bledsoe, best decorated bicycle.

Police Report

Two Accidents

Three Arrests

Billie J. Butler, 325 Marian, was charged by police with careless and imprudent driving for failure to have his car under control at 5:19 p.m. Thursday.

Butler's vehicle was involved in an accident at the Midtowner Village Shopping Center with a car driven by Mrs. Shirley J. Davidson, 1801 Oklahoma. No injuries resulted.

Shirley J. Hickman, 910 North Tanner, suffered injuries to the face and chest when the car she was driving struck a culvert at 11:19 a.m. Thursday at South Ingram and East Malone, police reported.

She is reported in satisfactory condition today in Missouri Delta Community hospital. A charge is pending against her, police said.

James A. Taylor, West Memphis, Ark., was charged by police at 1:15 p.m. Thursday with public intoxication. He was arrested on West Malone.

Charles T. Eaton Jr., 835 Greer, was charged by police at 6:40 p.m. Thursday with exceeding the speed limit on Helen Street.

An undetermined amount of change was reported stolen Thursday from a jukebox at Jesse Berry's Cafe, Osage and Luther, police said.

By The Associated Press

If you drink three cups of coffee a day, you spend about as much each year as some South American coffee workers earn annually.

The average Latin American peasant earns approximately $150 a year--a little less than what you'd pay for three daily 15-cent cups of coffee during that period.

Rural workers in many South American countries struggle with uneven land distribution, a shortage of developed land, vast numbers of sharecroppers, landless tenant farmers, and farms too small to support the families working them. Poor conditions like these spell low agricultural yields -- dangerous for a region in which agriculture is the main way of life. And rural unrest undoubtedly helps the Castro style guerrillas operating in Bolivia, Venezuela, Colombia, Guatemala, Haiti, and Peru.

The last few years have seen considerable improvement in many South American agricultural problems. Almost every country now has some kind of land reform.

Venezuela has distributed land to about 115,000 families; Bolivia has eliminated most of its enormous semi-feudal estates. Peru, Colombia, and Ecuador have given property rights to many landless workers, and Chile's president last month signed into law one of the most ambitious reform programs on the continent. In Colombia, the Roman Catholic Church is lending vital support to the land redistribution program.

Latin American land problems comprise a number of ills, which demand a variety of solutions.

One kind of land reform is redistribution of public lands or large, idle estates -- a program which has had fair success in Mexico, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, and Venezuela. Equalizing land holdings is vital in Latin America because almost every country is plagued with "too little or too much" distribution -- land patterns in which holdings are either too large or too small to be farmed efficiently.

Estate owners, who can live comfortably on revenues from a fraction of their holdings, have little incentive to plant their idle lands. Farmers whose acres are just barely enough for subsistence can't afford machinery to improve their yields.

In Argentina, holdings over 10,000 acres constitute one-half of one per cent of the total farms--but contain a third of the agricultural land. Peru's large landowners, whose farms are about two per cent of the total holdings, own 70 per cent of the land -- while small farms, 83 per cent of the holdings, are jammed onto a scant five per cent of the land.

But the Inter-American Development Bank reports that land redistribution was the slowest-moving agrarian reform in 1966 -- partly due to problems in expropriation. Only Cuba has confiscated large holdings without payment. All other countries offer compensation.

But some Latin American legislatures, many dominated by landowners, require their governments to pay cash for confiscated lands -- an impossible demand for poor, underdeveloped states. Most successful land-reform programs allow the government to pay for land in long-term bonds.

Nevertheless, farm redistribution isn't enough to turn landless squatters into efficient landowners. In Latin America, where illiteracy rates run as high as 80 per cent, peasants tend to follow their ancestors' outdated farming practices.

Bolivia's Indians, accustomed to a self-sufficient, isolated, barter economy, provided the country's reformists with a major snag: They didn't want to bring their crops to market at all.

Rural education has become another type of land reform in many countries. Local governments, private agencies, and foreign nations -- including the U.S.A. now train agricultural specialist and broadcast radio programs to teach the farmers better methods.

Educating the farmers also benefits the economy as a whole. Mexico and Bolivia are examples of countries which saw crop production drop drastically after reform began -- mainly because of too-small land allotments and backwardness among rural workers. Now many South American countries have shifted the land reform emphasis from equalizing holdings to boosting agricultural income for the entire nation.

Improving the peasant's condition also involves a third reform granting property rights. Giving land to tenants who have worked the landowner's property for a specified period of time is one way to eliminate semi-feudal conditions and indentured labor.

The Inter-American Development Bank says land titling has made the most significant progress of any reform.

Other agrarian programs under way in Latin America include survey of lands, organization of rural cooperatives, and government loans to small farmers. A very limited amount of progress is being made in progressive taxation, which favors small, high-yield farms and discriminates against idle estates.

But a large number of agricultural ills remain uncured by the reforms of the past few years.

Although most Latin American governments supposedly favor land reform, legislators who belong to the privileged classes can build crippling planks into agrarian legislation. Some governments are still required to pay cash for expropriated land--a handicap to reform.

Several years ago, Pedro Beltran, Peru's former prime minister, proposed "agrarian reform" for his country. But some observers say his "noble ideal" was just a plan for moving the Peruvian Indians from the heavily populated valleys to barren, unoccupied land on the mountain slopes.

Even in Mexico, where reform began half a century ago, large estates still exist. Landowners get around the law by "dividing" their estates into many sections, registered in the name of different members of the land's family.

And too many people on too little land seems to be an incurable problem for nations with limited soil suitable for farming. Peru's cultivated land constitues less than 1.5 per cent of the country's total area, and in Mexico, 99 per cent of the arable land is too dry to support crops without expensive irrigation.

The President, addressing the police chiefs' convention, said he didn't believe morality was declining in this country.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

COSTLY CALL TO CAMPUS

Students martriculate at most American colleges and universities in the latter two weeks of September.

THE CALL OF THE CAMPUS grows ever more costly. More than three out of four schools of tertiary learning are raising their charges to students for the new school year. Increases will range from 5 to 9 per cent.

Median rises, according to the Life Insurance Management Association, will run from $47 to $167 over last year's charges. State and other tax-supported coeducational schools will average out at $998 for in-state students and $1,381 for out-of-state students. Private coeducational schools will be charging about $1,976 a year; private men's colleges, $2,273; private women's colleges, $2,199. Highly selective institutions charge much more. Total student costs at Harvard come to $3,170; at Bennington, to $3,850.

Tuition, room, and board are only part of the money structure. Clothing comes high, even in these days of conscious campus slouch. Cars, relatively rare even on Ivy League campuses a quarter of a century ago, are almost de rigueur everywhere now. The U.S. Office of Education estimates extra expenses at an average of $700 to $800 a school year. The Office will send a free pamphlet on budgeting for college in reply to a postcard addressed to Office of Education, Washington, D. C. 20202.

COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES are only passing on to students their own cost increases. Edward Levi, provost of the University of Chicago, estimates that to keep the institution going only at existing levels will mean raising $1 million a week for as long as the university exists. At the present rate of increase, Harvard's tuition, now $2,000, would reach $5,000 by 1978.

At the same time, college attendance continues to rise. The National Geographic Society estimates that 6,541,000 persons will register for credit in institutions of higher learning this fall. More than 500,000 veterans entered training during the first year of the 1966 G. I. Bill. By 1968 the number is expected to rise fo 600,000.

Almost another half million students will be helped through college during the upcoming scholastic year by the National Defense Loan program, according to the Office of Education. Federal support of education mounts rapidly. Editorial Projects for Education estimates that of the 2,200 institutions of higher learning in the United States, about 1,800 participate in one or more federally supported or sponsored programs. Federal money furnished 800,000 scholarships, loans, and work-study grants amounting to well over $300 million.

EASY TERMS for student loans are offered by New York State banks, but elsewhere some bankers are leary of college loans. This year Michigan State University is trying out a new scheme, pegging tuition at roughly 3 per cent of a family's gross income.

A White House advisory panel on education on Sept. 7 suggested a novel approach. A student would borrow up to the full amount of his tuition and subsistence needs from a Federal Education Opportunity Bank. In return he would pledge to pay the government 1 per cent of his annual income for every $3,000 borrowed for 30 years after graduation. Such "learn now - pay later" schemes seem certain to attract support as the cost of college continues to grow.

WHERE WILL THE DISCLOSURES END?

What is the connection between Missouri's junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long, and Roy H. Cohn, who back in the 1950's was one of the two principal henchmen for the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy and since that time has been wheeling and dealing iin all kinds of financial deals?

The question is an interesting one for several reasons.

In the first place, Cohn's antics while a counsel for the McCarthy group eventually helped lead to the Senate censure of the Wisconsin Democrat. Cohn carried a big stick in those days and contributed mightily to an unfortunate era in the nation that has since been called "McCarthyism." Since that time, he, too, has felt the weight of the federal government and has been under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service for some of his financial deals.

Now it develops that Sen. Long's son-in-law, who is 34 years of age, has been named board chairman of a Chicago bank that was part of a financial empire under study by three federal agencies and a federal grand jury. The junior Senator's son-in-law lives in Hannibal, but was selected, presumably by Cohn, to become board chairman of the Chicago bank.

Cohn has been an acquaintance of Sen. Long for the past several years; The Daily Democrat has in its files a picture of Sen. Long, his son-in-law and Roy Cohn, among others, touring the World's Fair at New York. Sen. Long says he became friendly with Cohn when the latter turned up as a friendly witness before the wiretapping subcommittee; it seems strange that an acquaintance could blossom from such a casual event, although our junior Senator seems to have a real penchant for making acquaintances pay dividends, as for example his friendship with Morris Shenker, criminal attorney and Teamster counsel in St. Louis.

To add to the Long-Cohn tie-up, the Chicago bank whose board chairman is Long's son-in-law recently made a $100,000 loan to a small loan company at Fulton, Mo. The owner of the loan company? Edward V. Long.

It is all strange, made even stranger by recent disclosures that our junior Senator apparently received more than $48,000 in a two-year period from the Shenker law firm. One estimate now places the Long-pocketed fees at closer to $80,000.

We can only wonder where the surprising disclosures on the activities of Sen. Long will finally end.

GOLDEN PENNANTS

Spikes of glowing goldenrod will soon paint pictures along country roads, on the hillsides and around the edges of gardens. The color they spread on the landscape is a dominant motif of the pre-autumn patina that spreads aloft hues as a season nears its end.

Goldenrod is a member of the mammoth composite family. Experts say there are 85 species in the United States. Some of the names are interesting: Curved Leaved, Blue Stemmed, Stout, Silver Rod, Alpine, Seaside, Bog, Showy, Sweet, Spreading, and Elm Leaved.

Solidage is the genus name, an ancient Roman word. In olden times the Romans believed goldenrod had healing powers. In the days of Queen Elizabeth, the English imported large amounts which were used as a power to help heal wounds.

There is a species for every type of terrain, for swamps and hillsides, seaside, and rich garden soil. The hue of its blossoms in September blends with the golden hues one sees in sun-cured grasses on the uplands and with the gold-green tinge of leaves in the slanting sun of late afternoon.

It is a common plant and most of us tend to overlook the beauty of plants which are numerous. But it would not be the right ending to summer without the tall, sturdy-stemmed plants that lift golden pennants as the Frost King's legions start moving down from the northland.

In England, gardeners grow the goldenrod in their gardens. Nature freely gives us the golden pennants that brighten the pre-autumn landscape.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Chymbur has a pair of shoes that are four-feet long.

They're special shoes, of course. Used to slide across the surfaces of lakes. Sort of like wearing a personal pontoon bridge.

Chymbur calls them "skeeters". He invented them.

They're on exhibit here this week at the third annual International Inventors and New Products Exposition. The show has drawn some 1,200 inventors from 23 countries with 15,000 products, inventions, ideas and applications, ranging from digestible safety pins made of vegetable base that dissolve if swallowed to instant splints for unexpected bone breakings.

Roger Shashoua, 27-year-old president of Patent Exhibits, Inc., of New York and originator of the exposition, estimated that 95 per cent of those participating in the show were inventors who never had invented anything before in their lives.

"They're plumbers, mailmen, carpenters, almost anything," Shashoua says, "who get an idea they think will improve things. They develop it and then they bring it here in hope of finding a manufacturer."

How many do connect?

"At last year's show, manufacturers paid out about $8.5 million to buy various inventions and ideas," he says. "This year we're expecting the figure to hit $20 million."

Chymbur, a Santa Monica, Calif., waiter who uses his free time to invent, says he spent four years developing his water shoes. But the idea had been with him since boyhood.

Chymbur, who hopes to interest a manufacturer in his invention, says the water shoes are made of a buoyant material with louvers mounted beneath the surface to give traction "so you can slide along."

Not too far from Chymbur, Robert L. Thomas of East Point, Ga., is exhibiting a "personal ashtray"— a device that permits a person to smoke without having to look around for an ashtray.

The device basically is a long tube into which a cigarette is inserted after being lit. As the cigarette is consumed its ashes fall into the tube. When the smoker is done, a slide at the top of the tube is closed and the cigarette puts itself out.

The closed tube can be put into the pocket and carried about with its load of ashes until it is convenient to empty it.

A machine that will punch out three dozen cookies or doughnuts, shaped and ready for the oven, is exhibited by Charles Downing of Janesville, Wis.

"The average small baker does his shaping by hand," says Downing, a former baker. "This machine will put him in competition with the large bakeries" which use machinery.

Downing, whose "automatic baker's machine" measures four feet by four feet, says, "all a baker has to do is push this button, feed in his dough and out it comes ready for baking."

MARITAL SPLIT: REASONS FOR IT

More than 400,000 marriages will fail this year, the Catholic Digest states. For every four couples who vow to stay together until death, one couple decides not to wait that long.

All kinds of people get divorces. Most, though, are under 35, and about half are childless couples who have been married five years or less. The divorces share other characteristics, too. These conditions indicate a greater likelihood of divorce:

1. Urban background.
2. Marriage at 15 to 19 (the teen-age divorce rate is about three times the general rate).
3. Short acquaintanceship before marriage.
4. Parents with unhappy marriages.
5. Lack of attendance at church.
6. Mixed religion.
7. Disapproval of the marriage by relatives and friends.
8. Dissimilarity in social and economic status.
9. Different ideas of husband and wife about marital obligations.

A man walked up to a vending machine, put in a coin and pressed the button labeled "coffee, double cream, sugar." No cup appeared, but the nozzles went into action, sending forth coffee, cream and sugar. After the proper amounts had gone down the drain, the machine turned itself off.

"Now, that's real automation for you," said the man. "This thing even drinks it for you."

NO DRINK FOR CHIEF

An old Indian chief and his wife were guests of honor at a state Izaak Walton meeting held in one of those rambling old summer hotels with thin walls and few bathrooms.

Things finally quieted down for the night and the faithful squad had her chief tucked carefully in bed. But the chief didn't rest well. The dinner had been highly seasoned. Much more so than his usual reservation fare. So every 30 or 40 minutes during the night he would grunt loudly and tell his wife to fetch him a drink. She would dutifully climb out of bed and clump down the corridor after a drink for the chief.

The other guests couldn't help but hear the chief's commands and her journeys and became somewhat annoyed. Towards morning the squad went after water, but returned empty handed. She reported to the chief:

"Ugh, Big Chief get no drink. White lady sit on well, now!"

PAPER FOR TRAVEL: With the sizable and continuing strides being made in the development and marketing of clothing made of non-woven materials, one of the brightest aspects of "disposable" apparel is how easy it will be for the traveler of the future. He or she will be spared the ravages of incapable launderies (and at enormous prices) and will not even have to give up, from sightseeing, the little time it takes to launder their wash-and-wear garments.

NEIGHBORS, NOT FOREIGNERS

It is probable that before too long bulletin boards at a number of major air terminals scattered throughout the nation will be announcing departure and arrival times of direct flights to such exotic sounding places as Hong Kong, Bangkok, Tahiti and many others.

According to recent press releases, a major U.S. international airline is seeking government authority to operate flights from five major East Coast and Midwest cities to the Pacific and the Far East. The best part of the proposed expanded air service from the standpoint of the traveling public are the projected fares. They would be 20 to 30 per cent less than at present. A round-trip excursion from New York to Tokyo, for example, would be offered at $629. New York to Hawaii would cost $400 round trip. New long-range Super-jets will make such service possible. All of this means that the world in effect is becoming smaller and more accessible to the average person.

In the past, a comparative handful of people were able to enjoy the experience of becoming acquainted with the customs and peoples of other lands -- peoples who, in the minds of most individuals, were all lumped together in one category that was somehow suspect. They were "foreigners". It is not too much to hope that one day, instead of foreigners, there will be only neighbors. This has been the dream of pioneers in the world of international air transport for many years.

Why not correct this by a bit of information and a correction of this old system.

P.S. our lawmakers and our Governor should have received this information some time ago.

H.L. Hunt Says

COMPULSORY NON-MILITARY SERVICE

For many months the federal government has been attempting to accustom the American people to a proposal which would be a huge step toward total government control over the lives of individual citizens. Officials throughout the administration are backing the idea of mandatory national service for every American youth; military service for some, anti-poverty, peace corps, or related work for the majority.

If adopted, this plan would require that every American youth, upon reaching a certain age, register with the government. He would then be assigned to one or another of the various federal projects for a specified number of years.

Robert McNamara and Sargent Shriver, among others, support this proposal. Although most Americans are unaware of the plan, a National Service Secretariat has already been created, held meetings, and submitted proposals to the President.

This plan is inherently dangerous. It gives the federal government direct and almost absolute control over the lives of citizens during the years when they would be forced to participate in this program. There would be almost no way for an individual to preserve his freedom to direct his own life.

Adherents of this plan conveniently ignore the cost of organizing and training the young people participating in the program, which would be enormous. More bureaucrats would be needed to administer the program, and more money would be wasted.

But the most critical danger is the amount of power over individuals that such a proposal would place in the hands of government. If our country is to remain free, such power must never be granted. HLH

Doc. Duncan Says

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: Looks like instead of mass production of laws to gouge John O. Public it's high time John O. was wised up to a few good laws in his favor. For example, where a man and his family works, scrimps and saves and acqires an estate then he posses on, if he forms a corporation before hand then his estate passes to his heirs, no tax. no administration. no probate court cost. on the other hand if his estate passes through probate court and an administrator, the cost many times runs to 20% and on top of that many times it is necessary to auction it. then it's at the mercy of the public and for all practical purposes destroyed as a working organization.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Gen. Julius Klein, who finagled Sen. Tom Dodd into being his messenger boy in West Germany, is up to his old operations again.

This time he is trying to arrange for a German company, Rheinmetall, Hitler's second largest arms manufacturer, which used slave labor under the Nazis, to start manufacturing in the United States.

Rheinmetall is a company with few friends in the USA outside of Gen. Klein. Of its five officers, three are former Nazi party members, and its president, Otto Paul Caesar, was a plant manager for Rheinmetall during the war where he used slave labor.

According to Adolph Held, president of the Jewish Labor Committee, "a special camp for Jewish women and girls recruited from Buchenwald by Rheinmetall was built by Rheinmetall at Sommerda in Thuringia. Over 1,200 Jewish women were employed in that camp alone. The evidence is overwhelming that they were forced to work under the most inhumane circumstances."

Gen. Klein, a retired officer of the Illinois National Guard, is a man who wears his religion on his sleeve. He is a former commander of the Jewish war veterans, and in a letter to editors during the Dodd censure debate emphasized eleven times that he is a Jew. Despite this, he has been an eager beaver in trying to arrange for Rheinmetall to operate in the USA.

CONFIDENTIAL MEMO

Rheinmetall is the company which secured a $75 million defense department contract to manufacture the 20 MM Hispano - Suiza rapid - firing cannon in Germany for the U.S. army. The contract was hotly contested, first because it contributed to the closing of the century - and - a - half-old Springfield, Mass., armory, which had been turning out weapons for the American army ever since the revolutionary war; second, because Rheinmetall had not paid the claims of slave labor survivors. Finally, after the defense department held up the contract, Rheinmetall last year paid restitution money to the extent of $600,000.

What Gen. Klein now wants is an arrangement whereby Rheinmetall would manufacture the 20 MM cannon in the United States. To this end he arranged several meetings for Otto Caesar, the ex-Nazi president of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, Diehl. Curtiss - Wright was also approached as a participant.

It's understood that Curtiss-Wright was not interested.

This column has obtained confidential minutes of a meeting held by Gen. Klein in Chicago with Caesar of Rheinmetall, and others. Since Klein is a past master at issuing denials, and may deny this, here are some quotes from his confidential memo, dated May 5, 1967:

"The meeting with the Rheinmetall - Diehl people lasted until 11 o'clock last night. Present were Mrs. Caesar, Mr. Blume and Mr. Flacke of Rheinmetall, and Mr. Diehl and his own right-hand man, Mr. Von Prsychowski (known in the trade as Mr. Von P), and, of course, I.

"It was in my estimation a very good and successful meeting, in which all phases of the future including the present so-called USA - Hocht combine were discussed," Gen. Klein reported.

"Rheinmetall and Diehl have agreed to a joint venture in the U.S., not only on the know-how but possibly also furnishing machinery, technicians, etc., and whatever is necessary for a profitable U.S. venture.

"They are very much interested in Curtis - Wright or a similar firm. . .

ANOTHER KLEIN CLIENT?

"My recommendation that my brother Max and Mr. Wiggins fly over to Germany to discuss the technical aspect and also the possibility of cooperating with Curtiss - Wright or other firms was accepted. They have set the week of June 26 to July 1 for such a meeting. . ."

The Wiggins referred to above is Charles Wiggins, a Washington public relations man who has had a problem with alcohol. He was arrested in the District of Columbia for drunkenness on February 7, 1965.

Klein, of course, was not unaware that if the Rheinmetall-Diehl combine got established in the USA his firm might handle its public relations. The memo stated: "Of course I haven't discussed any extra arrangements for JKPR (Julius Klein Public Relations, Inc.) with Mr. Diehl yet, as after all I do represent Rheinmetall already. But this will be done at a later date after Rheinmetall and Diehl conclude their own agreement and then Mr. Caesar will urge Mr. Diehl to make an agreement with us too. . .

"It was no use for me to discuss this agreement until Rheinmetall and Diehl conclude their own binding agreement."

After further discussing plans to manufacture the Hispano-Suiza 20 MM cannon, Gen. Klein concluded: "This covers in a thumbnail the result of my meeting, and I am satisifed. Of course we will have to discuss all possibilities when I return. I will also be guided by the advice of the Chicago and Washington JKPR staff."

Note: The official position of the Johnson administration regarding Rheinmetall was outlined March 7, 1966, by assistant secretary of state Douglas MacArthur II as follows:

"It appears that of the five present principal officers of Rheinmetall A. G., three were members of the Nazi party during World War II. Of these five members, two, including one of the Nazi party members, were plant managers of Rheinmetall Borsig A. G. during the war. The degree of active involvement in Nazi party activities by the three wartime members is not known."

Blackboard Power Over 2 Million Teachers Is Real Issue in School Strike News.

New York: -- Blackboard power is the name of the game, actually.

When the doors are tightly closed on the chalk - room crowd's inner sanctum, teachers' union leaders talk excitedly about eventually administering a vast single organization of some 2 million instructors -- in parochial as well as public schools, in universities as well as improvised poverty schools.

Basically and bluntly that's why the teachers here hit the bricks. Their leaders were determined that the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers (UFT) would deliver the juiciest contract ever. This would make it the real power bloc in the small parent American Federation of Teachers (AFT) -- which in turn they hope to make the launching pad for the campaign against the 1,030,000 - member National Education Assn. (NEA).

Out of such a foundation could come the thrust for leadership of a "new - breed" American labor movement in a decade or two. Remember that the New York strike leader, UFT president Al Shanker, is 38 years old.

True, there are nasty immediate issues which few here mention publicly in polite society. Some of these issues are the same as those which affect the firemen and telephone workers in high crime areas. The communications repairmen are frightened to go in. So are the teachers. They have long wanted some sort of authority to handle "disruptive students." There is evidence of thousands of incidents involving muggers, rapists, knife wielders, narcotics pushers and the like, right in the corridors. And when the winter comes on with its early darkness, teachers gather for a swift dash to the buses and subways.

Over in one section of Brooklyn, teachers have been reviled with anti - Semitic notes. Letters are left in the instructors' boxes filled with lewd threats. Many a teacher has an unlisted telephone number. These are the printable stories. Some are no.

True, there is a matter of money. But the contracts are short term. What the UFT doesn't get this time, it will get from an insolvent city next time.

The real issue, therefore, is blackboard power among the teachers of the land. Fact is that the AFL-CIO teachers union -- despite all the hubbub and brick pounding -- has not done so well in academic circles.

Back about 1960 the AFT had some 50,000 members. Then came Walter Reuther and his AFL-CIO Industrial Union Dept. They sent in organizers. They put a steady staff into New York. They revamped the AFT's Chicago office. They put militant [illegible] Charley Cogen in a bright new saddle. Since 1961 they have poured in $1.1 million. They did right well in New York where it is impossible not to do right well on the labor front.

They enrolled some 49,000 members. And when they had the original membership and the newcomers all totaled up across the lad, they found they had 140,000. This meant that outside of New York they had picked up about 40,000 dues payers.

And the AFT totaled its contract and found the other day that it has pacts in 41 school districts. Not much compared with the 1,336 exclusive NEA contracts covering 650,000 certified teachers in 45 states. Thus the so-called militant teachers who now are striking regularly under the AFT leadership have 3 per cent of the exclusive bargaining contracts compared with the 93.7 per cent negotiated by the 100-yard-old NEA.

The so-called old lady of the teaching business turns out to be a mighty spry chick. It has not gone to pot with flower power. When the AFT teachers began moving, there was parellel NEA action. The Washington-based association -- housed in a big block - long structure and employing about 1,000 staffers -- began collective bargaining five years ago. These pacts are negotiated by officials of the NEA's 8000 local affiliates in 56 state units.

They can get tough, too, though they don't hit the bricks. In Florida early in June, for example, the Education Assn. voted $100,000 for a campaign to warn industry from moving into the state until the authorities met the teachers' demands. I was in Tallahassee then and inquired to see if they were serious. They certainly were -- and are. In Washington the other day I was told that the Florida Education Assn. still surveyed the state to learn where the big companies were looking for location sites, and then devised strategy for constant contact with the corporations.

"We've contacted such firms as IBM, Union Carbide, etc.," said a spokesman "with telegrams, letters and personal messages to stay out of the state."

The NEA makes no fetish of militancy, however. Under its current president, Braulio Alonso, a Tampa, Fla., high school principal on leave, the huge organization runs a vast enterprise made up of 17 headquarters divisions, 33 departments, one institute, and 25 commissions and committees. It's a professional organization such as the American Medical Assn. And it has no more intention of yielding to the strike-happy unionists than the doctors have of throwing away their stethescopes and loops.

So the struggle goes. Blackboard power will mean -- eventually -- terrific influence over the nation's youth. There is the real issue.

Mrs. Paul Robert Stuckey

Miss Sharon Lee Dennis Weds Paul Robert Stuckey

BENTON -- Miss Sharon Lee Dennis and Paul Robert Stuckey were married in a double ring ceremony Aug. 26, at the Benton Methodist church. The Rev. Albert Gibbs officiated.

Bakets of white gladioli, greenery and an arched candelabra provided the background for the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dennis. Stuckey is the son of Mrs. Viola Stuckey, route one.

Music for the wedding included "Because," "I'll Walk Beside You", and "The Wedding Prayer," sung by Miss Pam Lambert. Miss Luanne Lough, organist, accompanied her.

Candlelighters for the ceremony were Mrs. Gaylon Harper and Miss Diane Swinger. They wore light pink sheath dresses of dotted swiss.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace. The cage fashion dress was floor length with scallops at the hemline and at the edges of the elbow-length kabuka style sleeves. The sabrina neckline was also scalloped. The front of the bodice and sleeves were re-embroidered with seed pearls. A detachable queens train of the same lace fell from the shoulders and swept to chapel length. The edges of the train were also scalloped.

Her headdress was a cluster of rose buds entwined with pearls and organza flowers accented with pearl stamin. Lily of the valley accented the front of the headdress. The veil was two-tiers of hand rolled English silk illusion.

The bride carried a cascade of stephanotis, lily of the valley, and two orchids.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Larry Hopper of Bowling Green who was dressed in a shocking pink floor length gown made of linen. The gown was empire styled and accented with daisies with pink centers at the waist line and again at the hemline.

Maid of honor was Miss Kay Dennis, also a sister of the Bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Cathey of Charleston and Miss Carla Beardslee of Commerce. They wore the gowns like that of the matron of honor made of sugar pink linen.

The bridal attendants carried white colonial holders with pink daises and white streamers. Corsages of white cornations were worn by other women members of the bridal party.

The attendants' headpieces consisted of single pink flowers with nosetip veils attached. The veils were dyed to match their gowns.

Patty Pack and Anita Stuckey, both nieces of the groom, were junior bridesmaids. They wore gowns identical to the bridesmaids in a lighter shade of pink. Their headpieces were identical to the bridesmaids.

Lisa Hopper, niece of the bride, was flower firl. She wore a gown identical to those of the junior bridesmaids. She carried a white lace basket with pink rose petals. Her headpiece was a band of pink flowers accented with pink streamers.

Chuck Stuckey, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. He carried a satin pillow with white streamers.

Best man was Frank Stuckey of Fenton, brother of the groom.

Groomsmen were Randy South of Essex, Dale Stuckey, both nephews of the groom, and Steve Urhahn. Ushers were Larry Hopper of Bowling Green, Ky., and Charles Stuckey of Ballwin, also a brother of the groom.

Mrs. Dennis chose for her daughter's wedding a dress and coat ensemble of imported beige lace. She wore beige shoes and gloves, and carried an evening clutch bag. Mrs. Stuckey selected a dress of pink linen. She wore white shoes and gloves and carried a handbag to match. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the American Legion Hall. Guests were registered by Miss Jane Schiwitz, niece of the groom.

Presiding at the reception table were Miss Barbara Schiwitz, Miss Betty Stuckey, nieces of the groom, and Miss Connie Lovett.

The couple spent their honeymoon at Gatlinburg, Tenn., in the Smoky Mountains.

For travel, the new Mrs. Stuckey selected a light mint green dress of dotted swiss and whip cream. She wore white gloves, white heels, and the two orchids from her bridal bouquet.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Stuckey graduated from Kelly high school. Stuckey is employed at the Scott County Co-op. They will live on route one.

Spradling Tells of Need for More Nurses

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Only in Iowa and Vermont do people live longer than they do in Missouri, State Sen. Albert M. Spradling told a joint meeting of the Licensed Practical Nurses Association and the Registered Nurses Association Tuesday. His remarks on longevity were made in his address on the "New Revolution in Health Care."

Spradling discussed the acute shortage of nurses and pointed out that the salaries of nurses in Missouri are the lowest of any state.

One out of every 10 people in Missouri need treatment, he noted, and said that Medicare - and Medicaid, to be offered beginning Oct. 13 - indicate that nurses will be flooded with demands for their services. It will take 15 years to train enough people for the health care agreed upon through Medicare and Medicaid, he said.

He also noted that a number of hospitals have been closed in Missouri because of a lack of nurses, and that there are few facilities for the care of the aged.

In conclusion he commented on the psychiatric cases which have swelled hospital populations and said that if more people would go to church on Sunday it would do much for the solution of emotional problems leading to illness.

While studying in Boston, I boarded in the home of an elderly couple. The wife had been deaf since childhood. With the persuasion of her doctor, she finally agreed to an operation to restore her hearing.

The day after she came home, I found her in a depressed mood at the breakfast table. Accustomed to her cheerful smile, I asked if something was wrong. "Something certainly is," she replied. "I can't sleep a wink. Fred snores."

Defensive Battle Slated Tonight

The vicious Perryville offense along with its stingy defense converge upon Public School stadium tonight at 7:30 p.m. for a northern conference clash, which shapes up as a defensive battle.

Perryville, who opened its season last week as did the Bulldogs, scored 44 points in its romp over Potosi, while the Dogs shaved off 28 points from the Chaffee squad's defense while holding them scoreless.

Tonight's encounter of Bulldogs against Pirates will be a defensive battle from the start and from there it is no telling what will happen.

Coach George Loss, of Perryville in his first season as head mentor of the Pirates is optimistic about the swift Bulldog backfield.

With such speedsters as Dennis Snelling, Arthur Jackson and Eddie Felker, along with the strong Bruce Farris in the backfield the Bulldogs hold a slight edge over the Pirates.

The starting lineup for the Dogs is expected to be the same on both offense and defense with the exception of Gary Long, who was sidelined for the season in last Friday's game and will be replaced by King Sidwell, a 163-pound senior. Sidwell will be wearing number 82 on the defensive squad.

With the departure of Long, Sophomore Lee Bowman will move into a Bulldog dress uniform in his place. Bowman, 145 pounds, will wear number 30.

Perryville sends eight seniors into tonight's starting lineup.

The Pirates will have three juniors in the backfield in quarterback Jim Taylor and fullbacks Allen Frentzel and Doyle Mahnken.

Perryville's starting offensive unit in weight ranges from 148 pounds in halfback Mike Gotto to their 190-pound center Keith Meyr.

The Pirates used an aggressive aerial attack at Potosi last week and are primed to strike the Dogs the same way

Dennis Fisher of Portageville racked up two touchdowns and four extra points in the Bulldogs 65-0 romp over Manila, Ark. last week and is second in the scoring race, leading the southern division.

The Bluff's Ben Wyatt had a touchdown and four extra points to rack up 10 points for fourth place in the Northern division scoring race, Mike Gotto of Perryville is in third with a TD and five extra points.

Linza Killion of Portageville and Warren Jones of Hayti North are tied for second in the southern scoring race with a pair of touchdowns each and are the only other players in either conference, besides the ones mentioned, to score in double figures on opening night.

With no-conference games being played last week, the individual conference standings this week find five teams in the northern division tied for first place and four tied in the south, with only one team, Caruthersville, not playing.

The defending northern division champs, Poplar Bluff, with a 46-point first night heads the North list with Charleston followed by Perryville with 44 points third and Sikeston fourth, both with 28 points and Cape Central fifth with 21 points. Kennett was the only Northern division team to fail to score last week is in sixth place followed by Jackson with six points All the first five teams in the north held their opposition scoreless last week

Portageville heads the south with 65 points followed by Hayti North with 32 and Dexter is third with 12 points. Malden fourth with six points.

Three teams in the South held their opposition scoreless last week, Malden, Portageville and Hayti North. Caruthersville with no-record is fifth, Chaffee 0-1 is sixth, East Prairie 0-1 is seventh and Ilmo-Scott City, 0-1 is eighth.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

It's time to start this week's high school football guessing game with our little friend Devil as the prep squads move into their second week of action.

We'll not waste any time in going through a lot of details in giving you tonight's outlook. . .

ILLMO-SCOTT CITY at GIDEON -- We're just not sure how this one will come out . . . We do know something for sure. . . and that's one of these teams will post at least one victory this season. . . maybe not tonight but later at this season. We see Illmo as tonight's winner. Illmo-Scott City 7, Gideon 6.

DEXTER at PORTAGEVILLE -- The Bulldogs' offense exploded in Arkansas last week. . . can it explode in Missouri?. . . We think so . . but not enough to beat the Cats. Dexter 13, Portageville 12.

CHAFFEE at EAST PRAIRIE -- Let's say the Red Devils will score and score a victory. Chaffee 19, East Prairie 12.

HAYTI at CARUTHERSVILLE -- The Tigers have been waiting for the Indians' invasion for a week and watched them nurse Gideon last week. . . They'll strike tonight Caruthersville 21, Hayti 7.

PERRYVILLE at SIKESTON -- Either the Bulldogs or Pirates will emerge with number two. . . We see coach Sapp's crew dismantling Perryville's defense and scoring a 28-0 victory.

KENNETT at POPLAR BLUFF -- The Mules are high after their season opening victory and will notch the Indians off their schedule with a rousing victory for their 16th straight. Poplar Bluff 35, Kennett 6.

MALDEN at JACKSON -- The Waves were not so high last Friday and are expected to have their time tonight . . . Malden 13, Jackson 12.

CHARLESTON at METROPOLIS, Ill. -- The Jays are in fine shape and will knock off their Illinois foes. Charleston 20, Metropolis 13.

CAPE GIRARDEAU at CARBONDALE -- This will be a real second test for the Tigers of Coach Dutch Myer. . . They're strong and will return to the Show Me state with a 14-6 victory.

Year For The Indians In MIAA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kenneth Knox heads into his 16th coaching season at Cape Girardeau State with high hopes for his sixth MIAA football championship. Other top contenders in the season which opens Saturday are defending champ Springfield State and Maryville State.

Knox returns 31 of 35 lettermen from the Cape team which finished as runner-up last year, including quarterback Greg Brune, a good passer, and halfbacks Walt Smallwood and John Diepenbrock.

This is why Knox has a good shot at Cape's first crown since 1962. Knox's 15-year record at Cape is 80-57-4. In the same span, Cape was surpassed only by Kirksville State under Maurice Wade, 98-42-2 with eight championships.

Wade resigned after his club failed to win an MIAA game in an injury-filled '66 season. New coach Marvin Braden could have the surprise team of the league. He points out that 13 of his 17 lettermen played on the 1965 league championship club, the fourth in a six year period.

Springfield could be every bit as good as the '66 title team and still miss the crown. Coach Jim Mentis has 23 lettermen and another solid defensive club headed by middle guard Sam McDowell, 6-foot-7, and 328 pounds, and tackle Pat Talburt, 6-4 by 276.

Ivan Schottel begins his fifth year at Maryville with more experience and depth than any previous season. Halfback Joe Spinello and quarterback Don Orlowski head a strong attack. Middle guard Bob Leach is a one.

Both Warrensburg State and Rolla Mines, tied last year for the last two spots, expect to be stronger. Howard Mahanes will have quarterback Ken Brumley for the entire season. He was hurt the last five games of '66. Dewey Allgood has 24 lettermen returning at Rolla, plus some top transfers.

In Saturday's openers, Kirksville plays at Southern Illinois, Onsas A&M at Maryville, Harding, Ark., at Rolla, Warrensburg at Ball State, Cape at Evansville and Springfield at Emporia State.

Night Desk

Our Sports Night desk will be open from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m., each Friday night and Saturday morning during the prep gridiron football season.

All coaches are reminded to call in their game during that time in order to keep receiving their complimentary paper.

New and Unexpected White Sox Rooter

By the Associated Press

The Chicago White Sox, whose ability to win with a minimum of runs is beginning to reach ridiculous proportions, have picked up a new and unexpected rooter.

For the second time in as many days, the White Sox, in fourth place in the tight American League pennant scramble, went into extra innings in a scoreless tie with Cleveland Thursday, and for the second time, they came out winners. The score was 4-0.

Today, the Sox open a three-game series with Minnesota, tied with Boston for the league lead, and the heavy-hitting Twins aren't likely to give Chicago all those extra innings to get some runs.

Somebody who hopes the Sox score early and often is Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers, who are in third place, a game behind Boston and Minnesota.

"This is the first time all year I'll be rooting for Stanky," said Kaline of Chicago Manager Eddie Stanky. The Tigers have no more games left with the Twins and must depend on the other clubs to help out by beating the front-runners.

In the only other major league game scheduled Thursday, Atlanta beat the New York Mets 5-4 in the National League.

Chicago and Cleveland, who went 17 innings Wednesday before the White Sox won 1-0, seemed ready to do it again Thursday.

Cisco Carlos, a rookie pitcher just up from Indianapolis, was performing brilliantly on the mound, but the Chicago bats were silent, as is often the case.

Carlos didn't allow a single man past second base for the Indians and surrendered only five hits. Meanwhile, three Cleveland hurlers— Steve Hargan, Stan Williams and Orlando Pena— stopped the Sox until the fateful 10th.

Singles by Ron Hansen and Duane Josephson and an intentional pass to Smoky Burgess loaded the bases with one out. Ken Boyer struck out, but then Pena delivered a grand slam home run ball to Don Buford and that ended it.

Chicago now is 2½ games behind the front-runners, a difficult but hardly impossible situation to recover from.

The Braves beat the Mets on Mike de la Hoz' two-run single in the ninth. Hank Aaron and Mack Jones homered for the Braves and Ed Kranepool hit a three-run shot for the Mets.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club has indirectly banned the controversial turbine car in next year's Indianapolis 500-mile race, but the car's owner and builder says it will be entered anyway.

Anthony Granatelli told the Los Angeles Times: "I have no intention of running any other car. I will be there with the same car . . . the same engine and the same chassis."

In the 1967 race the Granatelli jet car piloted by Parnelli Jones had bearing trouble and was forced out. But the USAC later ruled the car ineligible by placing limitations on the turbine engine.

Granatelli indicated Thursday he might file a lawsuit against the USAC if it does not lift the restrictions.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Walter Bond, 29, former first baseman-outfielder for the Houston Astros baseball team, died of leukemia Thursday. Bond was traded to the Minnesota Twins in the spring of 1966. But his best year in the major leagues was with Houston in 1964 when he drove in 85 runs, a club record which stood for three years.

---

BOSTON (AP)— Tony Conigliaro, star Red Sox outfielder, is out for the remainder of the American League season because of blurred vision since he was hit on the head by a pitched ball last month.

---

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Owner Charles O. Finley of the A's made his first official move toward requesting permission to move the club by notifying the city manager Thursday that he doesn't intend to exercise his option to renew the lease on Municipal Stadium.

---

LONDON, Ont. (AP) — The Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League received good news Thursday night when defenseman Bobby Orr reported to training camp.

Orr, injured in an exhibition game at Winnipeg this summer, had a cast removed from his right leg last week and has been doing light exercises since that time.

Friend's Lie About Injury Puts Office Worker on Spot

Dear Ann Landers: I need some advice and fast. A woman I work with telephoned me at the office this morning and said she would not be in because she was "seriously injured in an auto accident." I asked how she could be phoning if she was "seriously hurt." She replied, "I'm not REALLY hurt, Dummy. A taxi brushed my leg so I laid down in the street and said my back was killing me. I'm going to collect enough insurance to go to Europe for two months."

When I asked her how she planned to get away with such a phony stunt she replied, "It's easy. Back injuries are hard to prove or disprove. The insurance companies would rather pay off than go through a jury trial. Public sentiment is with the little guy, you know." Then she said, "I have to hang up now and start moaning. The nurses will be in any minute to take me for X-rays."

I am thoroughly disgusted with this crook and have a strong inclination to tip off the cab company or the insurance company. My husband says, "Stay out of it." I told him I was going to write to you and take your advice. What is it? --- HATE CHISELERS

Dear H. C.: Stay out of it. But don't think for a minute your friend is going to get away with anything. The insurance companies see these crooks every day. They know all the tricks. Eventually they'll catch up with her and when they do she'll be a plenty sad apple.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print my letter for the benefit of the mother who has the diabetic child and is determined to keep his illness a secret because she wants him to feel "normal."

If the boy goes into insulin shock and no one knows what is wrong with him, the mother will wish everyone in the world knew about his illness so someone could help him.

Please print my letter, Ann. I would hate to think that a little boy might die because of his mother's ignorance.--HILLSBORO

Dear H.: I didn't realize how common diabetes was among youngsters until that letter appeared. Hundreds of mothers of diabetic children have written as you did. My thanks to you all.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman who works to support herself and her child. A very fine gentleman has asked me out several times these past few months and I have had to engage a sitter to stay with my little girl.

Last week the gentleman offered to pay the sitter but I refused. Some friends with whom I have discussed this problem (it is a problem because I am on a tight budget) say I should not be bashful about accepting the gentleman's offer. He is not wealthy but money is not the problem with him that it is with me. What is your advice? ---FLAT PURSE

Dear Flat: A lady pays her sitter, even though the gentleman offers, and is loaded. If the lady should become engaged to the gentleman, the situation changes, and so does the advice.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers booklet, "Necking And Petting -- What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Auto Insurance Blacklist Cases Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are taking a close look at automobile insurance companies which privately discourage business with people ranging from construction workers to clergymen.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., is reportedly concerned that increasing numbers of people face insurance rejection or high risk rates on one hand, and state automobile coverage requirements on the other.

The House Judiciary Committee is surveying 20 major automobile insurance firms for information in a preliminary inquiry which could lead to a full, public probe.

Hart's Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee has obtained a dossier of the guidelines set down for agents by 23 insurance companies.

It covers instructions in effect as of March 31. The firms represented list a wide variety of occupations as undesirable for auto insurance.

Dean E. Sharp, assistant counsel to the Senate subcommittee, said the dossier in that panel's files indicates many companies automatically prohibit sale of insurance to people rejected or canceled by other companies.

Thus, he said, each company's undesirable list applies to most of the others. "This amounts to a blacklist," he said.

Vatican Turns Away Miniskirt Wearers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Papal gendarmes have begun turning away females wearing miniskirts in places of worship and other sites in the Vatican.

Women baring too much thigh were politely barred Thursday from St. Peter's Basilica, the Sistine Chapel and the Vatican museum.

Consulate Seizure Protested

LONDON (AP) — Britain has protested Red China's seizure of its 116-year-old consulate in Shanghai and plans a formal note demanding compensation and restating British rights to the property.

The British Foreign Office said the Shanghai Revolutionary Committee seized the consulate Sept. 9.

The big walled compound was unmanned at the time, Consul General Peter Hewett having been forced to leave with his family last May after he was mauled and smeared with glue by rampaging Red Guards.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia assailed Mao Tse-tung for letting his Red Guards violate diplomatic immunity by attacking foreign embassies and mistreating diplomats.

Moscow radio declared that Mao had purged more than half the members of his Communist party central committee but was still unable to bring China under control. The broadcast said there was evidence that anti-Mao elements have in fact "grown to assume great power."

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said a Red Chinese paper has accused the wife of President Liu Shao-chi of having her enemies roasted, frozen and hanged upside down. Liu's wife, Wang Kuang-mei, has been the target of a number of attacks, apparently as a means of hitting at Liu.

A new museum is opened somewhere in the United States every 3.4 days, according to estimates.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) Lt. Joe Tranchini, who played for Navy teams from 1957-59, will get a chance to see the Midshipman who may break his football records this season.

Tranchini is currently assigned to the U. S. Naval Academy's science department. Likely record breaker is quarterback John Cartwright.

Joe and John share touchdown marks at Navy, both having tossed 10 TD passes in a season and three in a single game.

The POWER of FAITH

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

Lt. Col. Robert Rushworth has flown closer to the stars than any man except the astronauts. He served over eight years as a test pilot for the Air Force-NASA X15 research program—and believes his faith helped him accomplish his many successful flights.

Rushworth, who also flew 178 combat missions in World War II, took the experimental rocket plane aloft 36 times and reached heights of nearly 54 miles. He piloted the aircraft—which flies fastest and highest of all winged craft—more often than any of the ten other men who have flown the plane during the program.

Rushworth believes that his work with the X15 was a service to his faith. He reflects, "I like to feel that it might bring world peace sooner, because the world is being united through faster transportation."

Optimist Buddy League Boys See Cards Lose

A trip to watch the high flying St. Louis Cardinals in their race for the 1967 National League pennant, isn't easy if you take two bus loads of nine to 15-year-old boys.

It took the newly formed Optimist club one week to arrange such a trip and bring everyone back safely. The boys played in the optimist sponsored Buddy baseball league last summer at Dancler Park.

The 360-mile round trip Wednesday entailed a bit of maneuvering. With the cooperation of the Community Action Agency transportation became easy.

First there is a committee to make arrangements for tickets. The committee was successful in obtaining free tickets for 60 boys and 10 adult supervisors -- all in the knothole bleachers.

Optimists Wives prepared 20 dozen sandwiches.

There were bananas, apples and cookies, and 10 cases of soft drinks.

There was the problem of how to handle 60 boys without losing any. This master planning was in charge of Louis Wiggins, manager of the League.

The boys taken from Sikeston in cars to a Cape Girardeau shopping center parking lot where they boarded two buses.

The Philadelphia Phillies shut out their favorite team, 3 to 0.

Optimists, who made the trip, were John Harper, Larry Harshbarger, Glenn Greene, Leo Schade, Allen Malcolm, C. D. Alcorn, Ted Elliott, Russell Ross, Don Baker and Jerry Obermark, a guest.

Judges Propose Changes in Way Counties Run

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Second Class County Judges Association is proposing changes in legislation that affect the operation of county government in Missouri.

They want legislation raising the maximum tax levy for county general revenue above the present 50 cent ceiling. At the same time they seek a raise in the levy for county road and bridge work above the present 35 cent limit.

The judges also want to shorten the length of time required to advertise for bids and raise the amount requiring competitive bidding from $500 to $1,000. Other proposals would do away with special road districts, make payment of gasoline taxes direct to the county without state inspection and make uniform the amount the state pays to counties for welfare patients.

The Missouri County Judges Association begins a two-day meeting here today. The second class county judges will ask support from the state organization for their proposals.

Gasoline Hose Foils Robbery

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two would-be bandits tried to rob Harvey L. Bearce, 55, at a service station.

Bearce was pumping gas into the tank of their car when one of the men grabbed him. The attendant turned the gasoline hose on both men to defend himself.

Doused with gasoline they fled to their car and drove off.

Bearce was treated for a cut on the head.

Drawings Reveal Children's View Of Doctors

NEW YORK (AP) — The blank piece of framed art paper was entitled "My Doctor."

Leslie Garrison, 9, filled it in with a smiling face at the end of a giant syringe. Lori Levine, 6, placed a stick figure in a big pink heart and wrote: "I Love You Dr. Gillman."

These were just two of about 1,000 drawings made by children who were patients of New York area physicians this summer. The Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York wanted to find out whether the youngsters were happy with their physicians.

Michele Savron, 6, of the Bronx, drew a doctor in a white coat with a big smile and dangling blue earrings.

Many of the drawings, sketched in about half of the plan's 31 medical centers, picture doctors as happy, friendly brightly colored figures in neat, detailed offices.

Milton Gold, director of subscriber relations for the health plan, said the art expressed "all the typical attitudes of children" — from love of the doctor to a common fear of needles and, for the 6- to 8-year-olds, a preoccupation with bright examining lights.

Another purpose of the drawings was to keep children waiting for appointments entertained. So they were given colored pencils, crayons and art paper and a chance to win a prize for the "most interesting drawing."

The judge's panel decided it was impossible to pick only a few winners. It awarded 20 first prizes and 70 second prizes.

"We will also give 944 honorable mentions, so there will be no losers," Gold said.

Whips Key Figures in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends sat alongside the center aisle, counting his troops and making a mental note of the absentees.

On the Democratic side, Whip Hale Boggs stood at the rear of the chamber with two aides, making a list of Democrats present and voting.

The vote on an amendment to the foreign aid bill complete, Arends and Boggs disappeared into their respective cloakrooms to telephone absent members and urge them to come to the floor.

A similar scene takes place in the House during most major legislative battles. Arends and Boggs, as whips of their parties, have the jobs of getting enough members to the floor to uphold their parties' positions.

There have been whips in Congress since the turn of the century, and the British Parliament has had them since 1770. The term stems from the "whipper in" who was the man in a fox hunt responsible for keeping the hounds from leaving the pack.

Arends, 71, silver-maned Illinoisan who is the senior GOP member of the House, has been his party's whip since 1943, longer than any man in history. An effort to replace him in 1965 failed and he is considered solidly entrenched now.

Boggs, 53, holds his position by appointment of the speaker and the majority leader, unlike Arends who is elected by the GOP membership. The youngest member of the House when first elected at 26, the Louisiana Democrat has held his post since 1962.

Each operates through deputy and assistant whips. Arends has three deputies-- Reps. William H. Bates of Massachusetts, Jackson E. Betts of Ohio and Burt L. Talcott of California—while Boggs has a single deputy, John E. Moss of California. Under them are assistant whips, serving states or regions, 14 for the Republicans and 19 for the Democrats.

While Arends has to contend with up to 30 potentially balky members on most issues, Democrats have 70-80 Southerners plus some conservative border staters who frequently line up with the Republicans to oppose administration proposals.

Twice this year, on a measure to increase the national debt limit, Republicans were solidly opposed, so Democrats had to rely on Southerners to get the bill through. The first time they failed, but the second time they succeeded.

About once a month, Republicans hold a conference of the entire membership under chairman Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, often to discuss controversial issues on which the party is split.

Democratic policy, like that of any party in power, follows the lead of the White House.

On major issues, both party whips poll their memberships, through the assistant whips, to see where the votes lie. Then they can use what Arends calls "persuasion" on the doubtful members.

When crucial amendments come up on the floor, the whips put in "whip calls" to summon their members. Arends and Boggs estimate they can get their troops to the floor in about 15 minutes.

Driver Arrested for Leaving Load of Hogs Without Water

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Iowa truck driver was arrested for leaving a truckload of hogs on a lot for 18 hours without water.

Police said seven of the 155 hogs in the truck trailer died of suffocation and 10 were injured.

The driver, Don Russell of Beaman, Iowa, an employe of Reisinger Trucking of Eldora, Iowa, was booked suspected of cruelty to animals.

Police said Russell was transporting the hogs from Eldora to stock yards in East St. Louis, Ill., when his truck developed mechanical trouble.

Russell unhitched the trailer and drove the tractor to a repair shop.

An anonymous caller advised the Humane Society of the situation about midmorning Wednesday and a fire truck was sent to the lot to water the animals.

Everyman's Walls Original Prints on

By NADEANE WALKER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — London swings in the art world, too.

Alecto-Graphics is the group that aims to stir things up and popularize modern art for everybody.

Tucked away in a glass walled building behind London's huge air terminal is one of the liveliest and most exciting art centers anywhere.

Here they're plotting a revolution — to sweep those banal copies of pictures off living room walls and clap original prints in their place.

"We like to think of ourselves as the paperbacks of the art publishing world," says Eric Ayres, a founding director of the print publishers. At from $25 to $300 (and up), these prints are hardly in the paperback price range, but each is a signed original by a front rank artist, published in limited editions of not more than 100 each.

What makes Alecto-Graphics something special — besides the fact that it claims to be the only place in the world equipped to turn out all three major types of prints lithograph, silk screen and woodcut — is the experimental work it is encouraging in half a dozen fields. As Ayres says, "We aim to act as a catalyst for artists to branch into other processes."

There are even living quarters for artists, giving the center some of the atmosphere of a new Bauhaus school.

It's all happening here a downstairs showroom buzzes with interior decorators and gallery buyers choosing prints next door in a mail room miniskirted girls are dealing with orders from all over Europe, while in studios above, artists bend over acid etching baths or manhandle the heavy print presses, some of them weighing over two and a half tons.

"None of your weedy weaklings here," a director laughed. "Our artists have to be strong. At least one goes off on regular health courses. Of course, the boys help the girls when it comes to working the presses."

It all started six years ago when a new university graduate bet a friend that he could sell anything. His friend reckoned that an original picture would be the hardest thing to sell, so the gambler wrote to a well-known institution asking if they would like to buy a lithograph of their buildings.

Back came the answer, "We want two."

The friends were dumbfounded. "We didn't even know any artists," Ayres recalls now. "Anyway, we wrote to half a dozen other places, got commissions and started rounding up artists to fill them."

AT LONDON'S Alecto-Graphics, Ian Lawson examines a lithograph.

Alecto-Graphics was the result. It has doubled its business every year, set up a gallery in New York and has some 60 artists under contract for prints, including France's Dubuffet and Americans Joe Dine and Claes Oldenburgh.

They also have one American director, Terence Benton of Kansas City. Other directors include the Honorable Robert Erskine (founder), Paul Cornwall-Jones, architect, BBC producer Michael Deakin, and Joe Studholme, a banker. James Madge designed their glass-walled building, which cost a quarter of a million pounds and is still expanding.

The showroom is not open to the public, but TV star David Frost came in with his interior decorator before last Christmas and bought several thousand dollars worth of prints for his new apartment. The luckiest buyers are those who got David Hockney prints at $750 three years ago. One of them just changed hands for over $2,000.

The investment angle is obviously an important one, and Alecto-Graphics say the Hockney prints are not an isolated example. They are particularly proud of producing the works of Chris Prater who is accounted the best silk screen printer in the world. Their best seller is Richard Beer, whose monochrome etchings start at $25.

The print resurgence started in America after the war, Ayres admits, and America remains their best market.

Most of the monster presses are old ones which had fallen idle. They collected them from Wales, from a London junkyard, even one from New York. They are so heavy that they require a specially reenforced floor, and would be too clumsy for an artist's studio at home.

One thing the art center has never lacked since its establishment is artists. Many more than it can handle want to work there, but the directors say they are always on the outlook for new talent.

It's all aimed at the demand for multiple originals from a sophisticated public." Everybody, they say, would like to own an original. Not everybody can afford an original painting, but original prints are in the reach of most pocketbooks.

SUMMER SALADS GO FORMAL, INFORMAL

Whether you're planning a party for the bride or just want to treat your family to something new in salads this summer, the story provides you with salads that are easy to make for family meals, yet attractive enough to serve at more formal occasions. Tomato Juice Aspic, always refreshing warm weather fare, is a cinch to make with tomato juice, gelatin and mayonnaise. As mouth-watering as they look are Curry Rice Stuffed Tomatoes with a mixture of chicken and yellow rice. Set each tomato on a leaf of lettuce for an elegant salad or appetizer. Crabmeat Salad with lettuce, hardboiled eggs, tomatoes and olives is an ideal entree for a luncheon. Decorations like a tiger lily or dainty parasols can give your table a party look. Finger sandwiches with your favorite fillings accompany the salads to round out a family lunch or a festive luncheon. A salad bowl full of tasty tips tossed up for you.

ISRAEL'S BORDERS

have changed significantly since the nation's birth in the 1948 partition of Palestine. The United Nations partition plan, accepted by Israel but rejected by the Arabs, split the territory equally between the new Jewish state and Arabs with Jerusalem internationalized. In the first Arab-Israeli war that followed, Israel gained considerable ground, including Jerusalem's New City. Jordan held the historic Old City. In the 1956 round, the Syrian and Jordanian fronts remained quiet while Israel overran Egypt's Sinai Peninsula. She withdrew after international assurances that included open navigation of the Gulf of Aqaba, commanded by the Egyptian strongpoint of Sharm El Sheikh. Egypt's blockade of the gulf touched off the latest clash. Israel again occupies Sinai plus all of Jerusalem and large chunks of Jordan and Syria. This time she indicates she intends to hold on to key points.

The Mess sergeant was among the Army's best. His kitchen was a model of cleanliness and efficiency, and inspection by the brass never made him nervous. One day he was stirring up a concoction calling for lots of fresh eggs, and was adding them six at a time. He took three in each hand, broke them on the side of the pot with one crack, shook them into the mixture, and tossed the shells over his shoulder.

The inspecting officers happened to arrive just at this time and, after watching with great interest, one of them asked, "Sergeant, what if you get hold of a bad egg?"

Without missing a motion, the sergeant replied, "A gad egg, sir? In the Army, sir?"

PUBLIC NOTICE

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 and 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6 inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutters on E. Kathleen Street from Selma to Dona Streets, in accordance with plans and specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.60 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not on a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of September, 1967. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

McGees at Home on Ranney

50 years ago
September 15, 1917

Mrs. Lily McGee and daughters returned from Kewanee Saturday and took possession of their home on North Ranney. Dr. Stewart and family who had resided in the house during the summer months, are now living in the Kevil house on Gladys street.

Mrs. J. H. Baugher entertained on Wednesday evening in honor of her daughter Estelle's birthday. The guests were: The Misses Lucy Young, Cornitha Simlar, Josephine Robinson, Irma Clodfelter, Mary Gill, Ruby Violet, and the Messrs. George Eggerman of Cape Girardeau, Don Vowels, Roger Bailey, Pleas Malcolm, Herman Sanders, E. Berger, Raymond Marshall and Albert Malone.

Walter Kendall and his family arrived last Saturday from St. Louis to again reside in Sikeston. They moved to the city almost two years ago.

Mrs. F. E. Early is having a large house and barn built on one of her farms rented by Robert Limbaugh. Mr. Depley of Bertrand, is the contractor.

The Prayer

From

The Upper Room

In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion. (Psalm 71:1)

PRAYER: O God, whose voice the prophet did not hear in earthquake, wind, or fire, but in the breath of a light whisper, we turn aside from the clangor and turmoil of work, trade, and traffic, to listen quietly to Thee. Speak now to our hearts and let us feel the kindling of Thy love. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

Sidney Poitier Says Oscar Makes Difference

SIDNEY POITIER, Academy Award-winner for his performance in "Lillies of the Field," offers another brilliant and moving performance in the new metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, "A Patch of Blue."

"It's been a long road to this moment."

These were the only words Sidney Poitier could muster when, in 1964, he was presented the most coveted of all acting awards, the "Oscar."

Where Poitier stands today, no Negro has been before, excepting the late Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy Award for her supporting performance in "Gone with the Wind."

This brilliant young actor makes his latest appearance in Metro-Goldwwy-Myer's "A Patch of Blue," in which he portrays a man whose compassion for a blind white girl helps her to see the world for the first time through his eyes. The picture also stars Shelley Winters, with newcomer Elizabeth Hartman playing the blind heroine.

The picture comes to the Rex Theater Sunday for four days.

In 1943, a barefooted Sidney Poitier left his Bahama family to come to the United States, where he got his first glimpse of running water, electric lights and automobiles. Today he is universally acknowledged as the finest Negro actor of the American theatre.

Can one factor be responsible for catapulting a career to such heights? Poitier replies to the loaded question without hesitation. "The Oscar I received is the greatest single thing that has happened to me since I started my acting career," he asserts. "Doors have been opened to me that I never expected. I no longer have to search for a role. Perhaps even more important, I now can say 'no' to mediocre parts and I've said 'no' for the past year since 'Lillies of the Field.'"

On his return to Hollywood for "A Patch of Blue," Poitier commented on his absence from the motion picture scene.

"I finally got around to doing some of the things I have always wanted to do, go places I've wanted to go. I had always dreamed of a trip to Europe and the Orient, so I decided to get out and take advantage of the opportunity to see some of the world.

"Oriental religions and philosophies, such as Zen Buddhism and Confucianism, have long interested me and what better way to find out about them than being right on the spot? So I visited India and Lebanon, as well as Europe. I even made it back to my native Bahamas. You should have seen the welcome I received in Nassau. I saw friends I had not seen in twenty-five years.

"Several producers had scripts they wanted me to read, but I figured if they wanted me badly enough they could wait a year or so. And sure enough, after I got back from this trip the offers were still there. I would probably have never had the chance if I hadn't received that Oscar."

Poitier's great demand is exemplified by the fact that "A Patch of Blue" is the first of six scheduled films for the actor.

If You Were the Judge

Error Can Be Costly

When Myron drove into Elmer's gas station, Elmer took a good look at him and decided that he had seen his picture hanging up in the local post office as a "Wanted" criminal. Quickly, he drained all the water out of Myron's car and called the police.

When they arrived, however, they found not "Wanted" criminal only Myron chasing Elmer all around the gas station in an effort to get Elmer to put the water back in the car.

"I'm sorry," Elmer apologized, "but I thought Myron was Killer Diller, a notorious criminal."

Not satisfied with an apology, Myron sued Elmer for false imprisonment.

"That's nonsense," was Elmer's answer. "I didn't imprison him. In fact, thinking he was a criminal, I would have been the last person in town to try to catch him. While I'm public-spirited, I'm also a coward."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Elmer pay Myron for falsely imprisoning him?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that false imprisonment is an illegal detention; that by draining the water out ot Myron's car, Elmer illegally prevented Myron from leaving the gas station. And, concluded the judge, while Myron could have left himself, he was not required to leave without his car.

Letters to the Editor

Editor
The Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801
Dear Sir:

We want to express our thanks and appreciation for the supply of the 1967 Pigskin Preview of The Daily Standard you sent our coaches and a copy to each number of our football team and made them available to our student body. We will hand the rest of them out at the gates at our first football game on September 18.

The edition is well planned, easily read, the pictures good, and the contents interesting. It certainly was well received and was very popular with our teachers and students.

Sincerely,

Locomotive Seizure Wins Admirers for Chattanooga Mayor

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Mayor Ralph Kelley, who directed Chattanooga's seizure of the famed civil war locomotive, the General, says he has received letters of support from all over the nation. One letter, Kelley said, read:

"Legal schmeagal, we're with you, baby. Even if you lose, you got class."

The General has been placed under wraps here while its future is being determined in court battles between the city and Georgia.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Sept. 15, the 258th day of 1967. There are 107 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1959, Premier Nikita Khrushchev arrived in Washington to begin a 13-day visit to the United States.

In 1789, the U.S. Department of Foreign Affairs changed its name to the "Department of State."

In 1857, William Howard Taft, the 26th president of the United States, was born.

In 1935, the Nazis enacted the Nuremberg laws, starting off a program of violent religious and racial persecution.

In 1938, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain flew to Berchtesgaden, Germany to talk with Adolf Hitler.

In 1949, Dr. Konrad Adenauer became the first chancellor of West Germany.

Ten years ago the U.N. General Assembly voted to condemn the Soviet Union's suppression of the 1956 revolt in Hungary.

Five years ago the Justice Department accused two Russian U. N. employes of spying.

One year ago the Gemini eleven astronauts came down to a bulls eye landing in the Atlantic after three historic days in space.

The Texan struck oil. With his new riches he built an enormous mansion with three swimming pools. One pool he keeps filled with cool water and one with warm water. The third he keeps empty. Pressed by a visitor for an explanation, he replied airily, "Oh, quite a few of my friends can't swim, you know." Catholic Digest.

Metal Brain Probe Designed at Shop

COLUMBIA -- A metal brain probe used in the treatment of Parkinson's disease is among exotic instruments designed at the Science Instruments Shop at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

Such an instrument delicate enough for this operation could not be purchased on the market. It consists of three metal tubes, one of them creating a vacuum around the third that carries liquid nitrogen at temperatures as low as 80 degrees below zero for brain treatment.

The MU Shop was organized in 1955 to originate designs for specialized research equipment not available elsewhere. Basic research investigates into unknown fields and naturally no research equipment is manufactured for such activities.

The probe was one of about 800 pieces of apparatus completed last year to fit the needs of researchers in such departments as chemistry, physics, botany and zoology.

Recently, the 12-man machinist crew spent about 6,000 man hours building and installing equipment totaling about 9 tons in the nuclear reactor on campus. Included were a time of flight spectrometer, a two-beam collimator, and a saddle and saddle plug to be used with a triple axis neutron diffractometer, an instrument manufactured by Mitsubishi of Japan. The saddle and plug are used as a shielding device to bring neutron beams out of the reactor housing radio - active material into reserach instruments. The collimator acts as a pathway to bring the neutron beams out.

Some equipment the shop has designed and built include an instrument to test the toughness of shortening in pie crust, radiation storage equipment, experimental animal cages, electrodes with head holders used to detect brain waves, and a navigator training instrument.

The navigation instrument was built under a grant from the Air Force. This instrument simulated a plane flying, 1,000 miles an hour at 40,000 to 50,000 feet. The navigator was given a course to fly and a target on which to drop a bomb. The instrument would project how close the bomb came to the target. The purpose was to see how well the subject acted under stress of simulated flying conditions.

The machinists improvise unlimitless specialized equipment. They operate such machines as engine lathes which produce rotating material of different sizes and shape to turnings of .0005 to .001 of an inch; vertical and horizontal milling machines which remove metal from .0005 of .001 of an inch to shape parts into some desired form; surface precision grinding of a flat surface to a highly polished finish plus or minus .0005 or .0002 of an inch; presses for drilling holes to high precision locations; and, according to John Snell, shop supervisor, welding rare metals of which most industrial welders have never heard.

Ordinarily, a machinist requires four years of apprenticeship and the top bracket, a tool and dye maker requires another four years of experience before they are recognized as proficient. The tool and dye maker designs the stamping dies and molds which produce the various parts of a piece of equipment.

The Missouri crew consists of: Charlie Dawson, machinist, Sturgeon; Raymond Fenton, machine maintenance, 703 Washington Ave.; Joe Dothage, design draftsman, Route 4; Maurice Howe, storeroom keeper, Shady Lake Estate Trailer Court; Glenn Miller, shop foreman, 2503 Bear Creek Dr.; Carl Hicken, machinist, 1600 Caniff Circle; John Christianson, machinists, 615 Pershing Road; Earl Barrett, machinist, Sturgeon; Jerry Hudnell, machinist, Route 1; David Taylor, machinist, Centralia; Carl Milner, welder, Stephens, Mo.; and John Snell, shop supervisor, 2407 Braemore.

In their spare time, the University shop has produced some of their special designs for Australia, Canada, Egypt, Nova Scotia, Alaska, and they have an order waiting now for Thailand.

Mrs. Jennie Stubblefield

Member of Pioneer Family Dies at 91

Mrs. Jennie Marshall Stubblefield, 91, 319 North New Madrid, a member of one of Sikeston's pioneer families, died at 4 p.m. Thursday at Shuffits Nursing Home 3.

She had been a patient there three months.

Mrs. Stubblefield was born Aug. 21, 1876, in Calloway county, Ky.

She was the daughter of William and Mary Matthews Marshall, pioneer residents of Scott County in the early 1830s. Her grandparents, James and Millie Flanigan Marshall, were residents of Scott county more than 140 years ago.

Mrs. Stubblefield was married March 15, 1905, to the late William H. Stubblefield Sr., a farmer and landowner of Scott county.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. J. E. Harper Sr., Mrs. L. H. Groves Sr., and Miss Lucille Stubblefield, all of Sikeston; three grandsons and one granddaughter, and four great grandchildren.

Although inactive in recent years, Mrs. Stubblefield was a staunch member of the First Methodist church. She was a member for 62 years. She was active in the former Co-Workers church organization and the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Welsh Funeral Home, with the Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in City cemetery.

Stoddard Fair Set For Sept. 25-30

DEXTER - The Stoddard County Fair will open Sept. 25, and will continue through Sept. 30.

Two changes have been announced by the fair board in the scheduling of the events, according to W. L. Arnold, secretary. The Miss Stoddard County and Little Miss Stoddard County pageant will be held this year at the high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

The second change will be the FFA pig scramble which has been announced for Sept. 26, but will be held on Sept. 25, at 9 p.m. at the arena.

These two important changes--the beauty pageant Sept. 26 and the FFA pig scramble on Sept. 25, -- will lead off the week.

Throughout the days through the week various entries in livestock, field crops, home economics, etc. will be made.

The parade, will begin at 6 p.m. and will march down Stoddard Street. Preceding the parade, at two p.m., a special kids matinee is being planned and at 8 p.m., Sept. 28, a new attraction is expected to draw many spectators when a Shetland pony show will be staged.

The final day of the fair, Saturday, has been designated as "Dexter Homecoming Day."

Cruelty to Animals Charge Against Four Bullfighters Dismissed

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) -- Magistrate Tudor M. Nellor dismissed a charge of cruelty to animals against four Mexican matadors Thursday.

They had been charged in connection with bloodless bullfights at the Wyandotte County fairgrounds during the Labor Day weekend.

The complaint was filed by Lyman Ray of Wichita, president of the Kansas Federation of Humane Societies, who testified before Judge Nellor that he saw the bulls prodded with spike-pointed banderillos. Ray could not identify the matadors who used the instruments.

Nellor said bulls had pretty tough hides, and there was no evidencd that they were bleeding or were tortured.

The matadors, Salvadore Galgin, 40; Tico Sauceda, 29; Manuel Chacon, 35, and Jesus Guerra, 35, have returned to Mexico to meet other bullfight commitments.

Ray was arraigned before Nellor Thursday on a state trespassing charge pressed by one of the promoters, Charles L. Goodman. Ray pleaded innocent and was released under $500 bond until his hearing Sept. 23.

the Department of Housing and Urban Development which would have authority to borrow $500 million from the Treasury to help pay the premiums and meet catastrophic flood losses.

The bill, now headed for House consideration, would limit federal aid to $2.5 billion of insurance on homes, with a maximum of $15,000 protection on a dwelling unit and $5,000 on its contents.

Congress enacted a similar flood relief bill in 1956 but never provided the financing for it.

The new plan calls for sale of the insurance through private firms, with the insurance industry contributing $50 million to the pool to cover massive flood losses.

J.C. Penney Rates Pluck Over Luck

NEW YORK (AP) — James Cash Penney, interviewed on the eve of his 92nd birthday, says he doesn't believe in luck. 'Put a P in front of it," the founder of the great retail chain of more than 1,600 stores advised.

Penney, one of 12 children of a Hamilton, Mo., farmer and preacher, said he will spend his birthday Saturday "just greeting my friends."

He spoke from his 46th floor office in the J. C. Penny Co., building in Manhattan.

"My eyesight is impaired," he said, "so I don't travel or accept invitations to speak so much any more. But my vision is stronger than ever."

Vision, Penney said, the imaginative kind that enabled him to build his retailing giant, plus "hard work, good judgment, character and a few sacrifices" is the recipe for a successful retailer.

Penney said his father selected his vocation and he became an apprentice clerk in a dry goods store at $2.27 a month after graduating from Hamilton High. But he said it was a lot of money to a young man who had worked at odd jobs since he was 8 to buy his own clothes.

"I thought my father was hard on me when he put me on my own," Penny said. "But I thank God every night for that early, strict, religious training."

Penney started his own general merchandising store in Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1902 after seven years' experience and with $2,000, all but $500 borrowed from a bank back home.

Penney said he thought, as he began to prosper, that he might sometime have 25 stores. "Then, after I had 25 I saw no reason not to have 50, then 100. And finally I saw no limit."

Last year his more than 1,600 stores grossed more than $2.5 billion.

Penney "retired" 50 years ago as president of his company, but he is still a director and goes to his office daily.

"The door to my office is never closed," he said. "One of my great pleasures in life is to meet people, many from our own stores."

Davis President of Chapter

John W. Davis, 604 Taylor, will serve as 1967-68 president of Scott county chapter of the American Cancer Society. He has been reappointed.

He begins his 12th year as a volunteer worker for the organization. He has worked for the past 26 years as a clerk of the post office.

Davis is a member of the Sikeston park board and is president of the Men's Garden club. He is active in the First Baptist church.

"I'm concerned and interested in this disease that strikes all ages," he said. I've seen it claim the lives of many close friends and several relatives.

John W. Davis

Many others in the business, arts and sports are struck down suddenly each year with cancer.

"We are on the threshold of a cure, but much is still needed for research to find that cure."

The society's annual meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at the El Capri restaurant. Clarence Lee Shireel, Cape Girardeau, will speak.

Anyone interested in the Cancer program may attend.

Bob Huffard, Illmo, the new district representative of the Cancer society will be present.

Peace Signs Explored

WASHINGTON (AP)— A new burst of Vietnamese peace talk, coming at least in part from Hanoi, started U.S. officials searching today for evidence that the North Vietnamese government might be developing an interest in negotiations. But the the initial reaction here was both cautious and skeptical.

Canadian foreign secretary Paul Martin told a news conference at Ottawa yesterday that North Vietnamese authorities have expressed some interest in possible ways to start talks on ending the war.

State Department officials in Washington had been informed that a Canadian diplomat, O.W. Dier, was visiting briefly in Hanoi. But officials said they had not yet been given a report on the reported new display of interest by North Vietnamese authorities.

Parallel with this development, Johnson administration leaders were studying a dispatch distributed yesterday by the French news agency Agence France-Presse. This quoted "reliable sources" in Hanoi as saying that an unconditional halt in U.S. bombing could lead to talks between North Vietnam and the United States in three or four weeks.

Killer of Val Percy Still Free

KENILWORTH, Ill. (AP) — A year ago today, Valerie Percy, 21, stood smiling at her father's side, listening to him campaign for the U.S. Senate and devoting her time and talents to his success.

Two days later the 21-year-old blonde twin daughter of Charles Percy lay on her blood-soaked pillow, battered to death in the $200,000 mansion which sprawls on a bluff above Lake Michigan in Kenilworth, an elite community in Chicago's suburban North Shore area.

The man who crept up the circular stairs to kill Valerie Percy in the cold dawn of Sunday, Sept. 18, carried a glass cutter, a flashlight, a double-edge knife and an arrow-shaped piece of metal.

He plunged the knife into the girl's head and chest 10 times and the piece of metal crushed her skull.

Neither the killer nor his tools have been found.

"He left us very little, other than a body," says a stalemated detective who has lived with the unsolved murder file for a year.

The body and the unknown killer, whose identity was shrouded by darkness, were discovered by the victim's stepmother, Percy's second wife, Lorraine, 37.

She described being awakened by a moaning sound.

"I walked down the hall toward the girls' rooms. I saw a light coming from under Valerie's door. I called out, 'Val!' and then I opened the door."

"Over her bed was a man. I was frozen for a moment. He was shining his flashlight in my face. Then I screamed."

Two days after her death, Valerie Percy was given a simple burial service. The chapel was adorned with pink roses, her favorite flower, and the body was cremated.

Percy took his family to a hideaway in Northern California, interrupting his campaign to unseat Democratic Sen. Paul Douglas. The blond, deep-voiced Republican hopeful returned to the campaign in late October.

"There is a time to be born, a time to die, a time to dance and a time to mourn, a time to keep silent and a time to speak. Now is the time to speak," Percy said at his initial political outing following the murder.

He was an overwhelming victor in November and attracted attention as a potential GOP presidential candidate.

In March, Robert Daley, chief of Kenilworth's 11-man police force in September when the village had the first murder in its history, was named village manager. His replacement was Edward Eggert, 42, who, with Sgt. William Sumner, handled the investigation from the beginning.

Eggert and Sumner discussed the case Tuesday.

"We have checked out 1,153 leads," Eggert said. "In all, we have personally talked to about 8,000 persons in 48 states and five foreign countries— France, India, England, Africa and Canada."

"There are still 53 leads open. The FBI has helped on out-of-state leads and the Chicago police still hold the four latent palm prints and the other physical evidence."

Sumner, Kenilworth's only policeman still assigned full time to the investigation, works with three members of the Illinois state police crime section.

"Each lead we get we try and figure out a motive but that's almost impossible," Sumner said, fingering a massive drawer of lead folders in the tiny office room in the Kenilworth Village Hall that was rented for the investigation and its gathering files.

"As long as there is a lead open, we'll continue the case," Eggert promises.

"We've never even established a motive," Sumner said.

"He didn't leave us a thing, except a body."

Six Injured in Three Road Collisions

Troop E of the Missouri Highway Patrol reported six injuries in three highway collisions Thursday. Injured were three from rural Puxico, one from Sikeston, and two from Detroit.

At 5:25 p.m., two miles east of Puxico, a 1967 Dodge, driven by Juanita Suddeth, 28, and a 1965 Plymouth, driven by Hudson Harmon, 55, both of route two, Puxico, met headon on gravel road hill.

The Suddeth woman received cuts on the chin and left knee, while a passenger in her car, Anita Suddeth, five, suffered a bruised mouth. A passenger in the Plymouth, Devona Harmon, 42, Puxico, received head and knee bruises. All were taken to the Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

At 11:25 p.m. on highway 114, three miles west of Sikeston, a 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Delpha Newton, 47, Sikeston, slowed to turn into a private drive, and was struck in the rear by another 1963 Chevrolet, driven by Donald Freeman, 20, Sikeston.

Injured was David Holifield, 21, Sikeston, who received cuts on his forehead, was treated at the Missouri Delta Community hospital.

The patrol said that Freeman was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

Two persons were injured Thursday at 1:15 p.m., when a 1961 Chevrolet, driven by James Burgher, 58, Detroit, pulled away from a stop sign at the junction of highway 61 and 164, two miles north of Steele, in front of a GMC pickup truck, driven by George House, 34, Hayti.

Burgher received a possible fractured left arm, and a passenger in his car, Carmen Baugher, 58, Detroit, received a fractured right leg.

The injured were taken to the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Three Arrests

Billie J. Butler, 325 Marian, was charged by police with careless and imprudent driving for failure to have his car under control at 5:19 p.m. Thursday.

Butler's vehicle was involved in an accident at the Midtowner Village Shopping Center with a car driven by Mrs. Shirley J. Davidson, 1801 Oklahoma. No injuries resulted.

Shirley J. Hickman, 910 North Tanner, suffered injuries to the face and chest when the car she was driving struck a culvert at 11:19 a.m. Thursday at South Ingram and East Malone, police reported.

She is reported in satisfactory condition today in Missouri Delta Community hospital. A charge is pending against her, police said.

James A. Taylor, West Memphis, Ark., was charged by police at 1:15 p.m. Thursday with public intoxication. He was arrested on West Malone.

Charles T. Eaton Jr., 835 Greer, was charged by police at 6:40 p.m. Thursday with exceeding the speed limit on Helen Street.

An undetermined amount of change was reported stolen Thursday from a jukebox at Jesse Berry's Cafe, Osage and Luther, police said.

By The Associated Press

If you drink three cups of coffee a day, you spend about as much each year as some South American coffee workers earn annually.

The average Latin American peasant earns approximately $150 a year--a little less than what you'd pay for three daily 15-cent cups of coffee during that period.

Rural workers in many South American countries struggle with uneven land distribution, a shortage of developed land, vast numbers of sharecroppers, landless tenant farmers, and farms too small to support the families working them. Poor conditions like these spell low agricultural yields -- dangerous for a region in which agriculture is the main way of life. And rural unrest undoubtedly helps the Castro style guerrillas operating in Bolivia, Venezuela, Colombia, Guatemala, Haiti, and Peru.

The last few years have seen considerable improvement in many South American agricultural problems. Almost every country now has some kind of land reform.

Venezuela has distributed land to about 115,000 families; Bolivia has eliminated most of its enormous semi - feudal estates. Peru, Colombia, and Ecuador have given property rights to many landless workers, and Chile's president last month signed into law one of the most ambitious reform programs on the continent. In Colombia, the Roman Catholic Church is lending vital support to the land redistribution program.

Latin American land problems comprise a number of ills, which demand a variety of solutions.

One kind of land reform is redistribution of public lands or large, idle estates -- a program which has had fair success in Mexico, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, and Venezuela. Equalizing land holdings is vital in Latin America because almost every country is plagued with "too little or too much" distribution -- land patterns in which holdings are either too large or too small to be farmed efficiently.

Estate owners, who can live comfortably on revenues from a fraction of their holdings, have little incentive to plant their idle lands. Farmers whose acres are just barely enough for subsistence can't afford machinery to improve their yields.

In Argentina, holdings over 10,000 acres constitute one-half of one per cent of the total farms--but contain a third of the agricultural land. Peru's large landowners, whose farms are about two per cent of the total holdings, own 70 per cent of the land -- while small farms, 83 per cent of the holdings, are jammed onto a scant five per cent of the land.

But the Inter - American Development Bank reports that land redistribution was the slowest - moving agrarian reform in 1966 -- partly due to problems in expropriation. Only Cuba has confiscated large holdings without payment. All other countries offer compensation.

But some Latin American legislatures, many dominated by landowners, require their governments to pay cash for confiscated lands -- an impossible demand for poor, underdeveloped states. Most successful land - reform programs allow the government to pay for the land in long - term bonds.

Nevertheless, farm redistribution isn't enough to turn landless squatters into efficient landowners. In Latin America, where illiteracy rates run as high as 80 per cent, peasants tend to follow their ancestors' outdated farming practices.

Bolivia's Indians, accustomed to a self- sufficient, isolated, barter economy, provided the country's reformists with a major snag: They didn't want to bring their crops to market at all.

Rural education has become another type of land reform in many countries. Local governments, private agencies, and foreign nations -- including the U.S.A. now train agricultural specialist and broadcast radio programs to teach the farmers better methods.

Educating the farmers also benefits the economy as a whole. Mexico and Bolivia are examples of countries which saw crop production drop drastically after reform began -- mainly because of too-small land allotments and backwardness among rural workers. Now many South American countries have shifted the land reform emphasis from equalizing holdings to boosting agricultural income for the entire nation.

Improving the peasant's condition also involves a third reform granting property rights. Giving land to tenants who have worked the landowner's property for a specified period of time is one way to eliminate semi-feudal conditions and indentured labor.

The Inter-American Development Bank says land titling has made the most significant progress of any reform.

Other agrarian programs under way in Latin America include survey of lands, organization of rural cooperatives, and government loans to small farmers. A very limited amount of progress is being made in progressive taxation, which favors small, high-yield farms and discriminates against idle estates.

But a large number of agricultural ills remain uncured by the reforms of the past few years.

Although most Latin American governments supposedly favor land reform, legislators who belong to the privileged classes can build crippling planks into agrarian legislation. Some governments are still required to pay cash for expropriated land--a handicap to reform.

Several years ago, Pedro Beltran, Peru's former prime minister, proposed "agrarian reform" for his country. But some observers say his "noble ideal" was just a plan for moving the Peruvian Indians from the heavily populated valleys to barren, unoccupied land on the mountain slopes.

Even in Mexico, where reform began half a century ago, large estates still exist. Landowners get around the law by "dividing" their estates into many sections, registered in the name of different members of the land's family.

And too many people on too little land seems to be an incurable problem for nations with limited soil suitable for farming. Peru's cultivated land constitues less than 1.5 per cent of the country's total area, and in Mexico, 99 per cent of the arable land is too dry to support crops without expensive irrigation.

Social Workers Will Hear Stapleton Talk

The Southeast division of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare will hold its annual meeting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Holiday Inn, Chairman Dave Regan said.

Jack Stapleton Jr., of Kennett, publisher of the Daily Dunklin Democrat, the Missouri Weekly and past president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health, will speak on "The Citizen Challenge of Mental Health."

Stapleton writes a syndicated column, Missouriana. He is a three times recipient of the American Political Science association award for distinguished reporting.

Election of officers will be held during the meeting. About 100 are expected to attend.

The public is invited and advance registration will not be required.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Lyndon B. Johnson's remarks about morality drew a quick rejoinder from evangelist Billy Graham Thursday.

The President, addressing the police chiefs' convention, said he didn't believe morality was declining in this country.

J.C. Penney Rates Pluck Over Luck

NEW YORK (AP) — James Cash Penney, interviewed on the eve of his 92nd birthday, says he doesn't believe in luck. 'Put a P in front of it," the founder of the great retail chain of more than 1,600 stores advised.

Penney, one of 12 children of a Hamilton, Mo., farmer and preacher, said he will spend his birthday Saturday "just greeting my friends."

He spoke from his 46th floor office in the J. C. Penny Co., building in Manhattan.

"My eyesight is impaired," he said, "so I don't travel or accept invitations to speak so much any more. But my vision is stronger than ever."

Vision, Penney said, the imaginative kind that enabled him to build his retailing giant, plus "hard work, good judgment, character and a few sacrifices" is the recipe for a successful retailer.

Penney said his father selected his vocation and he became an apprentice clerk in a dry goods store at $2.27 a month after graduating from Hamilton High. But he said it was a lot of money to a young man who had worked at odd jobs since he was 8 to buy his own clothes.

"I thought my father was hard on me when he put me on my own," Penny said. "But I thank God every night for that early, strict, religious training."

Penney started his own general merchandising store in Kemmerer, Wyo., in 1902 after seven years' experience and with $2,000, all but $500 borrowed from a bank back home.

Penney said he thought, as he began to prosper, that he might sometime have 25 stores. "Then, after I had 25 I saw no reason not to have 50, then 100. And finally I saw no limit."

Last year his more than 1,600 stores grossed more than $2.5 billion.

Penney "retired" 50 years ago as president of his company, but he is still a director and goes to his office daily.

"The door to my office is never closed," he said. "One of my great pleasures in life is to meet people, many from our own stores."

Nevertheless, farm redistribution isn't enough to turn landless squatters into efficient landowners. In Latin America, where illiteracy rates run as high as 80 per cent, peasants tend to follow their ancestors' outdated farming practices.

Bolivia's Indians, accustomed to a self- sufficient, isolated, barter economy, provided the country's reformists with a major snag: They didn't want to bring their crops to market at all.

Rural education has become another type of land reform in many countries. Local governments, private agencies, and foreign nations -- including the U.S.A. now train agricultural specialist and broadcast radio programs to teach the farmers better methods.

Educating the farmers also benefits the economy as a whole. Mexico and Bolivia are examples of countries which saw crop production drop drastically after reform began -- mainly because of too-small land allotments and backwardness among rural workers. Now many South American countries have shifted the land reform emphasis from equalizing holdings to boosting agricultural income for the entire nation.

Improving the peasant's condition also involves a third reform granting property rights. Giving land to tenants who have worked the landowner's property for a specified period of time is one way to eliminate semi-feudal conditions and indentured labor.

The Inter-American Development Bank says land titling has made the most significant progress of any reform.

Other agrarian programs under way in Latin America include survey of lands, organization of rural cooperatives, and government loans to small farmers. A very limited amount of progress is being made in progressive taxation, which favors small, high-yield farms and discriminates against idle estates.

But a large number of agricultural ills remain uncured by the reforms of the past few years.

Although most Latin American governments supposedly favor land reform, legislators who belong to the privileged classes can build crippling planks into agrarian legislation. Some governments are still required to pay cash for expropriated land--a handicap to reform.

Several years ago, Pedro Beltran, Peru's former prime minister, proposed "agrarian reform" for his country. But some observers say his "noble ideal" was just a plan for moving the Peruvian Indians from the heavily populated valleys to barren, unoccupied lands on the mountain slopes.

Even in Mexico, where reform began half a century ago, large estates still exist. Landowners get around the law by "dividing" their estates into many sections, registered in the name of different members of the land's family.

And too many people on too little land seems to be an incurable problem for nations with limited soil suitable for farming. Peru's cultivated land constitues less than 1.5 per cent of the country's total area, and in Mexico, 99 per cent of the arable land is too dry to support crops without expensive irrigation.

Social Workers Will Hear Stapleton Talk

The Southeast division of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare will hold its annual meeting at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Holiday Inn, Chairman Dave Regan said.

Jack Stapleton Jr., of Kennett, publisher of the Daily Dunklin Democrat, the Missouri Weekly and past president of the Missouri Association for Mental Health, will speak on "The Citizen Challenge of Mental Health."

Stapleton writes a syndicated column, Missouriana. He is a three times recipient of the American Political Science association award for distinguished reporting.

Election of officers will be held during the meeting. About 100 are expected to attend.

The public is invited and advance registration will not be required.

Killer of Val Percy Still Free

KENILWORTH, Ill. (AP) — A year ago today, Valerie Percy, 21, stood smiling at her father's side, listening to him campaign for the U.S. Senate and devoting her time and talents to his success.

Two days later the 21-year-old blonde twin daughter of Charles Percy lay on her blood-soaked pillow, battered to death in the $200,000 mansion which sprawls on a bluff above Lake Michigan in Kenilworth, an elite community in Chicago's suburban North Shore area.

The man who crept up the circular stairs to kill Valerie Percy in the cold dawn of Sunday, Sept. 18, carried a glass cutter, a flashlight, a double-edge knife and an arrow-shaped piece of metal.

He plunged the knife into the girl's head and chest 10 times and the piece of metal crushed her skull.

Neither the killer nor his tools have been found.

"He left us very little, other than a body," says a stalemated detective who has lived with the unsolved murder file for a year.

The body and the unknown killer, whose identity was shrouded by darkness, were discovered by the victim's stepmother, Percy's second wife, Lorraine, 37.

She described being awakened by a moaning sound.

"I walked down the hall toward the girls' rooms. I saw a light coming from under Valerie's door. I called out, 'Val!' and then I opened the door."

"Over her bed was a man. I was frozen for a moment. He was shining his flashlight in my face. Then I screamed."

Two days after her death, Valerie Percy was given a simple burial service. The chapel was adorned with pink roses, her favorite flower, and the body was cremated.

Percy took his family to a hideaway in Northern California, interrupting his campaign to unseat Democratic Sen. Paul Douglas. The blond, deep-voiced Republican hopeful returned to the campaign in late October.

"There is a time to be born, a time to die, a time to dance and a time to mourn, a time to keep silent and a time to speak. Now is the time to speak," Percy said at his initial political outing following the murder.

He was an overwhelming victor in November and attracted attention as a potential GOP presidential candidate.

In March, Robert Daley, chief of Kenilworth's 11-man police force in September when the village had the first murder in its history, was named village manager. His replacement was Edward Eggert, 42, who, with Sgt. William Sumner, handled the investigation from the beginning.

Eggert and Sumner discussed the case Tuesday.

"We have checked out 1,153 leads," Eggert said. "In all, we have personally talked to about 8,000 persons in 48 states and five foreign countries— France, India, England, Africa and Canada."

"There are still 53 leads open. The FBI has helped on out-of-state leads and the Chicago police still hold the four latent palm prints and the other physical evidence."

Sumner, Kenilworth's only policeman still assigned full time to the investigation, works with three members of the Illinois state police crime section.

"Each lead we get we try and figure out a motive but that's almost impossible," Sumner said, fingering a massive drawer of lead folders in the tiny office room in the Kenilworth Village Hall that was rented for the investigation and its gathering files.

"As long as there is a lead open, we'll continue the case," Eggert promises.

"We've never even established a motive," Sumner said.

Graham, LBJ Disagree On State on Morals

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Lyndon B. Johnson's remarks about morality drew a quick rejoinder from evangelist Billy Graham Thursday.

The President, addressing the police chiefs' convention, said he didn't believe morality was declining in this country.

"Anyone who sees the tide of pornography on the newsstands and on the motion picture screens, the rising illegitimacy and venereal diesease rates, would have to agree that there is a decline of national standards and values..."

"We are on a moral toboggan sled, and unless the young people stand up for God with high moral standards, our nation and our very society will be in danger."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

COSTLY CALL TO CAMPUS

Students martriculate at most American colleges and universities in the latter two weeks of September.

THE CALL OF THE CAMPUS grows ever more costly. More than three out of four schools of tertiary learning are raising their charges to students for the new school year. Increases will range from 5 to 9 per cent.

Median rises, according to the Life Insurance Management Association, will run from $47 to $167 over last year's charges. State and other tax-supported coeducational schools will average out at $998 for in-state students and $1,381 for out-of-state students. Private coeducational schools will be charging about $1,976 a year; private men's colleges, $2,273; private women's colleges, $2,199. Highly selective institutions charge much more. Total student costs at Harvard come to $3,170; at Bennington, to $3,850.

Tuition, room, and board are only part of the money structure. Clothing comes high, even in these days of conscious campus slouch. Cars, relatively rare even on Ivy League campuses a quarter of a century ago, are almost de rigueur everywhere now. The U.S. Office of Education estimates extra expenses at an average of $700 to $800 a school year. The Office will send a free pamphlet on budgeting for college in reply to a postcard addressed to Office of Education, Washington, D. C. 20202.

COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES are only passing on to students their own cost increases. Edward Levi, provost of the University of Chicago, estimates that to keep the institution going only at existing levels will mean raising $1 million a week for as long as the university exists. At the present rate of increase, Harvard's tuition, now $2,000, would reach $5,000 by 1978.

At the same time, college attendance continues to rise. The National Geographic Society estimates that 6,541,000 persons will register for credit in institutions of higher learning this fall. More than 500,000 veterans entered training during the first year of the 1966 G. I. Bill. By 1968 the number is expected to rise fo 600,000.

Almost another half million students will be helped through college during the upcoming scholastic year by the National Defense Loan program, according to the Office of Education. Federal support of education mounts rapidly. Editorial Projects for Education estimates that of the 2,200 institutions of higher learning in the United States, about 1,800 participate in one or more federally supported or sponsored programs. Federal money furnished 800,000 scholarships, loans, and work-study grants amounting to well over $300 million.

EASY TERMS for student loans are offered by New York State banks, but elsewhere some bankers are leary of college loans. This year Michigan State University is trying out a new scheme, pegging tuition at roughly 3 per cent of a family's gross income.

A White House advisory panel on education on Sept. 7 suggested a novel approach. A student would borrow up to the full amount of his tuition and subsistence needs from a Federal Education Opportunity Bank. In return he would pledge to pay the government 1 per cent of his annual income for every $3,000 borrowed for 30 years after graduation. Such "learn now - pay later" schemes seem certain to attract support as the cost of college continues to grow.

WHERE WILL THE DISCLOSURES END?

What is the connection between Missouri's junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long, and Roy H. Cohn, who back in the 1950's was one of the two principal henchmen for the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy and since that time has been wheeling and dealing iin all kinds of financial deals?

The question is an interesting one for several reasons.

In the first place, Cohn's antics while a counsel for the McCarthy group eventually helped lead to the Senate censure of the Wisconsin Democrat. Cohn carried a big stick in those days and contributed mightily to an unfortunate era in the nation that has since been called "McCarthyism." Since that time, he, too, has felt the weight of the federal government and has been under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service for some of his financial deals.

Now it develops that Sen. Long's son-in-law, who is 34 years of age, has been named board chairman of a Chicago bank that was part of a financial empire under study by three federal agencies and a federal grand jury. The junior Senator's son-in-law lives in Hannibal, but was selected, presumably by Cohn, to become board chairman of the Chicago bank.

Cohn has been an acquaintance of Sen. Long for the past several years; The Daily Democrat has in its files a picture of Sen. Long, his son-in-law and Roy Cohn, among others, touring the World's Fair at New York. Sen. Long says he became friendly with Cohn when the latter turned up as a friendly witness before the wiretapping subcommittee; it seems strange that an acquaintance could blossom from such a casual event, although our junior Senator seems to have a real penchant for making acquaintances pay dividends, as for example his friendship with Morris Shenker, criminal attorney and Teamster counsel in St. Louis.

To add to the Long-Cohn tie-up, the Chicago bank whose board chairman is Long's son-in-law recently made a $100,000 loan to a small loan company at Fulton, Mo. The owner of the loan company? Edward V. Long.

It is all strange, made even stranger by recent disclosures that our junior Senator apparently received more than $48,000 in a two-year period from the Shenker law firm. One estimate now places the Long-pocketed fees at closer to $80,-000.

We can only wonder where the surprising disclosures on the activities of Sen. Long will finally end.

GOLDEN PENNANTS

Spikes of glowing goldenrod will soon paint pictures along country roads, on the hillsides and around the edges of gardens. The color they spread on the landscape is a dominant motif of the pre-autumn patina that spreads aloft hues as a season nears its end.

Goldenrod is a member of the mammoth composite family. Experts say there are 85 species in the United States. Some of the names are interesting: Curved Leaved, Blue Stemmed, Stout, Silver Rod, Alpine, Seaside, Bog, Showy, Sweet, Spreading, and Elm Leaved.

Solidage is the genus name, an ancient Roman word. In olden times the Romans believed goldenrod had healing powers. In the days of Queen Elizabeth, the English imported large amounts which were used as a power to help heal wounds.

There is a species for every type of terrain, for swamps and hillsides, seaside, and rich garden soil. The hue of its blossoms in September blends with the golden hues one sees in sun-cured grasses on the uplands and with the gold-green tinge of leaves in the slanting sun of late afternoon.

It is a common plant and most of us tend to overlook the beauty of plants which are numerous. But it would not be the right ending to summer without the tall, sturdy-stemmed plants that lift golden pennants as the Frost King's legions start moving down from the northland.

In England, gardeners grow the goldenrod in their gardens. Nature freely gives us the golden pennants that brighten the pre-autumn landscape.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Chymbur has a pair of shoes that are four-feet long.

They're special shoes, of course. Used to slide across the surfaces of lakes. Sort of like wearing a personal pontoon bridge.

Chymbur calls them "skeeters". He invented them.

They're on exhibit here this week at the third annual International Inventors and New Products Exposition. The show has drawn some 1,200 inventors from 23 countries with 15,000 products, inventions, ideas and applications, ranging from digestible safety pins made of vegetable base that dissolve if swallowed to instant splints for unexpected bone breakings.

Roger Shashoua, 27-year-old president of Patent Exhibits, Inc., of New York and originator of the exposition, estimated that 95 per cent of those participating in the show were inventors who never had invented anything before in their lives.

"They're plumbers, mailmen, carpenters, almost anything," Shashoua says, "who get an idea they think will improve things. They develop it and then they bring it here in hope of finding a manufacturer."

How many do connect?

"At last year's show, manufacturers paid out about $8.5 million to buy various inventions and ideas," he says. "This year we're expecting the figure to hit $20 million."

Chymbur, a Santa Monica, Calif., waiter who uses his free time to invent, says he spent four years developing his water shoes. But the idea had been with him since boyhood.

Chymbur, who hopes to interest a manufacturer in his invention, says the water shoes are made of a buoyant material with louvers mounted beneath the surface to give traction "so you can slide along."

Not too far from Chymbur, Robert L. Thomas of East Point, Ga., is exhibiting a "personal ashtray"— a device that permits a person to smoke without having to look around for an ashtray.

The device basically is a long tube into which a cigarette is inserted after being lit. As the cigarette is consumed its ashes fall into the tube. When the smoker is done, a slide at the top of the tube is closed and the cigarette puts itself out.

The closed tube can be put into the pocket and carried about with its load of ashes until it is convenient to empty it.

A machine that will punch out three dozen cookies or doughnuts, shaped and ready for the oven, is exhibited by Charles Downing of Janesville, Wis.

"The average small baker does his shaping by hand," says Downing, a former baker. "This machine will put him in competition with the large bakeries" which use machinery.

Downing, whose "automatic baker's machine" measures four feet by four feet, says, "all a baker has to do is push this button, feed in his dough and out it comes ready for baking."

MARITAL SPLIT: REASONS FOR IT

More than 400,000 marriages will fail this year, the Catholic Digest states. For every four couples who vow to stay together until death, one couple decides not to wait that long.

All kinds of people get divorces. Most, though, are under 35, and about half are childless couples who have been married five years or less. The divorces share other characteristics, too. These conditions indicate a greater likelihood of divorce:

1. Urban background.
2. Marriage at 15 to 19 (the teen-age divorce rate is about three times the general rate).
3. Short acquaintanceship before marriage.
4. Parents with unhappy marriages.
5. Lack of attendance at church.
6. Mixed religion.
7. Disapproval of the marriage by relatives and friends.
8. Dissimilarity in social and economic status.
9. Different ideas of husband and wife about marital obligations.

NO DRINK FOR CHIEF

An old Indian chief and his wife were guests of honor at a state Izaak Walton meeting held in one of those rambling old summer hotels with thin walls and few bathrooms.

Things finally quieted down for the night and the faithful squad had her chief tucked carefully in bed. But the chief didn't rest well. The dinner had been highly seasoned. Much more so than his usual reservation fare. So every 30 or 40 minutes during the night he would grunt loudly and tell his wife to fetch him a drink. She would dutifully climb out of bed and clump down the corridor after a drink for the chief.

The other guests couldn't help but hear the chief's commands and her journeys and became somewhat annoyed. Towards morning the squad went after water, but returned empty handed. She reported to the chief:

"Ugh, Big Chief get no drink. White lady sit on well, now!"

NEIGHBORS, NOT FOREIGNERS

It is probable that before too long bulletin boards at a number of major air terminals scattered throughout the nation will be announcing departure and arrival times of direct flights to such exotic sounding places as Hong Kong, Bangkok, Tahiti and many others.

According to recent press releases, a major U.S. international airline is seeking government authority to operate flights from five major East Coast and Midwest cities to the Pacific and the Far East. The best part of the proposed expanded air service from the standpoint of the traveling public are the projected fares. They would be 20 to 30 per cent less than at present. A round-trip excursion from New York to Tokyo, for example, would be offered at $629. New York to Hawaii would cost $400 round trip. New long-range Super-jets will make such service possible. All of this means that the world in effect is becoming smaller and more accessible to the average person.

In the past, a comparative handful of people were able to enjoy the experience of becoming acquainted with the customs and peoples of other lands -- peoples who, in the minds of most individuals, were all lumped together in one category that was somehow suspect. They were "foreigners". It is not too much to hope that one day, instead of foreigners, there will be only neighbors. This has been the dream of pioneers in the world of international air transport for many years.

Doc. Duncan Says

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: Looks like instead of mass production of laws to gouge John O. Public it's high time John O. was wised up to a few good laws in his favor. For example, where a man and his family works, scrimps and saves and acqires an estate then he posses on, if he forms a corporation before hand then his estate passes to his heirs, no tax. no administration. no probate court cost. on the other hand if his estate passes through probate court and an administrator, the cost many times runs to 20% and on top of that many times it is necessary to auction it. then it's at the mercy of the public and for all practical purposes destroyed as a working organization.

Why not correct this by a bit of information and a correction of this old system.

COMPULSORY NON-MILITARY SERVICE

For many months the federal government has been attempting to accustom the American people to a proposal which would be a huge step toward total government control over the lives of individual citizens. Officials throughout the administration are backing the idea of mandatory national service for every American youth; military service for some, anti-poverty, peace corps, or related work for the majority.

If adopted, this plan would require that every American youth, upon reaching a certain age, register with the government. He would then be assigned to one or another of the various federal projects for a specified number of years.

Robert McNamara and Sargent Shriver, among others, support this proposal. Although most Americans are unaware of the plan, a National Service Secretariat has already been created, held meetings, and submitted proposals to the President.

This plan is inherently dangerous. It gives the federal government direct and almost absolute control over the lives of citizens during the years when they would be forced to participate in this program. There would be almost no way for an individual to preserve his freedom to direct his own life.

Adherents of this plan conveniently ignore the cost of organizing and training the young people participating in the program, which would be enormous. More bureaucrats would be needed to administer the program, and more money would be wasted.

But the most critical danger is the amount of power over individuals that such a proposal would place in the hands of government. If our country is to remain free, such power must never be granted. HLH

WASHINGTON -- Gen. Julius Klein, who finagled Sen. Tom Dodd into being his messenger boy in West Germany, is up to his old operations again.

This time he is trying to arrange for a German company, Rheinmetall, Hitler's second largest arms manufacturer, which used slave labor under the Nazis, to start manufacturing in the United States.

Rheinmetall is a company with few friends in the USA outside of Gen. Klein. Of its five officers, three are former Nazi party members, and its president, Otto Paul Caesar, was a plant manager for Rheinmetall during the war where he used slave labor.

According to Adolph Held, president of the Jewish Labor Committee, "a special camp for Jewish women and girls recruited from Buchenwald by Rheinmetall was built by Rheinmetall at Sommerda in Thuringia. Over 1,200 Jewish women were employed in that camp alone. The evidence is overwhelming that they were forced to work under the most inhumane circumstances."

Gen. Klein, a retired officer of the Illinois National Guard, is a man who wears his religion on his sleeve. He is a former commander of the Jewish war veterans, and in a letter to editors during the Dodd censure debate emphasized eleven times that he is a Jew. Despite this, he has been an eager beaver in trying to arrange for Rheinmetall to operate in the USA.

CONFIDENTIAL MEMO

Rheinmetall is the company which secured a $75 million defense department contract to manufacture the 20 MM Hispano - Suiza rapid - firing cannon in Germany for the U.S. army. The contract was hotly contested, first because it contributed to the closing of the century - and - a - half-old Springfield, Mass., armory, which had been turning out weapons for the American army ever since the revolutionary war; second, because Rheinmetall had not paid the claims of slave labor survivors. Finally, after the defense department held up the contract, Rheinmetall last year paid restitution money to the extent of $600,000.

What Gen. Klein now wants is an arrangement whereby Rheinmetall would manufacture the 20 MM cannon in the United States. To this end he arranged several meetings for Otto Caesar, the ex-Nazi president of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, Diehl. Curtiss - Wright was also approached as a participant.

It's understood that Curtiss-Wright was not interested.

This column has obtained confidential minutes of a meeting held by Gen. Klein in Chicago with Caesar of Rheinmetall, and others. Since Klein is a past master at issuing denials, and may deny this, here are some quotes from his confidential memo, dated May 5, 1967:

"The meeting with the Rheinmetall - Diehl people lasted until 11 o'clock last night. Present were Mrs. Caesar, Mr. Blume and Mr. Flacke of Rheinmetall, and Mr. Diehl and his own right-hand man, Mr. Von Prsychowski (known in the trade as Mr. Von P), and, of course, I.

"It was in my estimation a very good and successful meeting, in which all phases of the future including the present so-called USA - Hocht combine were discussed," Gen. Klein reported.

"Rheinmetall and Diehl have agreed to a joint venture in the U.S., not only on the know-how but possibly also furnishing machinery, technicians, etc., and whatever is necessary for a profitable U.S. venture.

"They are very much interested in Curtis - Wright or a similar firm. . .

ANOTHER KLEIN CLIENT?

"My recommendation that my brother Max and Mr. Wiggins fly over to Germany to discuss the technical aspect and also the possibility of cooperating with Curtiss - Wright or other firms was accepted. They have set the week of June 26 to July 1 for such a meeting. . ."

The Wiggins referred to above is Charles Wiggins, a Washington public relations man who has had a problem with alcohol. He was arrested in the District of Columbia for drunkenness on February 7, 1965.

Klein, of course, was not unaware that if the Rheinmetall-Diehl combine got established in the USA his firm might handle its public relations. The memo stated: "Of course I haven't discussed any extra arrangements for JKPR (Julius Klein Public Relations, Inc.) with Mr. Diehl yet, as after all I do represent Rheinmetall already. But this will be done at a later date after Rheinmetall and Diehl conclude their own agreement and then Mr. Caesar will urge Mr. Diehl to make an agreement with us too. . .

"It was no use for me to discuss this agreement until Rheinmetall and Diehl conclude their own binding agreement."

After further discussing plans to manufacture the Hispano-Suiza 20 MM cannon, Gen. Klein concluded: "This covers in a thumbnail the result of my meeting, and I am satisifed. Of course we will have to discuss all possibilities when I return. I will also be guided by the advice of the Chicago and Washington JKPR staff."

Note: The official position of the Johnson administration regarding Rheinmetall was outlined March 7, 1966, by assistant secretary of state Douglas MacArthur II as follows:

"It appears that of the five present principal officers of Rheinmetall A. G., three were members of the Nazi party during World War II. Of these five members, two, including one of the Nazi party members, were plant managers of Rheinmetall Borsig A. G. during the war. The degree of active involvement in Nazi party activities by the three wartime members is not known."

Blackboard Power Over 2 Million Teachers Is Real Issue in School Strike News.

New York: -- Blackboard power is the name of the game, actually.

When the doors are tightly closed on the chalk - room crowd's inner sanctum, teachers' union leaders talk excitedly about eventually administering a vast single organization of some 2 million instructors -- in parochial as well as public schools, in universities as well as improvised poverty schools.

Basically and bluntly that's why the teachers here hit the bricks. Their leaders were determined that the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers (UFT) would deliver the juiciest contract ever. This would make it the real power bloc in the small parent American Federation of Teachers (AFT) -- which in turn they hope to make the launching pad for the campaign against the 1,030,000 - member National Education Assn. (NEA).

Out of such a foundation could come the thrust for leadership of a "new - breed" American labor movement in a decade or two. Remember that the New York strike leader, UFT president Al Shanker, is 38 years old.

True, there are nasty immediate issues which few here mention publicly in polite society. Some of these issues are the same as those which affect the firemen and telephone workers in high crime areas. The communications repairmen are frightened to go in. So are the teachers. They have long wanted some sort of authority to handle "disruptive students." There is evidence of thousands of incidents involving muggers, rapists, knife wielders, narcotics pushers and the like, right in the corridors. And when the winter comes on with its early darkness, teachers gather for a swift dash to the buses and subways.

Over in one section of Brooklyn, teachers have been reviled with anti - Semitic notes. Letters are left in the instructors' boxes filled with lewd threats. Many a teacher has an unlisted telephone number. These are the printable stories. Some are no.

True, there is a matter of money. But the contracts are short term. What the UFT doesn't get this time, it will get from an insolvent city next time.

The real issue, therefore, is blackboard power among the teachers of the land. Fact is that the AFL-CIO teachers union -- despite all the hubbub and brick pounding -- has not done so well in academic circles.

Back about 1960 the AFT had some 50,000 members. Then came Walter Reuther and his AFL-CIO Industrial Union Dept. They sent in organizers. They put a steady staff into New York. They revamped the AFT's Chicago office. They put militant [illegible] Charley Cogen in a bright new saddle. Since 1961 they have poured in $1.1 million. They did right well in New York where it is impossible not to do right well on the labor front.

They enrolled some 49,000 members. And when they had the original membership and the newcomers all totaled up across the lad, they found they had 140,-000. This meant that outside of New York they had picked up about 40,000 dues payers.

And the AFT totaled its contract and found the other day that it has pacts in 41 school districts. Not much compared with the 1,336 exclusive NEA contracts covering 650,000 certified teachers in 45 states. Thus the so-called militant teachers who now are striking regularly under the AFT leadership have 3 per cent of the exclusive bargaining contracts compared with the 93.7 per cent negotiated by the 100-yard-old NEA.

The so-called old lady of the teaching business turns out to be a mighty spry chick. It has not gone to pot with flower power. When the AFT teachers began moving, there was parellel NEA action. The Washington-based association -- housed in a big block - long structure and employing about 1,000 staffers -- began collective bargaining five years ago. These pacts are negotiated by officials of the NEA's 8000 local affiliates in 56 state units.

They can get tough, too, though they don't hit the bricks. In Florida early in June, for example, the Education Assn. voted $100,000 for a campaign to warn industry from moving into the state until the authorities met the teachers' demands. I was in Tallahassee then and inquired to see if they were serious. They certainly were -- and are. In Washington the other day I was told that the Florida Education Assn. still surveyed the state to learn where the big companies were looking for location sites, and then devised strategy for constant contact with the corporations.

"We've contacted such firms as IBM, Union Carbide, etc.," said a spokesman "with telegrams, letters and personal messages to stay out of the state."

The NEA makes no fetish of militancy, however. Under its current president, Braulio Alonso, a Tampa, Fla., high school principal on leave, the huge organization runs a vast enterprise made up of 17 headquarters divisions, 33 departments, one institute, and 25 commissions and committees. It's a professional organization such as the American Medical Assn. And it has no more intention of yielding to the strike-happy unionists than the doctors have of throwing away their stethescopes and loops.

So the struggle goes. Blackboard power will mean -- eventually -- terrific influence over the nation's youth. There is the real issue.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
COSTLY CALL TO CAMPUS

Students martriculate at most American colleges and universities in the latter two weeks of September.

THE CALL OF THE CAMPUS grows ever more costly. More than three out of four schools of tertiary learning are raising their charges to students for the new school year. Increases will range from 5 to 9 per cent.

Median rises, according to the Life Insurance Management Association, will run from $47 to $167 over last year's charges. State and other tax-supported coeducational schools will average out at $998 for in-state students and $1,381 for out-of-state students. Private coeducational schools will be charging about $1,976 a year; private men's colleges, $2,273; private women's colleges, $2,199. Highly selective institutions charge much more. Total student costs at Harvard come to $3,170; at Bennington, to $3,850.

Tuition, room, and board are only part of the money structure. Clothing comes high, even in these days of conscious campus slouch. Cars, relatively rare even on Ivy League campuses a quarter of a century ago, are almost de rigueur everywhere now. The U.S. Office of Education estimates extra expenses at an average of $700 to $800 a school year. The Office will send a free pamphlet on budgeting for college in reply to a postcard addressed to Office of Education, Washington, D. C. 20202.

COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES are only passing on to students their own cost increases. Edward Levi, provost of the University of Chicago, estimates that to keep the institution going only at existing levels will mean raising $1 million a week for as long as the university exists. At the present rate of increase, Harvard's tuition, now $2,000, would reach $5,000 by 1978.

At the same time, college attendance continues to rise. The National Geographic Society estimates that 6,541,000 persons will register for credit in institutions of higher learning this fall. More than 500,000 veterans entered training during the first year of the 1966 G. I. Bill. By 1968 the number is expected to rise fo 600,000.

Almost another half million students will be helped through college during the upcoming scholastic year by the National Defense Loan program, according to the Office of Education. Federal support of education mounts rapidly. Editorial Projects for Education estimates that of the 2,200 institutions of higher learning in the United States, about 1,800 participate in one or more federally supported or sponsored programs. Federal money furnished 800,000 scholarships, loans, and work-study grants amounting to well over $300 million.

EASY TERMS for student loans are offered by New York State banks, but elsewhere some bankers are leary of college loans. This year Michigan State University is trying out a new scheme, pegging tuition at roughly 3 per cent of a family's gross income.

A White House advisory panel on education on Sept. 7 suggested a novel approach. A student would borrow up to the full amount of his tuition and subsistence needs from a Federal Education Opportunity Bank. In return he would pledge to pay the government 1 per cent of his annual income for every $3,000 borrowed for 30 years after graduation. Such "learn now - pay later" schemes seem certain to attract support as the cost of college continues to grow.

WHERE WILL THE DISCLOSURES END?

What is the connection between Missouri's junior U. S. Senator, Edward V. Long, and Roy H. Cohn, who back in the 1950's was one of the two principal henchmen for the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy and since that time has been wheeling and dealing iin all kinds of financial deals?

The question is an interesting one for several reasons.

In the first place, Cohn's antics while a counsel for the McCarthy group eventually helped lead to the Senate censure of the Wisconsin Democrat. Cohn carried a big stick in those days and contributed mightily to an unfortunate era in the nation that has since been called "McCarthyism." Since that time, he, too, has felt the weight of the federal government and has been under investigation by the Internal Revenue Service for some of his financial deals.

Now it develops that Sen. Long's son-in-law, who is 34 years of age, has been named board chairman of a Chicago bank that was part of a financial empire under study by three federal agencies and a federal grand jury. The junior Senator's son-in-law lives in Hannibal, but was selected, presumably by Cohn, to become board chairman of the Chicago bank.

Cohn has been an acquaintance of Sen. Long for the past several years; The Daily Democrat has in its files a picture of Sen. Long, his son-in-law and Roy Cohn, among others, touring the World's Fair at New York. Sen. Long says he became friendly with Cohn when the latter turned up as a friendly witness before the wiretapping subcommittee; it seems strange that an acquaintance could blossom from such a casual event, although our junior Senator seems to have a real penchant for making acquaintances pay dividends, as for example his friendship with Morris Shenker, criminal attorney and Teamster counsel in St. Louis.

To add to the Long-Cohn tie-up, the Chicago bank whose board chairman is Long's son-in-law recently made a $100,000 loan to a small loan company at Fulton, Mo. The owner of the loan company? Edward V. Long.

It is all strange, made even stranger by recent disclosures that our junior Senator apparently received more than $48,000 in a two-year period from the Shenker law firm. One estimate now places the Long-pocketed fees at closer to $80,-000.

We can only wonder where the surprising disclosures on the activities of Sen. Long will finally end.

GOLDEN PENNANTS

Spikes of glowing goldenrod will soon paint pictures along country roads, on the hillsides and around the edges of gardens. The color they spread on the landscape is a dominant motif of the pre-autumn patina that spreads aloft hues as a season nears its end.

Goldenrod is a member of the mammoth composite family. Experts say there are 85 species in the United States. Some of the names are interesting: Curved Leaved, Blue Stemmed, Stout, Silver Rod, Alpine, Seaside, Bog, Showy, Sweet, Spreading, and Elm Leaved.

Solidage is the genus name, an ancient Roman word. In olden times the Romans believed goldenrod had healing powers. In the days of Queen Elizabeth, the English imported large amounts which were used as a power to help heal wounds.

There is a species for every type of terrain, for swamps and hillsides, seaside, and rich garden soil. The hue of its blossoms in September blends with the golden hues one sees in sun-cured grasses on the uplands and with the gold-green tinge of leaves in the slanting sun of late afternoon.

It is a common plant and most of us tend to overlook the beauty of plants which are numerous. But it would not be the right ending to summer without the tall, sturdy-stemmed plants that lift golden pennants as the Frost King's legions start moving down from the northland.

In England, gardeners grow the goldenrod in their gardens. Nature freely gives us the golden pennants that brighten the pre-autumn landscape.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Chymbur has a pair of shoes that are four-feet long.

They're special shoes, of course. Used to slide across the surfaces of lakes. Sort of like wearing a personal pontoon bridge.

Chymbur calls them "skeeters". He invented them.

They're on exhibit here this week at the third annual International Inventors and New Products Exposition. The show has drawn some 1,200 inventors from 23 countries with 15,000 products, inventions, ideas and applications, ranging from digestible safety pins made of vegetable base that dissolve if swallowed to instant splints for unexpected bone breakings.

Roger Shashoua, 27-year-old president of Patent Exhibits, Inc., of New York and originator of the exposition, estimated that 95 per cent of those participating in the show were inventors who never had invented anything before in their lives.

"They're plumbers, mailmen, carpenters, almost anything," Shashoua says, "who get an idea they think will improve things. They develop it and then they bring it here in hope of finding a manufacturer."

How many do connect?

"At last year's show, manufacturers paid out about $8.5 million to buy various inventions and ideas," he says. "This year we're expecting the figure to hit $20 million."

Chymbur, a Santa Monica, Calif., waiter who uses his free time to invent, says he spent four years developing his water shoes. But the idea had been with him since boyhood.

Chymbur, who hopes to interest a manufacturer in his invention, says the water shoes are made of a buoyant material with louvers mounted beneath the surface to give traction "so you can slide along."

Not too far from Chymbur, Robert L. Thomas of East Point, Ga., is exhibiting a "personal ashtray"—a device that permits a person to smoke without having to look around for an ashtray.

The device basically is a long tube into which a cigarette is inserted after being lit. As the cigarette is consumed its ashes fall into the tube. When the smoker is done, a slide at the top of the tube is closed and the cigarette puts itself out.

The closed tube can be put into the pocket and carried about with its load of ashes until it is convenient to empty it.

A machine that will punch out three dozen cookies or doughnuts, shaped and ready for the oven, is exhibited by Charles Downing of Janesville, Wis.

"The average small baker does his shaping by hand," says Downing, a former baker. "This machine will put him in competition with the large bakeries" which use machinery.

Downing, whose "automatic baker's machine" measures four feet by four feet, says, "all a baker has to do is push this button, feed in his dough and out it comes ready for baking."

MARITAL SPLIT: REASONS FOR IT

More than 400,000 marriages will fail this year, the Catholic Digest states. For every four couples who vow to stay together until death, one couple decides not to wait that long.

All kinds of people get divorces. Most, though, are under 35, and about half are childless couples who have been married five years or less. The divorces share other characteristics, too. These conditions indicate a greater likelihood of divorce:

1. Urban background.
2. Marriage at 15 to 19 (the teen-age divorce rate is about three times the general rate).
3. Short acquaintanceship before marriage.
4. Parents with unhappy marriages.
5. Lack of attendance at church.
6. Mixed religion.
7. Disapproval of the marriage by relatives and friends.
8. Dissimilarity in social and economic status.
9. Different ideas of husband and wife about marital obligations.

NO DRINK FOR CHIEF

An old Indian chief and his wife were guests of honor at a state Izaak Walton meeting held in one of those rambling old summer hotels with thin walls and few bathrooms.

Things finally quieted down for the night and the faithful squad had her chief tucked carefully in bed. But the chief didn't rest well. The dinner had been highly seasoned. Much more so than his usual reservation fare. So every 30 or 40 minutes during the night he would grunt loudly and tell his wife to fetch him a drink. She would dutifully climb out of bed and clump down the corridor after a drink for the chief.

The other guests couldn't help but hear the chief's commands and her journeys and became somewhat annoyed. Towards morning the squad went after water, but returned empty handed. She reported to the chief:

"Ugh. Big Chief get no drink. White lady sit on well, now!"

NEIGHBORS, NOT FOREIGNERS

It is probable that before too long bulletin boards at a number of major air terminals scattered throughout the nation will be announcing departure and arrival times of direct flights to such exotic sounding places as Hong Kong, Bangkok, Tahiti and many others.

According to recent press releases, a major U.S. international airline is seeking government authority to operate flights from five major East Coast and Midwest cities to the Pacific and the Far East. The best part of the proposed expanded air service from the standpoint of the traveling public are the projected fares. They would be 20 to 30 per cent less than at present. A round-trip excursion from New York to Tokyo, for example, would be offered at $629. New York to Hawaii would cost $400 round trip. New long-range Super-jets will make such service possible. All of this means that the world in effect is becoming smaller and more accessible to the average person.

In the past, a comparative handful of people were able to enjoy the experience of becoming acquainted with the customs and peoples of other lands -- peoples who, in the minds of most individuals, were all lumped together in one category that was somehow suspect. They were "foreigners". It is not too much to hope that one day, instead of foreigners, there will be only neighbors. This has been the dream of pioneers in the world of international air transport for many years.

DOC DUNCAN SAYS: Looks like instead of mass production of laws to gouge John O. Public it's high time John O. was wised up to a few good laws in his favor. For example, where a man and his family works, scrimps and saves and acqires an estate then he posses on, if he forms a corporation before hand then his estate passes to his heirs, no tax. no administration. no probate court cost. on the other hand if his estate passes through probate court and an administrator, the cost many times runs to 20% and on top of that many times it is necessary to auction it. then it's at the mercy of the public and for all practical purposes destroyed as a working organization.

Why not correct this by a bit of information and a correction of this old system.

COMPULSORY NON-MILITARY SERVICE

For many months the federal government has been attempting to accustom the American people to a proposal which would be a huge step toward total government control over the lives of individual citizens. Officials throughout the administration are backing the idea of mandatory national service for every American youth; military service for some, anti-poverty, peace corps, or related work for the majority.

If adopted, this plan would require that every American youth, upon reaching a certain age, register with the government. He would then be assigned to one or another of the various federal projects for a specified number of years.

Robert McNamara and Sargent Shriver, among others, support this proposal. Although most Americans are unaware of the plan, a National Service Secretariat has already been created, held meetings, and submitted proposals to the President.

This plan is inherently dangerous. It gives the federal government direct and almost absolute control over the lives of citizens during the years when they would be forced to participate in this program. There would be almost no way for an individual to preserve his freedom to direct his own life.

Adherents of this plan conveniently ignore the cost of organizing and training the young people participating in the program, which would be enormous. More bureaucrats would be needed to administer the program, and more money would be wasted.

But the most critical danger is the amount of power over individuals that such a proposal would place in the hands of government. If our country is to remain free, such power must never be granted. HLH

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Gen. Julius Klein, who finagled Sen. Tom Dodd into being his messenger boy in West Germany, is up to his old operations again.

This time he is trying to arrange for a German company, Rheinmetall, Hitler's second largest arms manufacturer, which used slave labor under the Nazis, to start manufacturing in the United States.

Rheinmetall is a company with few friends in the USA outside of Gen. Klein. Of its five officers, three are former Nazi party members, and its president, Otto Paul Caesar, was a plant manager for Rheinmetall during the war where he used slave labor.

According to Adolph Held, president of the Jewish Labor Committee, "a special camp for Jewish women and girls recruited from Buchenwald by Rheinmetall was built by Rheinmetall at Sommerda in Thuringia. Over 1,200 Jewish women were employed in that camp alone. The evidence is overwhelming that they were forced to work under the most inhumane circumstances."

Gen. Klein, a retired officer of the Illinois National Guard, is a man who wears his religion on his sleeve. He is a former commander of the Jewish war veterans, and in a letter to editors during the Dodd censure debate emphasized eleven times that he is a Jew. Despite this, he has been an eager beaver in trying to arrange for Rheinmetall to operate in the USA.

CONFIDENTIAL MEMO

Rheinmetall is the company which secured a $75 million defense department contract to manufacture the 20 MM Hispano - Suiza rapid - firing cannon in Germany for the U.S. army. The contract was hotly contested, first because it contributed to the closing of the century - and - a - half-old Springfield, Mass., armory, which had been turning out weapons for the American army ever since the revolutionary war; second, because Rheinmetall had not paid the claims of slave labor survivors. Finally, after the defense department held up the contract, Rheinmetall last year paid restitution money to the extent of $600,000.

What Gen. Klein now wants is an arrangement whereby Rheinmetall would manufacture the 20 MM cannon in the United States. To this end he arranged several meetings for Otto Caesar, the ex-Nazi president of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, of Rheinmetall, with representatives of a respectable German firm, Diehl. Curtiss - Wright was also approached as a participant.

It's understood that Curtiss-Wright was not interested.

This column has obtained confidential minutes of a meeting held by Gen. Klein in Chicago with Caesar of Rheinmetall, and others. Since Klein is a past master at issuing denials, and may deny this, here are some quotes from his confidential memo, dated May 5, 1967:

"The meeting with the Rheinmetall - Diehl people lasted until 11 o'clock last night. Present were Mrs. Caesar, Mr. Blume and Mr. Flacke of Rheinmetall, and Mr. Diehl and his own right-hand man, Mr. Von Prsychowski (known in the trade as Mr. Von P), and, of course, I.

"It was in my estimation a very good and successful meeting, in which all phases of the future including the present so-called USA - Hocht combine were discussed," Gen. Klein reported.

"Rheinmetall and Diehl have agreed to a joint venture in the U.S., not only on the know-how but possibly also furnishing machinery, technicians, etc., and whatever is necessary for a profitable U.S. venture.

"They are very much interested in Curtis - Wright or a similar firm. . .

ANOTHER KLEIN CLIENT?

"My recommendation that my brother Max and Mr. Wiggins fly over to Germany to discuss the technical aspect and also the possibility of cooperating with Curtiss - Wright or other firms was accepted. They have set the week of June 26 to July 1 for such a meeting. . ."

The Wiggins referred to above is Charles Wiggins, a Washington public relations man who has had a problem with alcohol. He was arrested in the District of Columbia for drunkenness on February 7, 1965.

Klein, of course, was not unaware that if the Rheinmetall-Diehl combine got established in the USA his firm might handle its public relations. The memo stated: "Of course I haven't discussed any extra arrangements for JKPR (Julius Klein Public Relations, Inc.) with Mr. Diehl yet, as after all I do represent Rheinmetall already. But this will be done at a later date after Rheinmetall and Diehl conclude their own agreement and then Mr. Caesar will urge Mr. Diehl to make an agreement with us too. . .

"It was no use for me to discuss this agreement until Rheinmetall and Diehl conclude their own binding agreement."

After further discussing plans to manufacture the Hispano-Suiza 20 MM cannon, Gen. Klein concluded: "This covers in a thumbnail the result of my meeting, and I am satisfied. Of course we will have to discuss all possibilities when I return. I will also be guided by the advice of the Chicago and Washington JKPR staff."

Note: The official position of the Johnson administration regarding Rheinmetall was outlined March 7, 1966, by assistant secretary of state Douglas MacArthur II as follows:

"It appears that of the five present principal officers of Rheinmetall A. G., three were members of the Nazi party during World War II. Of these five members, two, including one of the Nazi party members, were plant managers of Rheinmetall Borsig A. G. during the war. The degree of active involvement in Nazi party activities by the three wartime members is not known."

Blackboard Power Over 2 Million Teachers Is Real Issue in School Strike News.

New York: -- Blackboard power is the name of the game, actually.

When the doors are tightly closed on the chalk - room crowd's inner sanctum, teachers' union leaders talk excitedly about eventually administering a vast single organization of some 2 million instructors -- in parochial as well as public schools, in universities as well as improvised poverty schools.

Basically and bluntly that's why the teachers here hit the bricks. Their leaders were determined that the AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers (UFT) would deliver the juiciest contract ever. This would make it the real power bloc in the small parent American Federation of Teachers (AFT) -- which in turn they hope to make the launching pad for the campaign against the 1,030,000 - member National Education Assn. (NEA).

Out of such a foundation could come the thrust for leadership of a "new - breed" American labor movement in a decade or two. Remember that the New York strike leader, UFT president Al Shanker, is 38 years old.

True, there are nasty immediate issues which few here mention publicly in polite society. Some of these issues are the same as those which affect the firemen and telephone workers in high crime areas. The communications repairmen are frightened to go in. So are the teachers. They have long wanted some sort of authority to handle "disruptive students." There is evidence of thousands of incidents involving muggers, rapists, knife wielders, narcotics pushers and the like, right in the corridors. And when the winter comes on with its early darkness, teachers gather for a swift dash to the buses and subways.

Over in one section of Brooklyn, teachers have been reviled with anti - Semitic notes. Letters are left in the instructors' boxes filled with lewd threats. Many a teacher has an unlisted telephone number. These are the printable stories. Some are not.

True, there is a matter of money. But the contracts are short term. What the UFT doesn't get this time, it will get from an insolvent city next time.

The real issue, therefore, is blackboard power among the teachers of the land. Fact is that the AFL-CIO teachers union -- despite all the hubbub and brick pounding -- has not done so well in academic circles.

Back about 1960 the AFT had some 50,000 members. Then came Walter Reuther and his AFL-CIO Industrial Union Dept. They sent in organizers. They put a steady staff into New York. They revamped the AFT's Chicago office. They put militant Charley Cogen in a bright new saddle. Since 1961 they have poured in $1.1 million. They did right well in New York where it is impossible not to do right well on the labor front.

They enrolled some 49,000 members. And when they had the original membership and the newcomers all totaled up across the lad, they found they had 140,-000. This meant that outside of New York they had picked up about 40,000 dues payers.

And the AFT totaled its contract and found the other day that it has pacts in 41 school districts. Not much compared with the 1,336 exclusive NEA contracts covering 650,000 certified teachers in 45 states. Thus the so-called militant teachers who now are striking regularly under the AFT leadership have 3 per cent of the exclusive bargaining contracts compared with the 93.7 per cent negotiated by the 100-yard-old NEA.

The so-called old lady of the teaching business turns out to be a mighty spry chick. It has not gone to pot with flower power. When the AFT teachers began moving, there was parellel NEA action. The Washington-based association -- housed in a big block - long structure and employing about 1,000 staffers -- began collective bargaining five years ago. These pacts are negotiated by officials of the NEA's 8000 local affiliates in 56 state units.

They can get tough, too, though they don't hit the bricks. In Florida early in June, for example, the Education Assn. voted $100,000 for a campaign to warn industry from moving into the state until the authorities met the teachers' demands. I was in Tallahassee then and inquired to see if they were serious. They certainly were -- and are. In Washington the other day I was told that the Florida Education Assn. still surveyed the state to learn where the big companies were looking for location sites, and then devised strategy for constant contact with the corporations.

"We've contacted such firms as IBM, Union Carbide, etc.," said a spokesman "with telegrams, letters and personal messages to stay out of the state."

The NEA makes no fetish of militancy, however. Under its current president, Braulio Alonso, a Tampa, Fla., high school principal on leave, the huge organization runs a vast enterprise made up of 17 headquarters divisions, 33 departments, one institute, and 25 commissions and committees. It's a professional organization such as the American Medical Assn. And it has no more intention of yielding to the strike-happy unionists than the doctors have of throwing away their stethescopes and loops.

So the struggle goes. Blackboard power will mean -- eventually -- terrific influence over the nation's youth. There is the real issue.

Mrs. Paul Robert Stuckey

Miss Sharon Lee Dennis Weds Paul Robert Stuckey

BENTON -- Miss Sharon Lee Dennis and Paul Robert Stuckey were married in a double ring ceremony Aug. 26, at the Benton Methodist church. The Rev. Albert Gibbs officiated.

Bakets of white gladioli, greenery and an arched candelabra provided the background for the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dennis. Stuckey is the son of Mrs. Viola Stuckey, route one.

Music for the wedding included "Because," "I'll Walk Beside You", and "The Wedding Prayer," sung by Miss Pam Lambert. Miss Luanne Lough, organist, accompanied her.

Candlelighters for the ceremony were Mrs. Gaylon Harper and Miss Diane Swinger. They wore light pink sheath dresses of dotted swiss.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace. The cage fashion dress was floor length with scallops at the hemline and at the edges of the elbow length kabuka style sleeves. The sabrina neckline was also scalloped. The front of the bodice and sleeves were re-embroidered with seed pearls. A detachable queens train of the same lace fell from the shoulders and swept to chapel length. The edges of the train were also scalloped.

Her headdress was a cluster of rose buds entwined with pearls and organza flowers accented with pearl stamin. Lily of the valley accented the front of the headdress. The veil was two-tiers of hand rolled English silk illusion.

The bride carried a cascade of stephanotis, lily of the valley, and two orchids.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Larry Hopper of Bowling Green who was dressed in a shocking pink floor length gown made of linen. The gown was empire styled and accented with daisies with pink centers at the waist line and again at the hemline.

Maid of honor was Miss Kay Dennis, also a sister of the Bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Cathey of Charleston and Miss Carla Beardslee of Commerce. They wore the gowns like that of the matron of honor made of sugar pink linen.

The bridal attendants carried white colonial holders with pink daises and white streamers. Corsages of white cornations were worn by other women members of the bridal party.

The attendants' headpieces consisted of single pink flowers with nosetip veils attached. The veils were dyed to match their gowns.

Patty Pack and Anita Stuckey, both nieces of the groom, were junior bridesmaids. They wore gowns identical to the bridesmaids in a lighter shade of pink. Their headpieces were identical to the bridesmaids.

Lisa Hopper, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a gown identical to those of the junior bridesmaids. She carried a white lace basket with pink rose petals. Her headpiece was a band of pink flowers accented with pink streamers.

Chuck Stuckey, nephew of the groom, was ring bearer. He carried a satin pillow with white streamers.

Best man was Frank Stuckey of Fenton, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Randy South of Essex, Dale Stuckey, both nephews of the groom, and Steve Urhahn. Ushers were Larry Hopper of Bowling Green, Ky., and Charles Stuckey of Ballwin, also a brother of the groom.

Mrs. Dennis chose for her daughter's wedding a dress and coat ensemble of imported beige lace. She wore beige shoes and gloves, and carried an evening clutch bag. Mrs. Stuckey selected a dress of pink linen. She wore white shoes and gloves and carried a handbag to match. Both mothers wore orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the American Legion Hall. Guests were registered by Miss Jane Schiwitz, niece of the groom.

Presiding at the reception table were Miss Barbara Schiwitz, Miss Betty Stuckey, nieces of the groom, and Miss Connie Lovett.

The couple spent their honeymoon at Gatlinburg, Tenn., in the Smoky Mountains.

For travel, the new Mrs. Stuckey selected a light mint green dress of dotted swiss and whip cream. She wore white gloves, white heels, and the two orchids from her bridal bouquet.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Stuckey graduated from Kelly high school. Stuckey is employed at the Scott County Co-op. They will live on route one.

Spradling Tells of Need for More Nurses

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Only in Iowa and Vermont do people live longer than they do in Missouri, State Sen. Albert M. Spradling told a joint meeting of the Licensed Practical Nurses Association and the Registered Nurses Association Tuesday. His remarks on longevity were made in his address on the "New Revolution in Health Care."

Spradling discussed the acute shortage of nurses and pointed out that the salaries of nurses in Missouri are the lowest of any state.

One out of every 10 people in Missouri need treatment, he noted, and said that Medicare - and Medicaid, to be offered beginning Oct. 13 - indicate that nurses will be flooded with demands for their services. It will take 15 years to train enough people for the health care agreed upon through Medicare and Medicaid, he said.

He also noted that a number of hospitals have been closed in Missouri because of a lack of nurses, and that there are few facilities for the care of the aged.

In conclusion he commented on the psychiatric cases which have swelled hospital populations and said that if more people would go to church on Sunday it would do much for the solution of emotional problems leading to illness.

While studying in Boston, I boarded in the home of an elderly couple. The wife had been deaf since childhood. With the persuasion of her doctor, she finally agreed to an operation to restore her hearing.

The day after she came home, I found her in a depressed mood at the breakfast table. Accustomed to her cheerful smile, I asked if something was wrong. "Something certainly is," she replied. "I can't sleep a wink. Fred snores."

Mrs. Paul Robert Stuckey

Miss Sharon Lee Dennis Weds Paul Robert Stuckey

BENTON -- Miss Sharon Lee Dennis and Paul Robert Stuckey were married in a double ring ceremony Aug. 26, at the Benton Methodist church. The Rev. Albert Gibbs officiated.

Bakets of white gladioli, greenery and an arched candelabra provided the background for the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dennis. Stuckey is the son of Mrs. Viola Stuckey, route one.

Music for the wedding included "Because," "I'll Walk Beside You", and "The Wedding Prayer," sung by Miss Pam Lambert. Miss Luanne Lough, organist, accompanied her.

Candlelighters for the ceremony were Mrs. Gaylon Harper and Miss Diane Swinger. They wore light pink sheath dresses of dotted swiss.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported Chantilly lace. The cage fashion dress was floor length with scallops at the hemline and at the edges of the elbow length kabuka style sleeves. The sabrina neckline was also scalloped. The front of the bodice and sleeves were re-embroidered with seed pearls. A detachable queens train of the same lace fell from the shoulders and swept to chapel length. The edges of the train were also scalloped.

Her headdress was a cluster of rose buds entwined with pearls and organza flowers accented with pearl stamin. Lily of the valley accented the front of the headdress. The veil was two-tiers of hand rolled English silk illusion.

The bride carried a cascade of stephanotis, lily of the valley, and two orchids.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Larry Hopper of Bowling Green who was dressed in a shocking pink floor length gown made of linen. The gown was empire styled and accented with daisies with pink centers at the waist line and again at the hemline.

Maid of honor was Miss Kay Dennis, also a sister of the Bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. John Cathey of Charleston and Miss Carla Beardslee of Commerce. They wore the gowns like that of the matron of honor made of sugar pink linen.

The bridal attendants carried white colonial holders with pink daises and white streamers. Corsages of white cornations were worn by other women members of the bridal party.

The attendants' headpieces consisted of single pink flowers with nosetip veils attached. The veils were dyed to match their gowns.

Defensive Battle Slated Tonight

The vicious Perryville offense along with its stingy defense converge upon Public School stadium tonight at 7:30 p.m. for a northern conference clash, which shapes up as a defensive battle.

Perryville, who opened its season last week as did the Bulldogs, scored 44 points in its romp over Potosi, while the Dogs shaved off 28 points from the Chaffee squad's defense while holding them scoreless.

Tonight's encounter of Bulldogs against Pirates will be a defensive battle from the start and from there it is no telling what will happen.

Coach George Loss, of Perryville in his first season as head mentor of the Pirates is optimistic about the swift Bulldog backfield.

With such speedsters as Dennis Snelling, Arthur Jackson and Eddie Felker, along with the strong Bruce Farris in the backfield the Bulldogs hold a slight edge over the Pirates.

The starting lineup for the Dogs is expected to be the same on both offense and defense with the exception of Gary Long, who was sidelined for the season in last Friday's game and will be replaced by King Sidwell, a 163-pound senior. Sidwell will be wearing number 82 on the defensive squad.

With the departure of Long, Sophomore Lee Bowman will move into a Bulldog dress uniform in his place. Bowman, 145 pounds, will wear number 30.

Perryville sends eight seniors into tonight's starting lineup.

The Pirates will have three juniors in the backfield in quarterback Jim Taylor and fullbacks Allen Frentzel and Doyle Mahnken.

Perryville's starting offensive unit in weight ranges from 148 pounds in halfback Mike Gotto to their 190-pound center Keith Meyr.

The Pirates used an aggressive aerial attack at Potosi last week and are primed to strike the Dogs the same way.

Mules' Moss Leads District Scoring

Poplar Bluff's 46-0 romp over Springfield Glendale last week on the rain slick field at Mule stadium sparked by Leroy Moss of scoring.

Moss raced for three touchdowns and Brown cracked the Glendale defense for a pair of touchdowns to lead the first week and All-Stater John Brown gave those two part of the Southeast Missouri scoring lead going into the second week of action tonight.

With Bluff, Portageville, Hayti and Perryville posting rousing season opener victories, all three place players high in the scoring race.

Dennis Fisher of Portageville racked up two touchdowns and four extra points in the Bulldogs 65-0 romp over Manila, Ark. last week and is second in the scoring race, leading the southern division.

The Bluff's Ben Wyatt had a touchdown and four extra points to rack up 10 points for fourth place in the Northern division scoring race, Mike Gotto of Perryville is in third with a TD and five extra points.

Linza Killion of Portageville and Warren Jones of Hayti North are tied for second in the southern scoring race with a pair of touchdowns each and are the only other players in either conference, besides the ones mentioned, to score in double figures on opening night.

With no-conference games being played last week, the individual conference standings this week find five teams in the northern division tied for first place and four tied in the south, with only one team, Caruthersville, not playing.

The defending northern division champs, Poplar Bluff, with a 46-point first night heads the North list with Charleston followed by Perryville with 44 points third and Sikeston fourth, both with 28 points and Cape Central fifth with 21 points. Kennett was the only Northern division team to fail to score last week is in sixth place followed by Jackson with six points All the first five teams in the north held their opposition scoreless last week

Portageville heads the south with 65 points followed by Hayti North with 32 and Dexter is third with 12 points. Malden fourth with six points.

Three teams in the South held their opposition scoreless last week, Malden, Portageville and Hayti North. Caruthersville with no-record is fifth, Chaffee 0-1 is sixth, East Prairie 0-1 is seventh and Ilmo-Scott City, 0-1 is eighth.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

It's time to start this week's high school football guessing game with our little friend Devil as the prep squads move into their second week of action.

We'll not waste any time in going through a lot of details in giving you tonight's outlook. . .

ILLMO-SCOTT CITY at GIDEON -- We're just not sure how this one will come out . . . We do know something for sure. . . and that's one of these teams will post at least one victory this season. . . maybe not tonight but later at this season. We see Illmo as tonight's winner. Illmo-Scott City 7, Gideon 6.

DEXTER at PORTAGEVILLE -- The Bulldogs' offense exploded in Arkansas last week. . . can it explode in Missouri?. . . We think so . . but not enough to beat the Cats. Dexter 13, Portageville 12.

CHAFFEE at EAST PRAIRIE -- Let's say the Red Devils will score and score a victory. Chaffee 13, East Prairie 12.

HAYTI at CARUTHERSVILLE -- The Tigers have been waiting for the Indians' invasion for a week and watched them nurse Gideon last week. . . They'll strike tonight Caruthersville 21, Hayti 7.

PERRYVILLE at SIKESTON -- Either the Bulldogs or Pirates will emerge with number two. . . We see coach Sapp's crew dismantling Perryville's defense and scoring a 28-0 victory.

KENNETT at POPLAR BLUFF - The Mules are high after their season opening victory and will notch the Indians off their schedule with a rousing victory for their 16th straight. Poplar Bluff 35, Kennett 6.

MALDEN at JACKSON -- The Waves were not so high last Friday and are expected to have their time tonight . . . Malden 13, Jackson 12.

CHARLESTON at METROPOLIS, Ill. -- The Jays are in fine shape and will knock off their Illinois foes. Charleston 20, Metropolis 13.

CAPE GIRARDEAU at CARBONDALE -- This will be a real second test for the Tigers of Coach Dutch Myer. . . They're strong and will return to the Show Me state with a 14-6 victory.

Year For The Indians In MIAA

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kenneth Knox heads into his 16th coaching season at Cape Girardeau State with high hopes for his sixth MIAA football championship. Other top contenders in the season which opens Saturday are defending champ Springfield State and Maryville State.

Knox returns 31 of 35 lettermen from the Cape team which finished as runner-up last year, including quarterback Greg Brune, a good passer, and halfbacks Walt Smallwood and John Diepenbrock.

This is why Knox has a good shot at Cape's first crown since 1962. Knox's 15-year record at Cape is 80-57-4. In the same span, Cape was surpassed only by Kirksville State under Maurice Wade, 98-42-2 with eight championships.

Wade resigned after his club failed to win an MIAA game in an injury-filled '66 season. New coach Marvin Braden could have the surprise team of the league. He points out that 13 of his 17 lettermen played on the 1965 league championship club, the fourth in a six year period. Springfield could be every bit as good as the '66 title team and still miss the crown. Coach Jim Mentis has 23 lettermen and another solid defensive club headed by middle guard Sam McDowell,i 6-foot-7, and 328 pounds, and tackle Pat Talburt, 6-4 by 276.

Ivan Schottel begins his fifth year at Maryville with more experience and depth than any previous season. Halfback Joe Spinello and quarterback Don Orlowski head a strong attack. Middle guard Bob Leach is a one.

Both Warrensburg State and Rolla Mines, tied last year for the last two spots, expect to be stronger. Howard Mahanes will have quarterback Ken Brumley for the entire season. He was hurt the last five games of '66. Dewey Allgood has 24 lettermen returning at Rolla, plus some top transfers.

In Saturday's openers, Kirksville plays at Southern Illinois, 9nsas A&M at Maryville, Harding, Ark., at Rolla, Warrensburg at Ball State, Cape at Evansville and Springfield at Emporia State.

Night Desk

Our Sports Night desk will be open from 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. each Friday night and Saturday morning during the prep gridiron football season.

All coaches are reminded to call in their game during that time in order to keep receiving their complimentary paper.

New and Unexpected White Sox Rooter

By the Associated Press

The Chicago White Sox, whose ability to win with a minimum of runs is beginning to reach ridiculous proportions, have picked up a new and unexpected rooter.

For the second time in as many days, the White Sox, in fourth place in the tight American League pennant scramble, went into extra innings in a scoreless tie with Cleveland Thursday, and for the second time, they came out winners. The score was 4-0.

Today, the Sox open a three-game series with Minnesota, tied with Boston for the league lead, and the heavy-hitting Twins aren't likely to give Chicago all those extra innings to get some runs.

Somebody who hopes the Sox score early and often is Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers, who are in third place, a game behind Boston and Minnesota.

"This is the first time all year I'll be rooting for Stanky," said Kaline of Chicago Manager Eddie Stanky. The Tigers have no more games left with the Twins and must depend on the other clubs to help out by beating the front-runners.

In the only other major league game scheduled Thursday, Atlanta beat the New York Mets 5-4 in the National League.

Chicago and Cleveland, who went 17 innings Wednesday before the White Sox won 1-0, seemed ready to do it again Thursday.

Cisco Carlos, a rookie pitcher just up from Indianapolis, was performing brilliantly on the mound, but the Chicago bats were silent, as is often the case.

Carlos didn't allow a single man past second base for the Indians and surrendered only five hits. Meanwhile, three Cleveland hurlers— Steve Hargan, Stan Williams and Orlando Pena— stopped the Sox until the fateful 10th.

Singles by Ron Hansen and Duane Josephson and an intentional pass to Smoky Burgess loaded the bases with one out. Ken Boyer struck out, but then Pena delivered a grand slam home run ball to Don Buford and that ended it.

Chicago now is 2½ games behind the front-runners, a difficult but hardly impossible situation to recover from.

The Braves beat the Mets on Mike de la Hoz' two-run single in the ninth. Hank Aaron and Mack Jones homered for the Braves and Ed Kranepool hit a three-run shot for the Mets.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. Auto Club has indirectly banned the controversial turbine car in next year's Indianapolis 500-mile race, but the car's owner and builder says it will be entered anyway.

Anthony Granatelli told the Los Angeles Times: "I have no intention of running any other car. I will be there with the same car . . . the same engine and the same chassis."

In the 1967 race the Granatelli jet car piloted by Parnelli Jones had bearing trouble and was forced out. But the USAC later ruled the car ineligible by placing limitations on the turbine engine.

Granatelli indicated Thursday he might file a lawsuit against the USAC if it does not lift the restrictions.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Walter Bond, 29, former first baseman-outfielder for the Houston Astros baseball team, died of leukemia Thursday. Bond was traded to the Minnesota Twins in the spring of 1966. But his best year in the major leagues was with Houston in 1964 when he drove in 85 runs, a club record which stood for three years.

---

BOSTON (AP)— Tony Conigliaro, star Red Sox outfielder, is out for the remainder of the American League season because of blurred vision since he was hit on the head by a pitched ball last month.

---

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Owner Charles O. Finley of the A's made his first official move toward requesting permission to move the club by notifying the city manager Thursday that he doesn't intend to exercise his option to renew the lease on Municipal Stadium.

---

LONDON, Ont. (AP) — The Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League received good news Thursday night when defenseman Bobby Orr reported to training camp.

Orr, injured in an exhibition game at Winnipeg this summer, had a cast removed from his right leg last week and has been doing light exercises since that time.

Defensive Battle Slated Tonight

The vicious Perryville offense along with its stingy defense converge upon Public School stadium tonight at 7:30 p.m. for a northern conference clash, which shapes up as a defensive battle.

Perryville, who opened its season last week as did the Bulldogs, scored 44 points in its romp over Potosi, while the Dogs shaved off 28 points from the Chaffee squad's defense while holding them scoreless.

Tonight's encounter of Bulldogs against Pirates will be a defensive battle from the start and from there it is no telling what will happen.

Coach George Loss, of Perryville in his first season as head mentor of the Pirates is optimistic about the swift Bulldog backfield.

With such speedsters as Dennis Snelling, Arthur Jackson and Eddie Felker, along with the strong Bruce Farris in the backfield the Bulldogs hold a slight edge over the Pirates.

The starting lineup for the Dogs is expected to be the same on both offense and defense with the exception of Gary Long, who was sidelined for the season in last Friday's game and will be replaced by King Sidwell, a 163-pound senior. Sidwell will be wearing number 82 on the defensive squad.

With the departure of Long, Sophomore Lee Bowman will move into a Bulldog dress uniform in his place. Bowman, 145 pounds, will wear number 30.

Perryville sends eight seniors into tonight's starting lineup.

The Pirates will have three juniors in the backfield in quarterback Jim Taylor and fullbacks Allen Frentzel and Doyle Mahnken.

Perryville's starting offensive unit in weight ranges from 148 pounds in halfback Mike Gotto to their 190-pound center Keith Meyr.

The Pirates used an aggressive aerial attack at Potosi last week and are primed to strike the Dogs the same way

Mules' Moss Leads District Scoring

Poplar Bluff's 46-0 romp over Springfield Glendale last week on the rain slick field at Mule stadium sparked by Leroy Moss

Moss raced for three touchdowns and Brown cracked the Glendale defense for a pair of touchdowns to lead the first week of scoring.

ead All-Stater John Brown gave those two part of the Southeast Missouri scoring lead going into the second week of action tonight.

With Bluff, Portageville, Hayti and Perryville posting rousing season opener victories, all three place players high in the scoring race.

Dennis Fisher of Portageville racked up two touchdowns and four extra points in the Bulldogs 65-0 romp over Manila, Ark. last week and is second in the scoring race, leading the southern division.

The Bluff's Ben Wyatt had a touchdown and four extra points to rack up 10 points for fourth place in the Northern division scoring race, Mike Gotto of Perryville is in third with a TD and five extra points.

Linza Killion of Portageville and Warren Jones of Hayti North are tied for second in the southern scoring race with a pair of touchdowns each and are the only other players in either conference, besides the ones mentioned, to score in double figures on opening night.

With no-conference games being played last week, the individual conference standings this week find five teams in the northern division tied for first place and four tied in the south, with only one team, Caruthersville, not playing.

The defending northern division champs, Poplar Bluff, with a 46-point first night heads the North list with Charleston followed by Perryville with 44 points third and Sikeston fourth, both with 28 points and Cape Central fifth with 21 points. Kennett was the only Northern division team to fail to score last week is in sixth place followed by Jackson with six points. All the first five teams in the north held their opposition scoreless last week

Portageville heads the south with 65 points followed by Hayti North with 32 and Dexter is third with 12 points. Malden fourth with six points.

Three teams in the South held their opposition scoreless last week, Malden, Portageville and Hayti North. Caruthersville with no-record is fifth, Chaffee 0-1 is sixth, East Prairie 0-1 is seventh and Illmo-Scott City, 0-1 is eighth.

Sports Corner

By RON JAYNES

It's time to start this week's high school football guessing game with our little friend Devil as the prep squads move into their second week of action.

We'll not waste any time in going through a lot of details in giving you tonight's outlook. . .

ILLMO-SCOTT CITY at GIDEON -- We're just not sure how this one will come out . . . We do know something for sure. . . and that's one of these teams will post at least one victory this season. . . maybe not tonight but later at this season. We see Illmo as tonight's winner. Illmo-Scott City 7, Gideon 6.

DEXTER at PORTAGEVILLE -- The Bulldogs' offense exploded in Arkansas last week. . . can it explode in Missouri?. . . We think so . . but not enough to beat the Cats. Dexter 13, Portageville 12.

CHAFFEE at EAST PRAIRIE -- Let's say the Red Devils will score and score a victory. Chaffee 19, East Prairie 12.

HAYTI at CARUTHERSVILLE -- The Tigers have been waiting for the Indians' invasion for a week and watched them nurse Gideon last week. . . They'll strike tonight Caruthersville 21, Hayti 7.

PERRYVILLE at SIKESTON -- Either the Bulldogs or Pirates will emerge with number two. . . We see coach Sapp's crew dismantling Perryville's defense and scoring a 28-0 victory.

KENNETT at POPLAR BLUFF -- The Mules are high after their season opening victory and will notch the Indians off their schedule with a rousing victory for their 16th straight. Poplar Bluff 35, Kennett 6.

MALDEN at JACKSON -- The Waves were not so high last Friday and are expected to have their time tonight . . . Malden 13, Jackson 12.

CHARLESTON at METROPOLIS, Ill. -- The Jays are in fine shape and will knock off their Illinois foes. Charleston 20, Metropolis 13.

CAPE GIRARDEAU at CARBONDALE -- This will be a real second test for the Tigers of Coach Dutch Myer. . . They're strong and will return to the Show Me state with a 14-6 victory.

Ann Landers

Friend's Lie About Injury Puts Office Worker on Spot

Dear Ann Landers: I need some advice and fast. A woman I work with telephoned me at the office this morning and said she would not be in because she was "seriously injured in an auto accident." I asked how she could be phoning if she was "seriously hurt." She replied, "I'm not REALLY hurt, Dummy. A taxi brushed my leg so I laid down in the street and said my back was killing me. I'm going to collect enough insurance to go to Europe for two months."

When I asked her how she planned to get away with such a phony stunt she replied, "It's easy. Back injuries are hard to prove or disprove. The insurance companies would rather pay off than go through a jury trial. Public sentiment is with the little guy, you know." Then she said, "I have to hang up now and start moaning. The nurses will be in any minute to take me for X-rays."

I am thoroughly disgusted with this crook and have a strong inclination to tip off the cab company or the insurance company. My husband says, "Stay out of it." I told him I was going to write to you and take your advice. What is it? --- HATE CHISELERS

Dear H. C.: Stay out of it. But don't think for a minute your friend is going to get away with anything. The insurance companies see these crooks every day. They know all the tricks. Eventually they'll catch up with her and when they do she'll be a plenty sad apple.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print my letter for the benefit of the mother who has the diabetic child and is determined to keep his illness a secret because she wants him to feel "normal."

If the boy goes into insulin shock and no one knows what is wrong with him, the mother will wish everyone in the world knew about his illness so someone could help him.

Please print my letter, Ann. I would hate to think that a little boy might die because of his mother's ignorance.--HILLSBORO

Dear H.: I didn't realize how common diabetes was among youngsters until that letter appeared. Hundreds of mothers of diabetic children have written as you did. My thanks to you all.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a divorced woman who works to support herself and her child. A very fine gentleman has asked me out several times these past few months and I have had to engage a sitter to stay with my little girl.

Last week the gentleman offered to pay the sitter but I refused. Some friends with whom I discussed this problem (it is a problem because I am on a tight budget) say I should not be bashful about accepting the gentleman's offer. He is not wealthy but money is not the problem with him that it is with me. What is your advice? ---FLAT PURSE

Dear Flat: A lady pays her sitter, even though the gentleman offers, and is loaded. If the lady should become engaged to the gentleman, the situation changes, and so does the advice.

How far should a teen-age couple go? Can necking be safe? When does it become too hot to handle? Send for Ann Landers booklet, "Necking And Petting -- What Are The Limits?" Mail your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Auto Insurance Blacklist Cases Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are taking a close look at automobile insurance companies which privately discourage business with people ranging from construction workers to clergymen.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., is reportedly concerned that increasing numbers of people face insurance rejection or high risk rates on one hand, and state automobile coverage requirements on the other.

The House Judiciary Committee is surveying 20 major automobile insurance firms for information in a preliminary inquiry which could lead to a full, public probe.

Hart's Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee has obtained a dossier of the guidelines set down for agents by 23 insurance companies.

It covers instructions in effect as of March 31. The firms represented list a wide variety of occupations as undesirable for auto insurance.

Dean E. Sharp, assistant counsel to the Senate subcommittee, said the dossier in that panel's files indicates many companies automatically prohibit sale of insurance to people rejected or canceled by other companies.

Thus, he said, each company's undesirable list applies to most of the others. "This amounts to a blacklist," he said.

Vatican Turns Away Miniskirt Wearers

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Papal gendarmes have begun turning away females wearing miniskirts in places of worship and other sites in the Vatican.

Women baring too much thigh were politely barred Thursday from St. Peter's Basilica, the Sistine Chapel and the Vatican museum.

Consulate Seizure Protested

LONDON (AP) — Britain has protested Red China's seizure of its 116-year-old consulate in Shanghai and plans a formal note demanding compensation and restating British rights to the property.

The British Foreign Office said the Shanghai Revolutionary Committee seized the consulate Sept. 9.

The big walled compound was unmanned at the time, Consul General Peter Hewett having been forced to leave with his family last May after he was mauled and smeared with glue by rampaging Red Guards.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia assailed Mao Tse-tung for letting his Red Guards violate diplomatic immunity by attacking foreign embassies and mistreating diplomats.

Moscow radio declared that Mao had purged more than half the members of his Communist party central committee but was still unable to bring China under control. The broadcast said there was evidence that anti-Mao elements have in fact "grown to assume great power."

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said a Red Chinese paper has accused the wife of President Liu Shao-chi of having her enemies roasted, frozen and hanged upside down. Liu's wife, Wang Kuang-mei, has been the target of a number of attacks, apparently as a means of hitting at Liu.

Fines Levied At Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD -- Judge Koss W. Blomeyer heard these cases in magistrate court.

State vs. J. L. Thornburgh, insufficient funds check, dismissed at cost of defendant.

State vs. John Earl Turnage, careless and imprudent driving, fined $10 plus costs.

State vs. Norman E. (A) Johnson, careless and imprudent driving, drinking, accident, fined $25 plus costs.

State vs. Norman E. (A) Johnson, no Missouri operator license, fined $5 plus costs.

State vs. James Robert McClard, careless and imprudent driving, accident, fined $15 plus costs.

State vs. Alfred Haywood Snipes, careless and imprudent driving, accident, fined $15 plus costs.

State vs. Alfred Haywood Snipes, careless and imprudent driving, fined $10 plus costs.

State vs. John Henry Lofton, driving while intoxicated, fined $100 and surrender of permit.

State vs. Dennis Ray Haggard, careless and imprudent driving, accident, fined $15 plus costs.

State vs. Roy Jones, non-support, defendant to report back Sept. 21.

State vs. Ralph Griffith, no funds check, passed to Sept. 14, bond et at $1000.

State vs. Elmer Gwinn, public drunk and disorderly, fined $10 plus costs.

The POWER of FAITH

By Woodi Ishmael

Lt. Col. Robert Rushworth has flown closer to the stars than any man except the astronauts. He served over eight years as a test pilot for the Air Force-NASA X15 research program—and believes his faith helped him accomplish his many successful flights.

Rushworth, who also flew 178 combat missions in World War II, took the experimental rocket plane aloft 36 times and reached heights of nearly 54 miles. He piloted the aircraft—which flies fastest and highest of all winged craft—more often than any of the ten other men who have flown the plane during the program.

Rushworth believes that his work with the X15 was a service to his faith. He reflects, "I like to feel that it might bring world peace sooner, because the world is being united through faster transportation."

Auto Insurance Blacklist Cases Investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are taking a close look at automobile insurance companies which privately discourage business with people ranging from construction workers to clergymen.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D.Mich., is reportedly concerned that increasing numbers of people face insurance rejection or high risk rates on one hand, and state automobile coverage requirements on the other.

The House Judiciary Committee is surveying 20 major automobile insurance firms for information in a preliminary inquiry which could lead to a full, public probe.

Hart's Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee has obtained a dossier of the guidelines set down for agents by 23 insurance companies.

It covers instructions in effect as of March 31. The firms represented list a wide variety of occupations as undesirable for auto insurance.

Dean E. Sharp, assistant counsel to the Senate subcommittee, said the dossier in that panel's files indicates many companies automatically prohibit sale of insurance to people rejected or canceled by other companies.

Thus, he said, each company's undesirable list applies to most of the others. "This amounts to a blacklist," he said.

Consulate Seizure Protested

LONDON (AP) — Britain has protested Red China's seizure of its 116-year-old consulate in Shanghai and plans a formal note demanding compensation and restating British rights to the property.

The British Foreign Office said the Shanghai Revolutionary Committee seized the consulate Sept. 9.

The big walled compound was unmanned at the time, Consul General Peter Hewett having been forced to leave with his family last May after he was mauled and smeared with glue by rampaging Red Guards.

In Moscow, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia assailed Mao Tse-tung for letting his Red Guards violate diplomatic immunity by attacking foreign embassies and mistreating diplomats.

Moscow radio declared that Mao had purged more than half the members of his Communist party central committee but was still unable to bring China under control. The broadcast said there was evidence that anti-Mao elements have in fact "grown to assume great power."

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug said a Red Chinese paper has accused the wife of President Liu Shao-chi of having her enemies roasted, frozen and hanged upside down. Liu's wife, Wang Kuang-mei, has been the target of a number of attacks, apparently as a means of hitting at Liu.

The POWER of FAITH

B. . . ODI ISHMAEL

Lt. Col. Robert Rushworth has flown closer to the stars than any man except the astronauts. He served over eight years as a test pilot for the Air Force-NASA X15 research program—and believes his faith helped him accomplish his many successful flights.

Rushworth, who also flew 178 combat missions in World War II, took the experimental rocket plane aloft 36 times and reached heights of nearly 54 miles. He piloted the aircraft—which flies fastest and highest of all winged craft—more often than any of the ten other men who have flown the plane during the program.

Rushworth believes that his work with the X15 was a service to his faith. He reflects, "I like to feel that it might bring world peace sooner, because the world is being united through faster transportation."

Optimist Buddy League Boys See Cards Lose

A trip to watch the high flying St. Louis Cardinals in their race for the 1967 National League pennant, isn't easy if you take two bus loads of nine to 15-year-old boys.

It took the newly formed Optimist club one week to arrange such a trip and bring everyone back safely. The boys played in the optimist sponsored Buddy baseball league last summer at Dancler Park.

The 360-mile round trip Wednesday entailed a bit of maneuvering. With the cooperation of the Community Action Agency transportation became easy.

First there is a committee to make arrangements for tickets. The committee was successful in obtaining free tickets for 60 boys and 10 adult supervisors -- all in the knothole bleachers.

Optimists Wives prepared 20 dozen sandwiches.

There were bananas, apples and cookies, and 10 cases of soft drinks.

There was the problem of how to handle 60 boys without losing any. This master planning was in charge of Louis Wiggins, manager of the League.

The boys taken from Sikeston in cars to a Cape Girardeau shopping center parking lot where they boarded two buses.

The Philadelphia Phillies shut out their favorite team, 3 to 0.

Matthews R-5 Schedule Announced

Judges Propose Changes in Way Counties Run

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Second Class County Judges Association is proposing changes in legislation that affect the operation of county government in Missouri.

They want legislation raising the maximum tax levy for county general revenue above the present 50 cent ceiling. At the same time they seek a raise in the levy for county road and bridge work above the present 35 cent limit.

The judges also want to shorten the length of time required to advertise for bids and raise the amount requiring competitive bidding from $500 to $1,000. Other proposals would do away with special road districts, make payment of gasoline taxes direct to the county without state inspection and make uniform the amount the state pays to counties for welfare patients.

The Missouri County Judges Association begins a two-day meeting here today. The second class county judges will ask support from the state organization for their proposals.

Gasoline Hose Foils Robbery

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two would-be bandits tried to rob Harvey L. Bearce, 55, at a service station.

Bearce was pumping gas into the tank of their car when one of the men grabbed him. The attendant turned the gasoline hose on both men to defend himself.

Doused with gasoline they fled to their car and drove off.

Drawings Reveal Children's View Of Doctors

NEW YORK (AP) — The blank piece of framed art paper was entitled "My Doctor."

Leslie Garrison, 9, filled it in with a smiling face at the end of a giant syringe. Lori Levine, 6, placed a stick figure in a big pink heart and wrote: "I Love You Dr. Gillman."

These were just two of about 1,000 drawings made by children who were patients of New York area physicians this summer. The Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York wanted to find out whether the youngsters were happy with their physicians.

Michele Savron, 6, of the Bronx, drew a doctor in a white coat with a big smile and dangling blue earrings.

Many of the drawings, sketched in about half of the plan's 31 medical centers, picture doctors as happy, friendly brightly colored figures in neat, detailed offices.

Milton Gold, director of subscriber relations for the health plan, said the art expressed "all the typical attitudes of children" — from love of the doctor to a common fear of needles and, for the 6- to 8-year-olds, a preoccupation with bright examining lights.

Another purpose of the drawings was to keep children waiting for appointments entertained. So they were given colored pencils, crayons and art paper and a chance to win a prize for the "most interesting drawing."

The judge's panel decided it was impossible to pick only a few winners. It awarded 20 first prizes and 70 second prizes.

"We will also give 944 honorable mentions, so there will be no losers," Gold said.

Whips Key Figures in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends sat alongside the center aisle, counting his troops and making a mental note of the absentees.

On the Democratic side, Whip Hale Boggs stood at the rear of the chamber with two aides, making a list of Democrats present and voting.

The vote on an amendment to the foreign aid bill complete, Arends and Boggs disappeared into their respective cloakrooms to telephone absent members and urge them to come to the floor.

A similar scene takes place in the House during most major legislative battles. Arends and Boggs, as whips of their parties, have the jobs of getting enough members to the floor to uphold their parties' positions.

There have been whips in Congress since the turn of the century, and the British Parliament has had them since 1770. The term stems from the "whipper in" who was the man in a fox hunt responsible for keeping the hounds from leaving the pack.

Arends, 71, silver-maned Illinoisan who is the senior GOP member of the House, has been his party's whip since 1943, longer than any man in history. An effort to replace him in 1965 failed and he is considered solidly entrenched now.

Boggs, 53, holds his position by appointment of the speaker and the majority leader, unlike Arends who is elected by the GOP membership. The youngest member of the House when first elected at 26, the Louisiana Democrat has held his post since 1962.

Each operates through deputy and assistant whips. Arends has three deputies -- Reps. William H. Bates of Massachusetts, Jackson E. Betts of Ohio and Burt L. Talcott of California—while Boggs has a single deputy, John E. Moss of California. Under them are assistant whips, serving states or regions, 14 for the Republicans and 19 for the Democrats.

While Arends has to contend with up to 30 potentially balky members on most issues, Democrats have 70-80 Southerners plus some conservative border staters who frequently line up with the Republicans to oppose administration proposals.

Twice this year, on a measure to increase the national debt limit, Republicans were solidly opposed, so Democrats had to rely on Southerners to get the bill through. The first time they failed, but the second time they succeeded.

About once a month, Republicans hold a conference of the entire membership under chairman Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, often to discuss controversial issues on which the party is split.

Democratic policy, like that of any party in power, follows the lead of the White House.

On major issues, both party whips poll their memberships, through the assistant whips, to see where the votes lie. Then they can use what Arends calls "persuasion" on the doubtful members.

When crucial amendments come up on the floor, the whips put in "whip calls" to summon their members. Arends and Boggs estimate they can get their troops to the floor in about 15 minutes.

Driver Arrested for Leaving Load of Hogs Without Water

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Iowa truck driver was arrested for leaving a truckload of hogs on a lot for 18 hours without water.

Police said seven of the 155 hogs in the truck trailer died of suffocation and 10 were injured.

The driver, Don Russell of Beaman, Iowa, an employe of Reisinger Trucking of Eldora, Iowa, was booked suspected of cruelty to animals.

Police said Russell was transporting the hogs from Eldora to stock yards in East St. Louis, Ill., when his truck developed mechanical trouble.

Russell unhitched the trailer and drove the tractor to a repair shop.

An anonymous caller advised the Humane Society of the situation about midmorning Wednesday and a fire truck was sent to the lot to water the animals.

It took the newly formed Optimist club one week to arrange such a trip and bring everyone back safely. The boys played in the optimist sponsored Buddy baseball league last summer at Dancler Park.

The 360-mile round trip Wednesday entailed a bit of maneuvering. With the cooperation of the Community Action Agency transportation became easy.

First there is a committee to make arrangements for tickets. The committee was successful in obtaining free tickets for 60 boys and 10 adult supervisors -- all in the knothole bleachers.

Optimists Wives prepared 20 dozen sandwiches.

There were bananas, apples and cookies, and 10 cases of soft drinks.

There was the problem of how to handle 60 boys without losing any. This master planning was in charge of Louis Wiggins, manager of the League.

The boys taken from Sikeston in cars to a Cape Girardeau shopping center parking lot where they boarded two buses.

The Philadelphia Phillies shut out their favorite team, 3 to 0.

Optimists, who made the trip, were John Harper, Larry Harshbarger, Glenn Greene, Leo Schade, Allen Malcolm, C. D. Alcorn, Ted Elliott, Russell Ross, Don Baker and Jerry Obermark, a guest.

Judges Propose Changes in Way Counties Run

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Second Class County Judges Association is proposing changes in legislation that affect the operation of county government in Missouri.

They want legislation raising the maximum tax levy for county general revenue above the present 50 cent ceiling. At the same time they seek a raise in the levy for county road and bridge work above the present 35 cent limit.

The judges also want to shorten the length of time required to advertise for bids and raise the amount requiring competitive bidding from $500 to $1,000. Other proposals would do away with special road districts, make payment of gasoline taxes direct to the county without state inspection and make uniform the amount the state pays to counties for welfare patients.

The Missouri County Judges Association begins a two-day meeting here today. The second class county judges will ask support from the state organization for their proposals.

Gasoline Hose Foils Robbery

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Two would-be bandits tried to rob Harvey L. Bearce, 55, at a service station.

Bearce was pumping gas into the tank of their car when one of the men grabbed him. The attendant turned the gasoline hose on both men to defend himself.

Doused with gasoline they fled to their car and drove off.

Drawings Reveal Children's View Of Doctors

NEW YORK (AP) — The blank piece of framed art paper was entitled "My Doctor."

Leslie Garrison, 9, filled it in with a smiling face at the end of a giant syringe. Lori Levine, 6, placed a stick figure in a big pink heart and wrote: "I Love You Dr. Gillman."

These were just two of about 1,000 drawings made by children who were patients of New York area physicians this summer. The Health Insurance Plan of Greater New York wanted to find out whether the youngsters were happy with their physicians.

Michele Savron, 6, of the Bronx, drew a doctor in a white coat with a big smile and dangling blue earrings.

Many of the drawings, sketched in about half of the plan's 31 medical centers, picture doctors as happy, friendly brightly colored figures in neat, detailed offices.

Milton Gold, director of subscriber relations for the health plan, said the art expressed "all the typical attitudes of children" — from love of the doctor to a common fear of needles and, for the 6- to 8-year-olds, a preoccupation with bright examining lights.

Another purpose of the drawings was to keep children waiting for appointments entertained. So they were given colored pencils, crayons and art paper and a chance to win a prize for the "most interesting drawing."

The judge's panel decided it was impossible to pick only a few winners. It awarded 20 first prizes and 70 second prizes.

"We will also give 944 honorable mentions, so there will be no losers," Gold said.

Whips Key Figures in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends sat alongside the center aisle, counting his troops and making a mental note of the absentees.

On the Democratic side, Whip Hale Boggs stood at the rear of the chamber with two aides, making a list of Democrats present and voting.

The vote on an amendment to the foreign aid bill complete, Arends and Boggs disappeared into their respective cloakrooms to telephone absent members and urge them to come to the floor.

A similar scene takes place in the House during most major legislative battles. Arends and Boggs, as whips of their parties, have the jobs of getting enough members to the floor to uphold their parties' positions.

There have been whips in Congress since the turn of the century, and the British Parliament has had them since 1770. The term stems from the "whipper in" who was the man in a fox hunt responsible for keeping the hounds from leaving the pack.

Arends, 71, silver-maned Illinoisan who is the senior GOP member of the House, has been his party's whip since 1943, longer than any man in history. An effort to replace him in 1965 failed and he is considered solidly entrenched now.

Boggs, 53, holds his position by appointment of the speaker and the majority leader, unlike Arends who is elected by the GOP membership. The youngest member of the House when first elected at 26, the Louisiana Democrat has held his post since 1962.

Each operates through deputy and assistant whips. Arends has three deputies-- Reps. William H. Bates of Massachusetts, Jackson E. Betts of Ohio and Burt L. Talcott of California-- while Boggs has a single deputy, John E. Moss of California. Under them are assistant whips, serving states or regions, 14 for the Republicans and 19 for the Democrats.

While Arends has to contend with up to 30 potentially balky members on most issues, Democrats have 70-80 Southerners plus some conservative border staters who frequently line up with the Republicans to oppose administration proposals.

Twice this year, on a measure to increase the national debt limit, Republicans were solidly opposed, so Democrats had to rely on Southerners to get the bill through. The first time they failed, but the second time they succeeded.

About once a month, Republicans hold a conference of the entire membership under chairman Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, often to discuss controversial issues on which the party is split.

Democratic policy, like that of any party in power, follows the lead of the White House.

On major issues, both party whips poll their memberships, through the assistant whips, to see where the votes lie. Then they can use what Arends calls "persuasion" on the doubtful members.

When crucial amendments come up on the floor, the whips put in "whip calls" to summon their members. Arends and Boggs estimate they can get their troops to the floor in about 15 minutes.

Driver Arrested for Leaving Load of Hogs Without Water

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An Iowa truck driver was arrested for leaving a truckload of hogs on a lot for 18 hours without water.

Police said seven of the 155 hogs in the truck trailer died of suffocation and 10 were injured.

The driver, Don Russell of Beaman, Iowa, an employe of Reisinger Trucking of Eldora, Iowa, was booked suspected of cruelty to animals.

Police said Russell was transporting the hogs from Eldora to stock yards in East St. Louis, Ill., when his truck developed mechanical trouble.

Russell unhitched the trailer and drove the tractor to a repair shop.

An anonymous caller advised the Humane Society of the situation about midmorning Wednesday and a fire truck was sent to the lot to water the animals.

Everyman's Walls Original Prints on

By NADEANE WALKER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — London swings in the art world, too.

Alecto-Graphics is the group that aims to stir things up and popularize modern art for everybody.

Tucked away in a glass-walled building behind London's huge air terminal is one of the liveliest and most exciting art exhibits anywhere.

Here they're plotting a revolution — to sweep those banal copies of pictures off living room walls and clap original prints in their place.

"We like to think of ourselves as the paperbacks of the art publishing world," says Eric Ayres, a founding director of the print publishers. At from $25 to $300 (and up), these prints are hardly in the paperback price range, but each is a signed original by a front rank artist, published in limited editions of not more than 100 each.

What makes Alecto-Graphics something special — besides the fact that it claims to be the only place in the world equipped to turn out all three major types of prints lithograph, silk screen and woodcut — is the experimental work it is encouraging in half a dozen fields. As Ayres says, "We aim to act as a catalyst for artists to branch into other processes."

There are even living quarters for artists, giving the center some of the atmosphere of a new Bauhaus school.

It's all happening here a downstairs showroom buzzes with interior decorators and gallery buyers choosing prints next door in a mail room mini-skirted girls are dealing with orders from all over Europe, while in studios above, artists bend over acid etching baths or manhandle the heavy print presses, some of them weighing over two and a half tons.

"None of your weedy weaklings here," a director laughed. "Our artists have to be strong. At least one goes off on regular health courses. Of course, the boys help the girls when it comes to working the presses."

It all started six years ago when a new university graduate bet a friend that he could sell anything. His friend reckoned that an original picture would be the hardest thing to sell, so the gambler wrote to a well-known institution asking if they would like to buy a lithograph of their buildings.

Back came the answer, "We want two."

The friends were dumbfounded. "We didn't even know any artists," Ayres recalls now. "Anyway, we wrote to half a dozen other places, got commissions and started rounding up artists to fill them."

AT LONDON'S Alecto-Graphics, Ian Lawson examines a lithograph.

Alecto-Graphics was the result. It has doubled its business every year, set up a gallery in New York and has some 60 artists under contract for prints, including France's Dubuffet and Americans Joe Dine and Claes Oldenburgh.

They also have one American director, Terence Benton of Kansas City. Other directors include the Honorable Robert Erskine (founder), Paul Cornwall-Jones, architect, BBC producer Michael Deakin, and Joe Studholme, a banker. James Madge designed their glass-walled building, which cost a quarter of a million pounds and is still expanding.

The showroom is not open to the public, but TV star David Frost came in with his interior decorator before last Christmas and bought several thousand dollars worth of prints for his new apartment. The luckiest buyers are those who got David Hockney prints at $750 three years ago. One of them just changed hands for over $2,000.

The investment angle is obviously an important one, and Alecto-Graphics say the Hockney prints are not an isolated example. They are particularly proud of producing the works of Chris Prater who is accounted the best silk screen printer in the world. Their best seller is Richard Beer, whose monochrome etchings start at $25.

The print resurgence started in America after the war, Ayres admits, and America remains their best market.

Most of the monster presses are old ones which had fallen idle. They collected them from Wales, from a London junkyard, even one from New York. They are so heavy that they require a specially reenforced floor, and would be too clumsy for an artist's studio at home.

One thing the art center has never lacked since its establishment is artists. Many more than it can handle want to work there, but the directors say they are always on the outlook for new talent.

It's all aimed at the demand for multiple originals from a sophisticated public." Everybody, they say, would like to own an original. Not everybody can afford an original painting, but original prints are in the reach of most pocketbooks.

AN ALARMING LETTER

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — A 6-year-old newcomer from the Azores got a free lecture on the difference between mail boxes and fire alarm boxes. The unidentified lad was found trying to stuff a letter into the fire alarm box. The youngster got a lesson in working a mailbox and a ride home in the fire chief's car.

SUMMER SALADS GO FORMAL, INFORMAL

Whether you're planning a party for the bride or just want to treat your family to something new in salads this summer, the story provides you with salads that are easy to make for family meals, yet attractive enough to serve at more formal occasions. Tomato Juice Aspic, always refreshing warm weather fare, is a cinch to make with tomato juice, gelatin and mayonnaise. As mouth-watering as they look are Curry Rice Stuffed Tomatoes with a mixture of chicken and yellow rice. Set each tomato on a leaf of lettuce for an elegant salad or appetizer. Crabmeat Salad with lettuce, hardboiled eggs, tomatoes and olives is an ideal entree for a luncheon. Decorations like a tiger lily or dainty parasols can give your table a party look. Finger sandwiches with your favorite fillings accompany the salads to round out a family lunch or a festive luncheon. A salad bowl full of tasty tips tossed up for you.

ISRAEL'S BORDERS

have changed significantly since the nation's birth in the 1948 partition of Palestine. The United Nations partition plan, accepted by Israel but rejected by the Arabs, split the territory equally between the new Jewish state and Arabs with Jerusalem internationalized. In the first Arab-Israeli war that followed, Israel gained considerable ground, including Jerusalem's New City. Jordan held the historic Old City. In the 1956 round, the Syrian and Jordanian fronts remained quiet while Israel overran Egypt's Sinai Peninsula. She withdrew after international assurances that included open navigation of the Gulf of Aqaba, commanded by the Egyptian strongpoint of Sharm El Sheikh. Egypt's blockade of the gulf touched off the latest clash. Israel again occupies Sinai plus all of Jerusalem and large chunks of Jordan and Syria. This time she indicates she intends to hold on to key points.

The Mess sergeant was among the Army's best. His kitchen was a model of cleanliness and efficiency, and inspection by the brass never made him nervous. One day he was stirring up a concoction calling for lots of fresh eggs, and was adding them six at a time. He took three in each hand, broke them on the side of the pot with one crack, shook them into the mixture, and tossed the shells over his shoulder.

The inspecting officers happened to arrive just at this time and, after watching with great interest, one of them asked, "Sergeant, what if you get hold of a bad egg?"

Without missing a motion, the sergeant replied, "A gad egg, sir? In the Army, sir?"

PUBLIC NOTICE

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 and 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6 inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutters on E. Kathleen Street from Selma to Dona Streets, in accordance with plans and specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.60 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not on a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of September, 1967. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Everyman's Walls Original Prints on

By NADEANE WALKER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — London swings in the art world, too.

Alecto-Graphics is the group that aims to stir things up and popularize modern art for everybody.

Tucked away in a glass-walled building behind London's huge air terminal is one of the liveliest and most exciting art cubicles anywhere.

Here they're plotting a revolution — to sweep those banal copies of pictures off living room walls and clap original prints in their place.

"We like to think of ourselves as the paperbacks of the art publishing world," says Eric Ayres, a founding director of the print publishers. At from $25 to $300 (and up), these prints are hardly in the paperback price range, but each is a signed original by a front-rank artist, published in limited editions of not more than 100 each.

What makes Alecto-Graphics something special — besides the fact that it claims to be the only place in the world equipped to turn out all three major types of prints lithograph, silk screen and woodcut — is the experimental work it is encouraging in half a dozen fields. As Ayres says, "We aim to act as a catalyst for artists to branch into other processes."

There are even living quarters for artists, giving the center some of the atmosphere of a new Bauhaus school.

It's all happening here a downstairs showroom buzzes with interior decorators and gallery buyers choosing prints next door in a mail room mini-skirted girls are dealing with orders from all over Europe, while in studios above, artists bend over acid etching baths or manhandle the heavy print presses, some of them weighing over two and a half tons.

"None of your weedy weaklings here," a director laughed. "Our artists have to be strong. At least one goes off on regular health courses. Of course, the boys help the girls when it comes to working the presses."

It all started six years ago when a new university graduate bet a friend that he could sell anything. His friend reckoned that an original picture would be the hardest thing to sell, so the gambler wrote to a well-known institution asking if they would like to buy a lithograph of their buildings.

Back came the answer. "We want two."

The friends were dumbfounded. "We didn't even know any artists," Ayres recalls now. "Anyway, we wrote to half a dozen other places, got commissions and started, rounding up artists to fill them."

AT LONDON'S Alecto-Graphics, Ian Lawson examines a lithograph.

Alecto-Graphics was the result. It has doubled its business every year, set up a gallery in New York and has some 60 artists under contract for prints, including France's Dubuffet and Americans Joe Dine and Claes Oldenburgh.

They also have one American director, Terence Benton of Kansas City. Other directors include the Honorable Robert Erskine (founder), Paul Cornwall-Jones, architect, BBC producer Michael Deakin, and Joe Studholme, a banker. James Madge designed their glass walled building, which cost a quarter of a million pounds and is still expanding.

The showroom is not open to the public, but TV star David Frost came in with his interior decorator before last Christmas and bought several thousand dollars worth of prints for his new apartment. The luckiest buyers are those who got David Hockney prints at $750 three years ago. One of them just changed hands for over $2,000.

The investment angle is obviously an important one, and Alecto-Graphics say the Hockney prints are not an isolated example. They are particularly proud of producing the works of Chris Prater who is accounted the best silk screen printer in the world. Their best seller is Richard Beer, whose monochrome etchings start at $25.

The print resurgence started in America after the war, Ayres admits, and America remains their best market.

Most of the monster presses are old ones which had fallen idle. They collected them from Wales, from a London junkyard, even one from New York. They are so heavy that they require a specially reenforced floor, and would be too clumsy for an artist's studio at home.

One thing the art center has never lacked since its establishment is artists. Many more than it can handle want to work there, but the directors say they are always on the outlook for new talent.

It's all aimed at the demand for multiple originals from a sophisticated public. Everybody, they say, would like to own an original. Not everybody can afford an original painting, but original prints are in the reach of most pocketbooks.

AN ALARMING LETTER

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — A 6-year-old newcomer from the Azores got a free lecture on the difference between mail boxes and fire alarm boxes. The unidentified lad was found trying to stuff a letter into the fire alarm box. The youngster got a lesson in working a mailbox and a ride home in the fire chief's car.

The Mess sergeant was among the Army's best. His kitchen was a model of cleanliness and efficiency, and inspection by the brass never made him nervous. One day he was stirring up a concoction calling for lots of fresh eggs, and was adding them six at a time. He took three in each hand, broke them on the side of the pot with one crack, shook them into the mixture, and tossed the shells over his shoulder.

The inspecting officers happened to arrive just at this time and, after watching with great interest, one of them asked, "Sergeant, what if you get hold of a bad egg?"

Without missing a motion, the sergeant replied, "A gad egg, sir? In the Army, sir?"

PUBLIC NOTICE

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 and 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6 inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutters on E. Kathleen Street from Selma to Dona Streets, in accordance with plans and specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.60 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not on a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of September, 1967. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

SUMMER SALADS GO FORMAL, INFORMAL

Whether you're planning a party for the bride or just want to treat your family to something new in salads this summer, the story provides you with salads that are easy to make for family meals, yet attractive enough to serve at more formal occasions. Tomato Juice Aspic, always refreshing warm weather fare, is a cinch to make with tomato juice, gelatin and mayonnaise. As mouth-watering as they look are Curry Rice Stuffed Tomatoes with a mixture of chicken and yellow rice. Set each tomato on a leaf of lettuce for an elegant salad or appetizer. Crabmeat Salad with lettuce, hardboiled eggs, tomatoes and olives is an ideal entree for a luncheon. Decorations like a tiger lily or dainty parasols can give your table a party look. Finger sandwiches with your favorite fillings accompany the salads to round out a family lunch or a festive luncheon. A salad bowl full of tasty tips tossed up for you.

ISRAEL'S BORDERS

have changed significantly since the nation's birth in the 1948 partition of Palestine. The United Nations partition plan, accepted by Israel but rejected by the Arabs, split the territory equally between the new Jewish state and Arabs with Jerusalem internationalized. In the first Arab-Israeli war that followed, Israel gained considerable ground, including Jerusalem's New City. Jordan held the historic Old City. In the 1956 round, the Syrian and Jordanian fronts remained quiet while Israel overran Egypt's Sinai Peninsula. She withdrew after international assurances that included open navigation of the Gulf of Aqaba, commanded by the Egyptian strongpoint of Sharm El Sheikh. Egypt's blockade of the gulf touched off the latest clash. Israel again occupies Sinai plus all of Jerusalem and large chunks of Jordan and Syria. This time she indicates she intends to hold on to key points.

McGees at Home on Ranney

50 years ago
September 15, 1917

Mrs. Lily McGee and daughters returned from Kewanee Saturday and took possession of their home on North Ranney. Dr. Stewart and family who had resided in the house during the summer months, are now living in the Kevil house on Gladys street.

Mrs. J. H. Baugher entertained on Wednesday evening in honor of her daughter Estelle's birthday. The guests were: The Misses Lucy Young, Cornitha Simlar, Josephine Robinson, Irma Clodfelter, Mary Gill, Ruby Violet, and the Messrs. George Eggerman of Cape Girardeau, Don Vowels, Roger Bailey, Pleas Malcolm, Herman Sanders, E. Berger, Raymond Marshall and Albert Malone.

Walter Kendall and his family arrived last Saturday from St. Louis to again reside in Sikeston. They moved to the city almost two years ago.

Mrs. F. E. Early is having a large house and barn built on one of her farms rented by Robert Limbaugh. Mr. Depley of Bertrand, is the contractor.

The Rev. Ralph Zimmer, who has been the assistant priest at St. Francis Xavier Church in Sikeston the past four months, has been promoted as assistant priest at St. Peters Parish in Jefferson City.

Milford Pinkney Hart, 67 years old, a member of one of the county's pioneer families, died Saturday night at Sikeston

Sidney Poitier Says Oscar Makes Difference

"It's been a long road to this moment."

These were the only words Sidney Poitier could muster when, in 1964, he was presented the most coveted of all acting awards, the "Oscar."

Where Poitier stands today, no Negro has been before, excepting the late Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy Award for her supporting performance in "Gone with the Wind."

This brilliant young actor makes his latest appearance in Metro-Goldwwy-Myer's "A Patch of Blue," in which he portrays a man whose compassion for a blind white girl helps her to see the world for the first time through his eyes. The picture also stars Shelley Winters, with newcomer Elizabeth Hartman playing the blind heroine.

In 1943, a barefooted Sidney Poitier left his Bahama family to come to the United States, where he got his first glimpse of running water, electric lights and automobiles. Today he is universally acknowledged as the finest Negro actor of the American theatre.

Can one factor be responsible for catapulting a career to such heights? Poitier replies to the loaded question without hesitation. "The Oscar I received is the greatest single thing that has happened to me since I started my acting career," he asserts. "Doors have been opened to me that I never expected. I no longer have to search for a role. Perhaps even more important, I now can say 'no' to mediocre parts and I've said 'no' for the past year since 'Lillies of the Field.'"

On his return to Hollywood for "A Patch of Blue," Poitier commented on his absence from the motion picture scene.

"I finally got around to doing some of the things I have always wanted to do, go places I've wanted to go. I had always dreamed of a trip to Europe and the Orient, so I decided to get out and take advantage of the opportunity to see some of the world.

"Oriental religions and philosophies, such as Zen Buddhism and Confucianism, have long interested me and what better way to find out about them than being right on the spot? So I visited India and Lebanon, as well as Europe. I even made it back to my native Bahamas. You should have seen the welcome I received in Nassau. I saw friends I had not seen in twenty-five years.

"Several producers had scripts they wanted me to read, but I figured if they wanted me badly enough they could wait a year or so. And sure enough, after I got back from this trip the offers were still there. I would probably have never had the chance if I hadn't received that Oscar."

Poitier's great demand is exemplified by the fact that "A Patch of Blue" is the first of six scheduled films for the actor.

SIDNEY POITIER, Academy Award-winner for his performance in "Lillies of the Field," offers another brilliant and moving performance in the new metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, "A Patch of Blue."

If You Were the Judge By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Error Can Be Costly

When Myron drove into Elmer's gas station, Elmer took a good look at him and decided that he had seen his picture hanging up in the local post office as a "Wanted" criminal. Quickly, he drained all the water out of Myron's car and called the police.

When they arrived, however, they found not "Wanted" criminal only Myron chasing Elmer all around the gas station in an effort to get Elmer to put the water back in the car.

"I'm sorry," Elmer apologized, "but I thought Myron was Killer Diller, a notorious criminal."

Not satisfied with an apology, Myron sued Elmer for false imprisonment.

"That's nonsense," was Elmer's answer. "I didn't imprison him. In fact, thinking he was a criminal, I would have been the last person in town to try to catch him. While I'm public-spirited, I'm also a coward."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Elmer pay Myron for falsely imprisoning him?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that false imprisonment is an illegal detention; that by draining the water out ot Myron's car, Elmer illegally prevented Myron from leaving the gas station. And, concluded the judge, while Myron could have left himself, he was not required to leave without his car.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion. (Psalm 71:1)

PRAYER: O God, whose voice the prophet did not hear in earthquake, wind, or fire, but in the breath of a light whisper, we turn aside from the clangor and turmoil of work, trade, and traffic, to listen quietly to Thee. Speak now to our hearts and let us feel the kindling of Thy love. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

Letters to the Editor

Editor
The Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801
Dear Sir:

We want to express our thanks and appreciation for the supply of the 1967 Pigskin Preview of The Daily Standard you sent our coaches and a copy to each number of our football team and made them available to our student body. We will hand the rest of them out at the gates at our first football game on September 18.

The edition is well planned, easily read, the pictures good, and the contents interesting. It certainly was well received and was very popular with our teachers and students.

Sincerely,

Locomotive Seizure Wins Admirers for Chattanooga Mayor

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Mayor Ralph Kelley, who directed Chattanooga's seizure of the famed civil war locomotive, the General, says he has received letters of support from all over the nation. One letter, Kelley said, read:

"Legal schmeagal, we're with you, baby. Even if you lose, you got class."

Sidney Poitier Says Oscar Makes Difference

"It's been a long road to this moment."

These were the only words Sidney Poitier could muster when, in 1964, he was presented the most coveted of all acting awards, the "Oscar."

Where Poitier stands today, no Negro has been before, excepting the late Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy Award for her supporting performance in "Gone with the Wind."

This brilliant young actor makes his latest appearance in Metro-Goldwyn-Myer's "A Patch of Blue," in which he portrays a man whose compassion for a blind white girl helps her to see the world for the first time through his eyes. The picture also stars Shelley Winters, with newcomer Elizabeth Hartman playing the blind heroine.

The picture comes to the Rex Theater Sunday for four days.

In 1943, a barefooted Sidney Poitier left his Bahama family to come to the United States, where he got his first glimpse of running water, electric lights and automobiles. Today he is universally acknowledged as the finest Negro actor of the American theatre.

Can one factor be responsible for catapulting a career to such heights? Poitier replies to the loaded question without hesitation. "The Oscar I received is the greatest single thing that has happened to me since I started my acting career," he asserts. "Doors have been opened to me that I never expected. I no longer have to search for a role. Perhaps even more important, I now can say 'no' to mediocre parts and I've said 'no' for the past year since 'Lillies of the Field.'"

On his return to Hollywood for "A Patch of Blue," Poitier commented on his absence from the motion picture scene.

"I finally got around to doing some of the things I have always wanted to do, go places I've wanted to go. I had always dreamed of a trip to Europe and the Orient, so I decided to get out and take advantage of the opportunity to see some of the world.

"Oriental religions and philosophies, such as Zen Buddhism and Confucianism, have long interested me and what better way to find out about them than being right on the spot? So I visited India and Lebanon, as well as Europe. I even made it back to my native Bahamas. You should have seen the welcome I received in Nassau. I saw friends I had not seen in twenty-five years.

"Several producers had scripts they wanted me to read, but I figured if they wanted me badly enough they could wait a year or so. And sure enough, after I got back from this trip the offers were still there. I would probably have never had the chance if I hadn't received that Oscar."

Poitier's great demand is exemplified by the fact that "A Patch of Blue" is the first of six scheduled films for the actor.

SIDNEY POITIER, Academy Award-winner for his performance in "Lillies of the Field," offers another brilliant and moving performance in the new metro-Goldwyn-Mayer drama, "A Patch of Blue."

If You Were the Judge

By Jack Strauss, LL.D.

Error Can Be Costly

When Myron drove into Elmer's gas station, Elmer took a good look at him and decided that he had seen his picture hanging up in the local post office as a "Wanted" criminal. Quickly, he drained all the water out of Myron's car and called the police.

When they arrived, however, they found not "Wanted" criminal only Myron chasing Elmer all around the gas station in an effort to get Elmer to put the water back in the car.

"I'm sorry," Elmer apologized, "but I thought Myron was Killer Diller, a notorious criminal."

Not satisfied with an apology, Myron sued Elmer for false imprisonment.

"That's nonsense," was Elmer's answer. "I didn't imprison him. In fact, thinking he was a criminal, I would have been the last person in town to try to catch him. While I'm public-spirited, I'm also a coward."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Elmer pay Myron for falsely imprisoning him?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The judge held that false imprisonment is an illegal detention; that by draining the water out ot Myron's car, Elmer illegally prevented Myron from leaving the gas station. And, concluded the judge, while Myron could have left himself, he was not required to leave without his car.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust; let me never be put to confusion. (Psalm 71:1)

PRAYER: O God, whose voice the prophet did not hear in earthquake, wind, or fire, but in the breath of a light whisper, we turn aside from the clangor and turmoil of work, trade, and traffic, to listen quietly to Thee. Speak now to our hearts and let us feel the kindling of Thy love. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

Editor
The Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Sir:

We want to express our thanks and appreciation for the supply of the 1967 Pigskin Preview of The Daily Standard you sent our coaches and a copy to each number of our football team and made them available to our student body. We will hand the rest of them out at the gates at our first football game on September 18.

The edition is well planned, easily read, the pictures good, and the contents interesting. It certainly was well received and was very popular with our teachers and students.

Sincerely,

Locomotive Seizure Wins Admirers for Chattanooga Mayor

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Mayor Ralph Kelley, who directed Chattanooga's seizure of the famed civil war locomotive, the General, says he has received letters of support from all over the nation. One letter, Kelley said, read:

"Legal schmeagal, we're with you, baby. Even if you lose, you got class."

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Sept. 15, the 258th day of 1967. There are 107 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1959, Premier Nikita Khrushchev arrived in Washington to begin a 13-day visit to the United States.

In 1789, the U.S. Department of Foreign Affairs changed its name to the "Department of State."

In 1857, William Howard Taft, the 26th president of the United States, was born.

In 1935, the Nazis enacted the Nuremberg laws, starting off a program of violent religious and racial persecution.

In 1938, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain flew to Berchtesgaden, Germany to talk with Adolf Hitler.

In 1949, Dr. Konrad Adenauer became the first chancellor of West Germany.

Ten years ago the U.N. General Assembly voted to condemn the Soviet Union's suppression of the 1956 revolt in Hungary.

Five years ago the Justice Department accused two Russian U. N. employes of spying.

One year ago the Gemini eleven astronauts came down to a bulls eye landing in the Atlantic after three historic days in space.

The Texan struck oil. With his new riches he built an enormous mansion with three swimming pools. One pool he keeps filled with cool water and one with warm water. The third he keeps empty. Pressed by a visitor for an explanation, he replied airily, "Oh, quite a few of my friends can't swim, you know." Catholic Digest.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Sept. 15, the 258th day of 1967. There are 107 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1959, Premier Nikita Khrushchev arrived in Washington to begin a 13-day visit to the United States.

In 1789, the U.S. Department of Foreign Affairs changed its name to the "Department of State."

In 1857, William Howard Taft, the 26th president of the United States, was born.

In 1935, the Nazis enacted the Nuremberg laws, starting off a program of violent religious and racial persecution.

In 1938, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain flew to Berchtesgaden, Germany to talk with Adolf Hitler.

In 1949, Dr. Konrad Adenauer became the first chancellor of West Germany.

Ten years ago the U.N. General Assembly voted to condemn the Soviet Union's suppression of the 1956 revolt in Hungary.

Five years ago the Justice Department accused two Russian U. N. employes of spying.

One year ago the Gemini eleven astronauts came down to a bulls eye landing in the Atlantic after three historic days in space.

The Texan struck oil. With his new riches he built an enormous mansion with three swimming pools. One pool he keeps filled with cool water and one with warm water. The third he keeps empty. Pressed by a visitor for an explanation, he replied airily, "Oh, quite a few of my friends can't swim, you know." Catholic Digest.

Metal Brain Probe Designed at Shop

COLUMBIA -- A metal brain probe used in the treatment of Parkinson's disease is among exotic instruments designed at the Science Instruments Shop at the University of Missouri, Columbia.

Such an instrument delicate enough for this operation could not be purchased on the market. It consists of three metal tubes, one of them creating a vacuum around the third that carries liquid nitrogen at temperatures as low as 80 degrees below zero for brain treatment.

The MU Shop was organized in 1955 to originate designs for specialized research equipment not available elsewhere. Basic research investigates into unknown fields and naturally no research equipment is manufactured for such activities.

The probe was one of about 800 pieces of apparatus completed last year to fit the needs of researchers in such departments as chemistry, physics, botany and zoology.

Recently, the 12-man machinist crew spent about 6,000 man hours building and installing equipment totaling about 9 tons in the nuclear reactor on campus. Included were a time of flight spectrometer, a two-beam collimator, and a saddle and saddle plug to be used with a triple axis neutron diffractometer, an instrument manufactured by Mitsubishi of Japan. The saddle and plug are used as a shielding device to bring neutron beams out of the reactor housing radio-active material into reserach instruments. The collimator acts as a pathway to bring the neutron beams out.

Some equipment the shop has designed and built include an instrument to test the toughness of shortening in pie crust, radiation storage equipment, experimental animal cages, electrodes with head holders used to detect brain waves, and a navigator training instrument.

The navigation instrument was built under a grant from the Air Force. This instrument simulated a plane flying, 1,000 miles an hour at 40,000 to 50,000 feet. The navigator was given a course to fly and a target on which to drop a bomb. The instrument would project how close the bomb came to the target. The purpose was to see how well the subject acted under stress of simulated flying conditions.

The machinists improvise unlimitless specialized equipment. They operate such machines as engine lathes which produce rotating material of different sizes and shape to turnings of .0005 to .001 of an inch; vertical and horizontal milling machines which remove metal from .0005 of .001 of an inch to shape parts into some desired form; surface precision grinding of a flat surface to a highly polished finish plus or minus .0005 or .0002 of an inch; presses for drilling holes to high precision locations; and, according to John Snell, shop supervisor, welding rare metals of which most industrial welders have never heard.

Ordinarily, a machinist requires four years of apprenticeship and the top bracket, a tool and dye maker requires another four years of experience before they are recognized as proficient. The tool and dye maker designs the stamping dies and molds which produce the various parts of a piece of equipment.

The Missouri crew consists of: Charlie Dawson, machinist, Sturgeon; Raymond Fenton, machine maintenance, 703 Washington Ave.; Joe Dothage, design draftsman, Route 4; Maurice Howe, storeroom keeper, Shady Lake Estate Trailer Court; Glenn Miller, shop foreman, 2503 Bear Creek Dr.; Carl Hicken, machinist, 1600 Caniff Circle; John Christianson, machinists, 615 Pershing Road; Earl Barrett, machinist, Sturgeon; Jerry Hudnell, machinist, Route 1; David Taylor, machinist, Centralia; Carl Milner, welder, Stephens, Mo.; and John Snell, shop supervisor, 2407 Braemore.

In their spare time, the University shop has produced some of their special designs for Australia, Canada, Egypt, Nova Scotia, Alaska, and they have an order waiting now for Thailand.

Mrs. Jennie Stubblefield

Member of Pioneer Family Dies at 91

Mrs. Jennie Marshall Stubblefield, 91, 319 North New Madrid, a member of one of Sikeston's pioneer families, died at 4 p.m. Thursday at Shuffits Nursing Home 3.

She had been a patient there three months.

Mrs. Stubblefield was born Aug. 21, 1876, in Calloway county, Ky.

She was the daughter of William and Mary Matthews Marshall, pioneer residents of Scott County in the early 1830s. Her grandparents, James and Millie Flanigan Marshall, were residents of Scott county more than 140 years ago.

Mrs. Stubblefield was married March 15, 1905, to the late William H. Stubblefield Sr., a farmer and landowner of Scott county.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. J. E. Harper Sr., Mrs. L. H. Groves Sr., and Miss Lucille Stubblefield, all of Sikeston; three grandsons and one granddaughter, and four great grandchildren.

Although inactive in recent years, Mrs. Stubblefield was a staunch member of the First Methodist church. She was a member for 62 years. She was active in the former Co-Workers church organization and the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Welsh Funeral Home, with the Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in City cemetery.

Stoddard Fair Set For Sept. 25-30

DEXTER - The Stoddard County Fair will open Sept. 25, and will continue through Sept. 30.

Two changes have been announced by the fair board in the scheduling of the events, according to W. L. Arnold, secretary. The Miss Stoddard County and Little Miss Stoddard County pageant will be held this year at the high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

The second change will be the FFA pig scramble which has been announced for Sept. 26, but will be held on Sept. 25, at 9 p.m. at the arena.

These two important changes--the beauty pageant Sept. 26 and the FFA pig scramble on Sept. 25, -- will lead off the week. Throughout the days through the week various entries in livestock, field crops, home economics, etc. will be made.

The parade, will begin at 6 p.m. and will march down Stoddard Street. Preceding the parade, at two p.m., a special kids matinee is being planned and at 8 p.m., Sept. 28, a new attraction is expected to draw many spectators when a Shetland pony show will be staged.

The final day of the fair, Saturday, has been designated as "Dexter Homecoming Day."

Cruelty to Animals Charge Against Four Bullfighters Dismissed

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) -- Magistrate Tudor M. Nellor dismissed a charge of cruelty to animals against four Mexican matadors Thursday.

They had been charged in connection with bloodless bullfights at the Wyandotte County fairgrounds during the Labor Day weekend.

The complaint was filed by Lyman Ray of Wichita, president of the Kansas Federation of Humane Societies, who testified before Judge Nellor that he saw the bulls prodded with spike-pointed banderillos. Ray could not identify the matadors who used the instruments.

Nellor said bulls had pretty tough hides, and there was no evidencd that they were bleeding or were tortured.

The matadors, Salvadore Galgin, 40; Tico Sauceda, 29; Manuel Chacon, 35, and Jesus Guerra, 35, have returned to Mexico to meet other bullfight commitments.

Ray was arraigned before Nellor Thursday on a state trespassing charge pressed by one of the promoters, Charles I. Goodman. Ray pleaded innocent and was released under $500 bond until his hearing Sept. 23.

the Department of Housing and Urban Development which would have authority to borrow $500 million from the Treasury to help pay the premiums and meet catastrophic flood losses.

The bill, now headed for House consideration, would limit federal aid to $2.5 billion of insurance on homes, with a maximum of $15,000 protection on a dwelling unit and $5,000 on its contents.

Congress enacted a similar flood relief bill in 1956 but never provided the financing for it.

The new plan calls for sale of the insurance through private firms, with the insurance industry contributing $50 million to the pool to cover massive flood losses.

The saddle and plug are used as a shielding device to bring neutron beams out of the reactor housing radio - active material into reserach instruments. The collimator acts as a pathway to bring the neutron beams out.

Some equipment the shop has designed and built include an instrument to test the toughness of shortening in pie crust, radiation storage equipment, experimental animal cages, electrodes with head holders used to detect brain waves, and a navigator training instrument.

The navigation instrument was built under a grant from the Air Force. This instrument simulated a plane flying, 1,000 miles an hour at 40,000 to 50,000 feet. The navigator was given a course to fly and a target on which to drop a bomb. The instrument would project how close the bomb came to the target. The purpose was to see how well the subject acted under stress of simulated flying conditions.

The machinists improvise unlimitless specialized equipment. They operate such machines as engine lathes which produce rotating material of different sizes and shape to turnings of .0005 to .001 of an inch; vertical and horizontal milling machines which remove metal from .0005 of .001 of an inch to shape parts into some desired form; surface precision grinding of a flat surface to a highly polished finish plus or minus .0005 or .0002 of an inch; presses for drilling holes to high precision locations; and, according to John Snell, shop supervisor, welding rare metals of which most industrial welders have never heard.

Ordinarily, a machinist requires four years of apprenticeship and the top bracket, a tool and dye maker requires another four years of experience before they are recognized as proficient. The tool and dye maker designs the stamping dies and molds which produce the various parts of a piece of equipment.

The Missouri crew consists of: Charlie Dawson, machinist, Sturgeon; Raymond Fenton, machine maintenance, 703 Washington Ave.; Joe Dothage, design draftsman, Route 4; Maurice Howe, storeroom keeper, Shady Lake Estate Trailer Court; Glenn Miller, shop foreman, 2503 Bear Creek Dr.; Carl Hicken, machinist, 1600 Caniff Circle; John Christianson, machinists, 615 Pershing Road; Earl Barrett, machinist, Sturgeon; Jerry Hudnell, machinist, Route 1; David Taylor, machinist, Centralia; Carl Milner, welder, Stephens, Mo.; and John Snell, shop supervisor, 2407 Braemore.

In their spare time, the University shop has produced some of their special designs for Australia, Canada, Egypt, Nova Scotia, Alaska, and they have an order waiting now for Thailand.

Mrs. Jennie Stubblefield

Member of Pioneer Family Dies at 91

Mrs. Jennie Marshall Stubblefield, 91, 319 North New Madrid, a member of one of Sikeston's pioneer families, died at 4 p.m. Thursday at Shuffits Nursing Home 3.

She had been a patient there three months.

Mrs. Stubblefield was born Aug. 21, 1876, in Calloway county, Ky.

She was the daughter of William and Mary Matthews Marshall, pioneer residents of Scott County in the early 1830s. Her grandparents, James and Millie Flanigan Marshall, were residents of Scott county more than 140 years ago.

Mrs. Stubblefield was married March 15, 1905, to the late William H. Stubblefield Sr., a farmer and landowner of Scott county.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. J. E. Harper Sr., Mrs. L. H. Groves Sr., and Miss Lucille Stubblefield, all of Sikeston; three grandsons and one granddaughter, and four great grandchildren.

Although inactive in recent years, Mrs. Stubblefield was a staunch member of the First Methodist church. She was a member for 62 years. She was active in the former Co-Workers church organization and the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Welsh Funeral Home, with the Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in City cemetery.

Stoddard Fair Set For Sept. 25-30

DEXTER - The Stoddard County Fair will open Sept. 25, and will continue through Sept. 30.

Two changes have been announced by the fair board in the scheduling of the events, according to W. L. Arnold, secretary. The Miss Stoddard County and Little Miss Stoddard County pageant will be held this year at the high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

The second change will be the FFA pig scramble which has been announced for Sept. 26, but will be held on Sept. 25, at 9 p.m. at the arena.

These two important changes-- the beauty pageant Sept. 26 and the FFA pig scramble on Sept. 25, -- will lead off the week. Throughout the days through the week various entries in livestock, field crops, home economics, etc. will be made.

The parade, will begin at 6 p.m. and will march down Stoddard Street. Preceding the parade, at two p.m., a special kids matinee is being planned and at 8 p.m., Sept. 28, a new attraction is expected to draw many spectators when a Shetland pony show will be staged.

The final day of the fair, Saturday, has been designated as "Dexter Homecoming Day."

Cruelty to Animals Charge Against Four Bullfighters Dismissed

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) -- Magistrate Tudor M. Nellor dismissed a charge of cruelty to animals against four Mexican matadors Thursday.

They had been charged in connection with bloodless bullfights at the Wyandotte County fairgrounds during the Labor Day weekend.

The complaint was filed by Lyman Ray of Wichita, president of the Kansas Federation of Humane Societies, who testified before Judge Nellor that he saw the bulls prodded with spike-pointed banderillos. Ray could not identify the matadors who used the instruments.

Nellor said bulls had pretty tough hides, and there was no evidencd that they were bleeding or were tortured.

The matadors, Salvadore Galgin, 40; Tico Sauceda, 29; Manuel Chacon, 35, and Jesus Guerra, 35, have returned to Mexico to meet other bullfight commitments.

Ray was arraigned before Nellor Thursday on a state trespassing charge pressed by one of the promoters, Charles I. Goodman. Ray pleaded inno- $500 bond until his hearing Sept. 23.

the Department of Housing and Urban Development which would have authority to borrow $500 million from the Treasury to help pay the premiums and meet catastrophic flood losses.

The bill, now headed for House consideration, would limit federal aid to $2.5 billion of insurance on homes, with a maximum of $15,000 protection on a dwelling unit and $5,000 on its contents.

Congress enacted a similar flood relief bill in 1956 but never provided the financing for it.

The new plan calls for sale of the insurance through private firms, with the insurance industry contributing $50 million to the pool to cover massive flood losses.
